Israel Denies Jet Lost In Golan Heights Dogfight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Damascus Radio reported dogfights between Syrian and Israeli planes over the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights today at a time when newspapers in the Arab world were predicting new Israeli attacks against Lebanon and Syria.

Israel denied the Damascus Radio claim but the broadcast reported that Syrian observation posts saw an Israeli plane fall near the Golan Heights town of Banyas.

The Damascus broadcast monitored in Beirut said "one of the intruding Israeli planes was shot down and was seen falling, exploding in midair."

Both Lebanon and Syria have reported many Israeli reconnaissance flights during the past few days and residents of southern Lebanon reported seeing four Israeli planes flying toward the Golan Heights this morning.

Israeli planes struck heavily into Lebanon and Syria last Friday in reprisal against the murder of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic Games and Syrian and Israeli planes battled over the Golan Heights Saturday in a battle in which Israel reported three Syrian planes shot down.

Israel indicated through its press today it also would carry its fight against Arab guerrillas into Europe and other countries if attacks against its citizens and interests there continue.

The Israeli military command denied in Tel Aviv that any aerial dogfight took place over the cease-fire line with Syria or that an Israeli plane was lost.

"We deny it," the Israeli spokesman said, of the report from Damascus. "Nothing of the sort took place — no dogfight, no encounter, no plane shot down."

The dogfight was the third reported by Syria in five days. In the Saturday dogfights Syrian spokesmen said three Israeli Mirages were hit and admitted that three Syrian Sukhov fighter-bombers were downed.

Announcing today's reported action, Damascus radio said a formation of Israeli warplanes "violated Syrian airspace near the Mount Hermon region of the border.

"Our planes and anti-aircraft gunners intercepted the intruding enemy aircraft and shot down one of them."

In Jerusalem, "the general feeling is that in order to counter this wave of spectacular terrorism — which is expected to continue — Israel will have to take the initiative abroad," The Jerusalem Post's military correspondent said in a front-page dispatch.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Davar, often reflective of government opinion, said an "extensive Israeli anti-guerrilla campaign will be inevitable, both in the Middle East and other areas."

Egyptian newspapers today said Israel is preparing to launch new attacks against Lebanon and Syria. Lebanese Prime Minister Saeb Salam pledged his nation would fight an expected attack from Israel although he admitted Lebanon lacks the power "to fully repel Israeli aggression."

Residents of the South Lebanon town of Marajayoun said today four Israeli jets broke the sound barrier over the town, then headed out toward the occupied Syrian Golan Heights. Similar overflights Tuesday spread fears of renewed Israeli attacks on South Lebanon borders.

Virtually all of Israel's other major papers' military correspondents carried stories similar to the Post and Davar

GUERRILLA BASES — Christian Science Monitor map locates areas in Syria and Lebanon where Israeli military spokesmen claim Arab guerrilla bases are located. Some of the areas were targets of air attacks by Israel aircraft in retaliation for slaying of Israeli Olympic team members. Lebanese officials claim some air attacks went beyond the usual Israeli targets in Fatahland to near Damascus in Syria and as far north as Tripoli in Lebanon.

Dollar Estate Proposal Rejected By Planners

Right Of Appeal Within Five Days

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night rejected a proposal to develop the historic Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue amid thunderous applause from an overflow crowd at city hall. (Another planning commission story, page 5.)

The 5-2 vote followed a two-hour public hearing. Commissioners James Dougan and Thomas R. O'Toole dissented.

The commission majority believed development of the site would violate provisions of the city's building moratorium which prohibits construction which might not be compatible with new general plan standards to be established.

San Rafael attorney Thomas E. Schaal — who has proposed an 80-unit apartment and townhouse development for the 11.1-acre parcel — last night requested a use permit under the moratorium and a zoning change in order to proceed with his plans.

After denying the permit, commissioners voted 4-3 to deny the rezoning request, with Dougan, O'Toole and Jorgen V. Lunding dissenting.

Schaal has five days in which to appeal the decisions to the city council.

Schaal said last night that the property was destined for residential use, claiming the site was inadequate for park purposes and citing high maintenance costs.

"If the community wants it, they should buy it. But where will the money come from?" he asked. The attorney has an option to buy the property from estate trustees and has placed its value at about $300,000.

Architect Gilbert Murphy said the project represented a first-class apartment-townhouse development. "It will have a grand impact on the community," he said.

Murphy said the 48-unit apartment set back 140 feet from Mission Avenue and backed by eight clusters of townhouses totaling 32 units as proposed would be better than what present zoning allows, as it would save existing trees and leave five acres in open space. The architect said a 52-unit block apartment building directly fronting Mission and backed by a traditional tract of 19 townhouses covering the entire parcel is possible under the property's multiple and single-family zoning.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing several adjacent property owners on Bonnie Brae Drive, said Murphy was using "horror tactics" in suggesting a traditional subdivision could be erected on the site.

"It would be a downright unadulterated rape of the hillside," Bianchi declared, saying a traditional tract would never be approved. "It's simply a scare tactic intefed to terrify neighbors," he said.

Bianchi noted the moratorium discourages building on hillsides and said the measure prohibited development of the property.

A long string of audience members expressed dismay at plans to raze the 100-year-old mansion and develop the site.

Mary Dekker, chairman of the San Rafael Historic Preservation Committee, presented *the commission with a 1,375-*signature petition opposing the Schaal proposal. One committee member recited a brief biography of Robert Dollar while another showed slides detailing the mansion's architecture, stained glass and intricate wood carvings.

Bryce W. Anderson, chairman of the San Rafael Library Board, told the commission the board opposed the development due to the traffic hazard that would be experienced by users of the library across Mission Avenue. He called traffic congestion that would be generated by the development a "peril to the lives of patrons of the library."

A 19-year-old girl urged denial of the project so that the mansion could be saved for the enjoyment of young people unfamiliar with 19th-Century architecture.

Former Novato mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo, a native of San Rafael, said Novato had lost an historic mansion to a developer in 1959. "Condominiums are a dime a dozen but there's only one Dollar mansion," he said.

The commission majority agreed with Commissioer Albert J. Boro that the development plan violated the city's moratorium. "I don't see any way the commission can approve this plan until the moratorium is lifted," he said.

INSIDE QUANG TRI — Smoke rises today from inside the citadel at Quang Tri following allied airstrikes yesterday in support of government troops involved in heavy fighting for the walled fortress. Communists, however, stalled their drive today to retake the city.

U.S. Jets Rip Railyard, Down 3 MIGs; Reds Hold In Quang Tri

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. jet fighters firing laser-guided bombs wiped out half a railroad complex in North Vietnam Tuesday, downed three Soviet-built MIG21s in dogfights over Hanoi and destroyed a railroad bridge south of the China border, the U.S. command said today.

In South Vietnam government marines who fought their way into the gray dirt and stone walled Citadel inside Quang Tri City were halted today by Communist troops in big bunkers after they had seized a third of the 50 acre compound in savage fighting. The slowing down meant they had missed their Wednesday deadline for capturing the ancient fortress.

UPI reporters in Quang Tri said the marines were hit today by 3,617 rounds of artillery and mortar fire looping over the 20-foot high Citadel walls but that the weather lifted and U.S. fighter-bombers were able to hit the Communist bunkers inside the Citadel with pinpoint fire.

The U.S. command said Air Force Phantons, A6 Intruders and A7 Corsairs bombed the railroad yards at Kep, 45 miles northwest of Hanoi, and reported destroying half of the complex. The pilots said smoke rose to 4,000 feet over the target as they headed back out to sea.

Other Air Force Phantoms destroyed a 105-foot railroad bridge near Yen Bai, a major air, rail and storage center 75 miles south of China. Still other Phantom pilots struck the Luc Nam petroleum pumping station 35 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilot returning to assess the damage reported that

Board Of Supervisors Affirms Public Right To Tideland Use

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Conservationists, developers and property owners joined forces yesterday to persuade the Marin County Board of Supervisors to accept a watered-down interpretation of the controversial Marks vs. Whitney decision. (Other Supervisors stories, page 20.)

The board, after more than two hours of discussion, directed its legal staff to prepare criteria under which certain tidelands in Bolinas Lagoon and Tomales Bay can be developed if the public's right of access and use is preserved.

The Marks vs. Whitney decision, which rose out of a legal battle between Tomales Bay neighbors, was handed down last year by the state Supreme Court and said state tidelands sold to private interests under an 1868 law are subject "to the public trust."

The effect of the high court's ruling was to assert the public right of use over hundreds of thousands of acres of privately owned tidelands throughout the state.

Tidelands are the area between high and low tide.

The Tomales case grew out of a dispute between Larry H. Marks Jr., a tidelot owner, and Peter D. Whitney, owner of a waterfront parcel inboard of the Marks tidelot. The case began in 1963 when Whitney took legal action to block Marks's plan to develop his tidelot.

Whitney argued he had a right to an historic public easement over the tidelot on the ground that the state constitution said such lots were held in trust for the people of the state, and that these rights could not be lost just because the lots were sold by the legislature.

Whitney, in taking the case to the Supreme Court, drew support from conservation groups such as the Sierra Club, while Marks was backed by the Westbay Community Associates, which claims exclusive right to extensive tidelands in San Francisco Bay.

The court's decision recognized that one of the most important public uses of tidelands is their preservation in a "natural state so that they may serve as ecological units for scientific study, as open space, and as environments which provide food and habitat for birds and marine life, and which favorably affect the scenery and climate of the area."

Campaign Talk Of Nixon, Aides

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)— President Nixon called in top aides today for more strategy discussions on his re-election campaign.

Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Nixon's campaign director, Clark MacGregor, joined the President for a dinner meeting at Camp David.

Connally is head of the Democrats-for-Nixon organization and Mitchell is former head of the Nixon re-election committee who headed the President's campaign in 1968.

Kissinger Ends Talks; London And Paris Next

MOSCOW (UPI)—American presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger concluded three days of talks with Soviet leaders today and prepared to fly to London and Paris. He conceled a sidetrip to Leningrad to have more time for the talks.

An American spokesman said a joint Kremlin-White House communique reviewing the talks probably will be issued late tonight or early Thursday.

Kissinger is to leave Moscow by air Thursday morning for London, where he will brief British leaders on the outcome of his session in Moscow. On Friday he will make a similar report to French leaders before returning to Washington.

There were indications he could hold more secret talks in Paris with Le Duc Tho, senior North Vietnamese diplomat in Paris.

En route to Moscow, Kissinger stopped in West Germany to confer with Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Kissinger worked right through what originally had been intended to be a day off with a sidetrip to trour the sights of Leningrad.

Kissinger skiped a performance of the Bolshoi Ballet Tuesday night so as not to break off the talks, diplomatic sources said. They added that today's Leningrad trip also went by the board when he told aides he would remain in conference until his departure for London early Thursday.

The talks, the sources said, should reveal how far Soviet leaders are willing to go towards establishing European security.

Kissinger is to report on the results of his Moscow mission to British and French leaders Thursday and Friday before returning to Washington to brief President Nixon, officials in London and Paris said.

Soviet officials broke two

Stans, Mitchell Face HQ Bugging Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said today he would try to subpoena Maurice Stans and John N. Mitchell to testify on the break-in of Democratic headquarters in the wake of a critical report by the staff of his House Banking Committee on fund-raising for President Nixon.

The report said Stans, finance chairman of Nixon's re-election committee, acknowledged Sept. 5 that he approved secret transfer of at least $100,000 through Mexican banks to the Nixon campaign.

The report said Stans had denied Aug. 30 any knowledge of the potentially illegal campaign fund transfer, then changed his story after William Liedtke, chief southwest fund-raiser for Nixon, told investigators Stans had approved the Mexican transfer on April 3.

A total of $89,000 of the $100,000 which came through Mexico eventually reached the bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of five suspects in the alleged bugging incident June 17, the report said.

The report said the staff was unable to determine who donated the money, but it could have come from illegal contributions if any of the money was from foreign nationals.

The 58-page report and a cover letter from Patman were made available to committee members Tuesday. A committee member provided portions of the report to UPI.

Patman said in an interview

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Korean Problems

SEOUL (UPI) — South and North Korean Red Cross officials failed to reach an agreement today on procedures for reuniting members of 10 million families split by the war and decided to shelve the problems for later settlement.

South Korean sources said a basic difference of approach presents difficulties for the future of the Red Cross talks.

Major differences between the two sides became apparent at the second round of talks that opened at Chosun Hotel in downtown Seoul. The meeting adjourned when they failed to reach agreement.

South Korean Red Cross sources said the major problem was North Korean insistence on injecting politics into the talks by demanding that representatives of social, labor and political organizations participate in the talks.

Trade Agreement

MADRID (UPI) — Spain and the Soviet Union are close to reaching agreement on the first trade treaty between the two countries since Generalissimo Francisco Franco came to power 33 years ago, economic sources said today.

Negotiations for the treaty were initiated last year. They may be completed within a few days, the sources said.

The final phase of the negotiations is being held in Paris which was chosen as a neutral site since the two countries have no diplomatic relations.

The sources said the treaty was aimed at expanding Spain's and the Soviet Union's two-way trade which was a modest $30 million in 1971 but has soared to more than $50 million in the first half of 1972 in anticipation of the agreement.

Vietnam Trial

FT. ORD (UPI) — Two officers killed by a fragmentation grenade in Vietnam had just celebrated a unit farewell party, the opening witness testified Tuesday at the courtmartial of Pvt. Billy D. Smith.

Former 1st Lt. Peter B. Higgins, 25, Harrison, N.J., told the military panel that he was sleeping in the officer's barracks in the same room with the two men who died. Higgins was wounded in the incident.

Capt. Craig J. Casey, the Army prosecutor in the "fragging" case, said the pin from the grenade that exploded in the officers' quarters was found in the pocket of Smith, the 24-year-old defendant from Los Angeles.

Knee Broken

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ann-Margret, whose face was badly battered in a 30-foot fall from a stage platform, also suffered a serious leg injury — a broken kneecap that could cripple her dancing career, it was revealed.

It had been thought earlier that the most serious injuries to the 31-year-old entertainer were a broken left arm, a broken jaw, and five broken bones in her face.

As doctors at UCLA Medical Center prepared to operate Tuesday on her face, it was found she had a serious leg injury, said her manager, Alan Carr.

"They bandaged her leg after the fall and assumed there was no dangerous injury. But X-rays disclosed she had a fractured kneecap," Carr said.

Protestant Strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The Ulster Vanguard Movement said today Protestants would stage a general strike, take to the streets in force and may attack Roman Catholic areas in Northern Ireland if internment ends.

The warning from the militant Protestant movement followed a meeting Tuesday between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Catholic politicians in Northern Ireland. The Catholics appealed to him to order a swift end to the internment of suspected members of the Irish Republican Army IRA.

The Vanguard Movement, which claims 60,000 members, said in a statement Protestant workers would bring the province to a "complete standstill" if Heath ends internment in order to persuade Catholic leaders to attend all-party political talks Sept. 25.

Price Fixing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four major baking companies were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury on charges of fixing the price of the more than $75 million worth of bread they sell each year in the New York metropolitan area.

The defendants are the American Bakeries Co. of Chicago; General Host Corp. and Ward Foods Inc. of New York, and ITT Continental Baking Co. of Rye, N.Y., American Bakeries and ITT Continental are both incorporated in Delaware.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas Kauper said in Washington that the four companies and certain unnamed coconspirators are charged with violating antitrust laws by fixing the prices of Tastee, Bond, Wonder and Tip-Top bread. If convicted, each company faces a maximum penalty of a $50,000 fine.

Noise Control

NEW YORK (UPI) — The city council last night passed overwhelmingly a measure described as the most comprehensive attempt in the nation to control the level of noise.

The Noise Control Code places strict noise limits on air conditioners, air compressors, jackhammers, automobile horns and sirens. It also requires that noise levels be set within one year for subways, railroads and aircraft.

The measure, expected to be signed shortly by Mayor John V. Lindsay, passed the council on a vote of 31 of 5 with one abstention. The vote followed a noisy, 2½ hour session in the council.

Opponents of the code, in particular members of the construction industry and public utilities, have said the measure is too stringent to enforce.

Murder Arrests

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI) — Police acting on an anonymous tip raided a house in the town of Frederiksted yesterday and arrested three men wanted in the submachine gun attack that killed eight Americans last week at a luxurious golf club.

Police, FBI agents and federal marshals continued the search for the remaining two men sought in the slayings. The latest arrests brought to five the number of persons charged with first degree murder.

Police arrested Warren Vallentin, 23; Ismail Labeet, 25, and Rafael Joseph, 21, all of St. Croix, without resistance.

Some Upsets In State Primaries

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Reps. Wayne N. Aspinall and John L. McMillan, House committee chairmen in their 70s, and New Hampshire Gov. Walter Peterson were narrowly defeated Tuesday in the most important developments of primaries in 10 states.

Recounts were likely.

Aspinall lost a Colorado Democratic primary to University of Denver law professor Alan Merson, 38, by 1,500 votes. McMillan fell in a South Carolina Democratic runoff by less than 1,000 votes to State Rep. John Jenrette, 36. Conservative Meldrim Thomson won the Republican primary from Peterson by 2,100 votes.

There were also primaries in Arizona, Florida, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont and Wisconsin. Primaries in Massachusetts next Tuesday and in Hawaii Oct. 7 will complete the state contests for the general election Nov. 7.

The defeat of Aspinall, the 76-year-old chairman of the House Interior Committee, was hailed by the National Campers and Hikers Association Inc. as "a clear-cut victory for environmentalists and outdoor recreation-oriented families."

McMillan, 74, was charged by Jenrette as wasting his seniority by service on the House District Committee, which oversees the local government of the nation's capital. Washington's non-voting delegate to Congress, Walter Fauntroy, said the defeat of McMillan, who has long opposed self-government for the city, was "a great victory for the people of South Carolina and the people of Washington."

Peterson had defeated Thomson in 1968 and 1970 gubernatorial primaries. Thomson will face Democrat Roger J. Crowley, also a conservative, in the November election.

In other key primaries:

Arizona—In races for the House, Reps. Morris Udall, D, and Sam Steiger, R, were unopposed. Rep. John Rhodes, R, led by a 10 to 1 margin.

Florida—Reps. Robert L.F. Sikes and Don Fuqua won Democratic primaries that clinched re-election to the House since *they face no opposition in No*vember. Rep. Claude Pepper also won a Democratic primary, but will be contested by Republican Evelio Estrella.

Minnesota—Sen. Walter F. Mondale easily won the Democratic nomination for a second term. All eight congressmen won nominations.

New Hampshire — Former Gov. Wesley Powell won the Republican nomination to face Sen. Thomas J. McIntire, who was unchallenged for the Democratic nomination.

Utah—Reps. Sherman Lloyd, R, and K. Gunn McKay, D, won nominations.

Vermont—Luther F. Hackett, an old-line Republican, defeated Attorney General James M. Jeffors, a moderate, for the GOP gubernatorial nomination to succeed retiring Gov. Deane C. Davis. Democrat Thomas Salmon was unopposed.

Wisconsin—Republican Reps. Alvin O'Konski and Glen Davis survived serious challenges to win nomination for new terms. Eight other incumbents also won their primary races.

The Police Can Keep Their Band

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The city council voted 9-3 Tuesday to let the police department keep its band, despite arguments by one councilman that the officer-musicians should be "on the street fighting crime."

But another councilman, Gilbert Lindsay, rose to the defense of the band, arguing "there is no better way to reduce crime than through music.

"Show me the man who loves music, and I will show you a man who's friendly, contented and happy. But a man who doesn't like music is hateful, contemptuous and negative."

Auto Chief Says Price Hike Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. President John J. Riccardo argues that price increases for 1973 model cars are necessary because new safety devices required by the government have pushed up costs.

Riccardo was one of the witnesses Tuesday as the federal Price Commission opened hearings into auto pricing policies. Additional sessions were scheduled today and Thursday.

Riccardo argued requests for raises did not "amount to a price increase" because new safety features give the cars an added value.

"A recovery of these costs will not add one cent to the cost of living index," he said.

The automakers have based most of their case for higher prices on the added cost of installing stronger bumpers, flameproof upholstery, tougher doors, and cleaner exhaust systems.

In earlier testimony, Transportation Undersecretary James M. Beggs conceded if these safety features were "added on" to 1973 cars it would cost manufacturers an average $50 to $70 per vehicle.

'Voiceprint' Machine Used By Crimefighters, Younger Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says California crimefighters are using a "voiceprint" machine designed to identify criminals by their voices.

"This machine will permit positive identification of kidnappers, extortionists and obscene phone callers," Younger said Tuesday.

The $10,500 machine compares the voice of a suspect with a tape-recording of the criminal's voice, usually obtained from a telephone threat.

Younger said the unit can even identify disguised or muffled voices, such as that of a person who places a handkerchief over a telephone mouthpiece.

The only problem, he said, will be court challenges. "It's now up to each judge" whether evidence from the machine should be accepted, he said.

Hopefully, Younger said, the voice identification procedure will become as universally accepted as using fingerprints to identify a criminal. But he said it may take 20 years to achieve this kind of acceptance.

Younger said the legal problem is to convince judges that no two persons' voices are the same, as inventors of the unit contend. He said the same problem occurred during the early use of fingerprints when some persons disputed the belief that no two sets of fingerprints are alike.

A New Citizen's Road To Marin

Trying to keep her safe during World War II, Josephine Mazzotti's parents sent her from Rome to the Adriatic coast of northern Italy.

But it proved to be a case of "out of the frying pan, into the fire." Rome escaped bombing, but northern Italy was heavily bombed.

She was sent to the town of Ivenna, seat of the Holy Roman Empire when it moved from Constantinople, about 100 kilometers from Venice.

That was the beginning of the life of recently naturalized Josephine Mazzotti Morse, born in Rome in 1942.

After the war, she returned to Rome where she went to parochial and public schools, studying to be a secretary-translator.

With that background, she became an exchange student in 1959 in the Santa Barbara area.

After her year in this country, she returned to Rome and took a job as secretary-translator for architect Walter Gropius in whose office she met Clifford H. Morse, who was helping Gropius design the University of Baghdad. They married in 1965.

A honeymoon and work took them to Athens for 16 months.

Then the couple returned to the U.S. and settled at Cambridge and Lexington, Mass., near Boston.

They moved to California in 1961 and in December of last year moved to 201 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere.

Mrs. Morse, determined not to let the role of mother and homemaker interfere with ambition, is attending Dominican College and hopes to go on to University of California at Berkeley to become a marine archeologist.

today that in light of the staff findings he would ask the committee to subpoena Stans and Mitchell, former attorney general who was director of Nixon's campaign committee at the time of the June 17 break-in. He also said he would propose public hearings in the case.

Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., a member of the Banking Committee, criticized Patman today for not supplying Stans a copy of the report and said that in the interest of fairness he had sent Stans his copy.

Brown said he had asked Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst for an opinion on the propriety of Patman's committee subpoenaing Stans. He said "it's just absolutely stupid" to call either Stans or Mitchell to testify in public.

Brown also said that prerial publicity of such hearings would make it impossible to convict those who carried out the break-in. "You're not going to convict any of these idiots," he said.

Five men were arrested in the Democratic offices, and were said to have had bugging equipment with them. They have been sued by the Democratic party which this week added Stans and three other persons formerly connected with the Nixon re-election committee as defendants.

Patman had intended to open closed hearings about the incident Thursday with Stans as a witness, but said the former commerce secretary declined to appear. Presumably, for this reason Patman decided to try to make him appear under subpoena.

Patman said it was possible the committee would vote to subpoena other witnesses besides Stans and Mitchell, "but we won't mention further witnesses at this time."

Patman said the hearings would concentrate on the transfer of Nixon campaign funds through Mexico and the granting of a charter to a bank whose incorporators included Dwayne Andreas of Minneapolis. Andreas contributed $25,000 to the Nixon campaign, and his $25,000 was also said to have been traced to the Miami bank account of Barker.

The Banking Committee staff report said $700,000 was taken to the Nixon re-election committee by Roy Winchester, vice president of public relations for the Pennzoil United Corp. April 5, two days before the new campaign disclosure law took effect.

Most of the money was raised in Texas, the report said, but $100,000 came through Mexican banks including the funds which eventually went to Barker.

"It appears that the Committee to Re-Elect the President and its allied groups are willing to go to any lengths to conceal the identity and origins of these checks," Patman said in a cover letter attached to the report.

"We do not know whether these funds ($100,000) were raised in the United States or Mexico and we do not know whether they are the type of funds which could be legally contributed to or received by a political committee.

"Indications are that $100,000 came out of Mexico in one chunk and it is reasonable to question whether or not additional sums traveled these same routes," Patman said.

The report said the comptroller of the currency granted the Andreas bank charter in 88 days, which it said was unusually fast.

The staff said the speed appeared to be unnecessary since the bank could not be ready for business until 1974 or 1975 and the shopping center in which it is to be located has not yet been built.

In another development, U.S. District Judge Charles Richey Tuesday ordered the Democrats to stop taking depositions in their suit against the five bugging suspects until he decided whether the party's lawyers' failure to meet a filing deadline was sufficient reason to dismiss their case.

Richey indicated he was prepared to dismiss the $1 million suit on a technicality — that the Democrats failed to answer within the prescribed five days a motion by Henry B. Rothblatt, attorney for the five defendants.

If Richey threw the case out, it could be immediately refiled, but the delay would be certain to delay trial of the case until well after the Nov. 7 elections.

The attorney for the Democratic National Committee, Harold Unger, missed by one day filing the motion.

WAR

heavy black smoke obscured the target, the command said.

A spokesman said other targets at Kep included two 5,000-gallon petroleum storage tanks that were damaged and a pipeline that was cut in three places.

Phantom Jets escorting fighter-bombers striking near Hanoi shot down three MIGs in two separate dogfights, the command said. A spokesman said at least 12 MIGs and Phantoms took part in the two battles. Spokesmen at first had called it a single dogfight but said later there were two separate actions.

The command in a delayed report said two more Phantoms were shot down over North Vietnam Monday. The command earlier reported one F4 shot down in a dogfight Monday but today announced the downing of the other two by Communist antiaircraft fire. The two crewmen from the MIG-downed Phanton were missing but there was no report on the fate of the crewmen from the other two aircraft.

A command spokesman said other fighter-bombers in Tuesday's raids into the North struck the Thanh Hoa railroad and highway bridge 83 miles south of Hanoi for the second consecutive day. Laser bombs knocked out three spans of the link between Hanoi and Haiphong Monday but there was no report of damage in Tuesday's strike.

UPI reporter Ted Kurrus, reporting from Quang Tri, said the marines with allied air support stopped a Communist effort to reinforce the Citadel across sandbars in the Thach Han River north of the city.

Military sources told Kurrus the marines and aircraft sank four sampans, recovered 47 bodies and captured more than 100 weapons. They estimated total Communist dead at 100.

Marines inside the Citadel were well dug in against North Vietnamese rocket and machine-gun fire from the fortress walls, Kurrus reported.

Saigon sources said the entire marine division of about 12,000 men killed 403 North Vietnamese in fighting throughout the city Tuesday at a cost of 16 government soldiers dead and 119 wounded. But a military source in Da Nang said Marine casualties since the Citadel was breached have been averaging 100 a day.

Court Rules On Ballot Markings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For a vote to count on a California ballot, the cross-mark must be at least partly within the designated square, the state Court of Appeal has ruled.

The ruling came Monday on a case brought by George Livingston, a Richmond city councilman who sought re-election in May 11, 1971, balloting.

Three councilmen were to be selected from a number of candidates, but some ballots were disallowed because the cross-marks were outside the square. Livingston and another candidate, Richard N. Nelson, wound up with the same number of votes and neither was elected. Livingston would have won if the disallowed ballots had been counted.

Sausalito Arrest Of North Dakota Man

A 24-year-old man from North Dakota was arrested last night on Bridgeway, in downtown Susalito, on suspicion of being drunk in public and possessing a bag of marijuana, police reported.

The man, Ben Chimak Bercier, was arrested at about 9:30 p.m. and booked into Marin County Jail. He was held in lieu of $500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

dispatches, indicating they had been briefed by a high-level official who was not identified in their articles.

The Post said Israel is expected to meet the guerrillas "on their own terms. . .using tactics which would be both unconventional and damaging."

The paper noted "Israel's ability to adapt to unconventional situations" by citing the 1960 kidnap capture of former Nazi SS Col. Adolf Eichmann in South America.

The Post added: "There is no guarantee that the situation will not deteriorate, escalating into full-scale conventional warfare between Israel and its neighbors."

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said "it is clear now that Israel, while preparing to resume its aggression along the northern front Syria and Lebanon, has the unlimited support of the United States."

Al Ahram and another Cairo newspaper, Al Akhbar, said the U.S. veto in the United Nations means only one thing: "to give the justification of the Israeli aggression against Syria and Lebanon and provide a pretext for new acts of aggression Israel is preparing.

LANDS

Population pressures and demands for recreational property made preservation of the public trust "of great public importance," the court said.

Both Marks and Whitney were in the standing-room-only audience yesterday. Neither spoke.

However, Supervisor Louis H. Baar did, branding the decision political rather than legal.

"The court's action wasn't a legal decision, it was poltiical," brooded Baar, a real estate agent. "The original act (permitting state sale) makes mention of reclamation. If they (property owners) have reclaimed it, don't they have a right to use it?"

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney responded that "Whether it's political or legal, once the Supreme Court says it, it's law."

Robert A. Roumiguiere, who helped create the Tidelands Property Owners Association to fight the ruling, said the board was responsible to protect property owners who have paid high taxes on their land for years. The ruling covers 500 parcels in Marin.

San Rafael Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the association, said it was up to local governments to decide what "public trust" means to individual parcels.

He suggested state legislation to provide financial relief to property owners adversely affected. Also, criteria under which tidelands could be developed if the public's access and use were preserved.

"Don't surrender to the awful temptation of outright confiscation of land," he warned.

Among others urging a narrow interpretation of the decision were Seadrift developer Roger Kent, wildlife painter Stanley W. Galli, Jerry Friedman of the Environmental Action Committee, San Rafael Attorney Warren Perry and Supervisorial candidate Gary Giacomini.

County Counsel Maloney said exact survey lines from the 1860's were nonexistent, thus making it difficult to establish exactly what lands fall under the decision. He suggested new studies by the department of public works to establish tide lines in 1868.

Further, he said, some lands the state says are included are "uplands" which have never been subject to tidal flow.

"It is obvious that this land should not therefore be treated as if the owners' rights are restricted," he said.

He said owners of tidelands which have already been improved with homes should be reimbursed by the state for the improvements if the state seeks to have them removed.

Supervisors agreed, however, legislation should be sought to make such improvements legal instead.

The board's unanimous decision to seek means of accommodating both public and private rights came after a parade of property owners protested the court's action.

Galli, who owns tideland property near Inverness, termed it "confiscation by interpretation without compensation."

Others complained of paying taxes for years only to find that the high court's decision had made their land "virtually worthless" since it couldn't be developed or sold.

The matter will come back to the board in January after the legal staff has developed the requested criteria under which the lands can be developed.

Suit Filed In Gay Speech Case

The American Civil Liberties Union today filed suit in Marin Superior Court over the refusal of the Novato School District to allow a homosexual to speak to a San Marin High School class in June, and a judge ordered the district to show cause why its actions shouldn't be overturned.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set the hearing for Sept. 28 on the order on behalf of three teachers, students from San Marin and their parents, the homosexual group, Society for Individual Rights, and Robert Robillard, a member of the group who was turned away when he tried to address students June 7.

The suit names the school district, , its board of trustees, Supt. James G. Bunker and San Marin Principal Henry J. Moroski.

The suit asks that a judge declare the activities of the teachers and the gay group protected by the U.S. constitutional guarantees of free speech and association.

It further asks an order allowing appearances by Robillard and other members of his society when invited, and an order removing letters of reprimand from the files of the two teachers who invited Robillard, and then ignored an order by Bunker and Moroski forbidding the speech.

The incident began June 1 when social studies teachers Kristina O'Donnell and Lawrence Siegel arranged for Robillard to address their classes on minority rights and personal philosophy six days later.

According to the suit, the teachers required written permission from parents for the talk on discrimination against homosexuals and arranged alternate study for students whose parents objected.

Despite the procedure, Moroski and Bunker forbade the appearance, the teachers refused to back down, Robillard arrived at the school as scheduled and was turned away by Moroski.

On June 20, the district board reprimanded the teachers for insubordination.

The suit contends the reprimands were given although the district violated rights of free speech and association, the state education code, the district's own rules and "discriminated against petitioner Robillard solely on the grounds on his sex."

According to the suit, all those who joined in it desire that controversial views "be heard in a classroom setting under the supervision and with the guidance of teachers."

Guilty Plea To Use Of Heroin

John David Anderson, 47, of San Anselmo, pleaded guilty yesterday to a misdemeanor count of being under the influence of heroin, and a felony count of burglary was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman scheduled sentencing for Oct. 6 after accepting the plea.

Anderson, originally charged only with burglary, was arrested Aug. 29 by San Rafael police after another man found him asleep in a taxicab in a parking lot on Bellam Boulevard in San Rafael.

Police said the cab's ignition wires had been tampered with.

Coast Guard Aids In Saving Boat

Coast Guard units helped save a Corte Madera man's fishing boat from sinking yesterday.

Frank Pomilia of 613 Meadowsweet Drive radioed at 11:54 a.m. that his 33-foot vessel, "Josephine," was filling with water and that he was heading for Fort Point from outside the Golden Gate. A Coast Guard cutter helped pump out the craft, then towed it to the Sausalito Marin Yard, Coast Guard spokesman reported.

Golf Bags Stolen As Golfer Watches

A golf bag and clubs valued at $400 were taken about 7:35 p.m. yesterday from the second tee at San Rafael's Las Gallinas Golf Club at 4480 Redwood Highway, James Mullowney, 15, of 625 Idleberry Road, San Rafael, told police.

Mullowney said he laid his clubs down for a few minutes and a male Caucasian 19 to 20 years old with brown hair took the clubs and fled in a black car.

VISIT

days of silence late Tuesday with a brief dispatch saying Kissinger was the luncheon guest of Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Neither Russian nor U.S. officials would say whether Kissinger also had talked with Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. In announcing Kissinger's trip a week ago, the White House said he would be seeing both men.

One of Kinninger's assignments was to get Russian agreement to negotiations on arms and troops reductions in central Europe, diplomatic sources said.

The United States wants the negotiations to start before, or at least run simultaneously with, the European security conference Nixon and Brezhnev agreed upon during the Moscow meeting last May.

The United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies have withheld agreement to a Nov. 22 meeting in Helsinki to prepare the security conference pending Russian acceptance of the arms issue.

Up to the time of Kissinger's arrival Sunday night, Soviet officials had been evasive, and Soviet writers commenting on European security noticeably omitted mention of arms reduction.

Diplomatic sources said the European security conference will devote most of its time to hammering out principles governing relations between states. But the Western powers want something more substantial, the sources added.

The sources said Vietnam played a considerable role in Kissinger's talks in Moscow, raising the possibility Kissinger would see North Vietnam's top negotiator, Le Duc Tho, while in Paris.

Marin Barbecue To Be Potluck

The Chicano barbecue at College of Marin on Sunday at 11 a.m. is a potluck affair, emphasizes Bill Acosta, college bilingual community liaison officer who is coordinating the event.

Everyone attending the day's events, must bring his own food, he said, although admission, Spanish-speaking movies and live band music is free.

The gathering, sponsored by La Famila, a San Rafael Chicano organization, is designed to get Marin's Chicano community together.

Harry's The Name

PARIS (UPI) — The first Harry's Bar, made famous by Ernest Hemingway and his set, was established in Paris, but there are well known copies in Venice, Milan, Rome, and Florence. Actually, Venice's Harry's Bar is the best known and was named for Harry Pickering, an alcoholic from Boston who put up the money with which Guiseppe Cipriani opened the bar-restaurant in 1931.

OBITUARIES

MARY LAWRENCE

Funeral for Mary Lawrence of San Anselmo was held Saturday at the Chapel of the Hills.

Mrs. Lawrence, who was 85, died Sept. 6 in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Austria, Mrs. Lawrence came to the United States in the early 1920's. She moved to Marin County from San Francisco 12 years ago, and made her home at 250 Magnolia Avenue.

Mrs. Lawrence was active with the San Anselmo congregation of Jehovah's Witness church.

Manzanita Tiff Plan Is Offered

The Mill Valley Human Rights miniboard last night suggested the county human rights commission step into the controversy between the Sausalito School District and the Marin City Learning Center.

The school district and the private school in Marin City have squared off against one another over use of the abandoned Manzanita School.

Board chairman William Broderick said the miniboard decided it would be presumptuous for it to make any specific recommendations for a solution to the heated situation at the school.

A group of Marin City residents took over the vacant school in July and have held classes in the building since Monday. The learning center was founded last year by a group of Marin City parents who were unhappy with their children's education in the Sausalito school system.

Their occupation of the school building was declared illegal tresspassing Monday night by the Sausalito School District board, which instructed Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to take all necessary action to have the teachers and students removed from the building.

Aide Moves Up In Farm Bureau

James L. Spaletta of Inverness, first vice president of the Marin County Farm Bureau, has assumed the job of president until next February.

Alfred L. Poncia of Tomales, who was reelected president last February has been unable to serve because of the press of other business, and Spaletta took the post at a board meeting yesterday.

Bureau directors agreed to decorate a shop window at Point Reyes Station to observe Farm Bureau Week, Oct. 1-7.

Tools Missing

Tools valued at $1,195 were taken between 4:45 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. yesterday from a storage shed near the Bahia School, Stanford E. Bethrens, employee of McKeon Construction Co. of 1050 Northgate Drive, San Rafael, yesterday told San Rafael police.

Redevelop Plan Draft Adopted

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night unanimously adopted a preliminary plan outlining the aims and establishing the boundaries of the San Rafael redevelopment project area. (Another planning commission story, page 1.)

The plan — drawn up by redevelopment agency staff and consultants — is a rough draft of a precise plan to be arrived at by early October, according to William J. Bielser, the agency's executive director.

The area designated by the preliminary plan for redevelopment has essentially the same boundaries established last May by the city council, which acts as the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency.

The area encompasses downtown San Rafael, the commercial core along Francisco Boulevard, and East San Rafael, stretching roughly from Fourth and H streets in the west to Point San Pedro Road in the north and Point San Quentin in the south.

The aim of redevelopment is to spark economic growth within the redevelopment area, according to the plan. Under state law, a rdevelopment agency can freeze the current assessed valuation level within redevelopment boundaries and use future increases for self-financing.

Along with general objectives such as beautification, improving traffic flow and providing for new businesses while improving existing business, the plan recommends upgrading Fourth Street, providing downtown parking and making street improvements.

The preliminary plan also urges development of a detailed marketing survey; creation of recreational facilities; upgrading fire station headquarters; expansion of Boyd and Bahia Vista parks and city hall additions.

Redevelopment would involve acquisition, demolition and rehabilitation of property.

The final plan will be aired at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Oct. 24 in city hall, according to Bielser.

One resident last night criticized freezing assessed valuation to finance redevelopment and said the method was nothing more than "robbing Peter to save Paul."

Bielser said redevelopment would eventually increase total assessed valuation by improving property values, resulting in more revenue for everyone. "The tax loss just isn't there in the long run," he said.

(The county is currently investigating way of blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans, charging the proposal will leave school districts and other taxing entities with less revenue than they would otherwise enjoy.)

Another resident, worried about moderate income housing in the redevelopment area, was told that the agency would make provisions for it.

Bielser — praised by the commission for an "outstanding job" — said all property owners within the redevelopment area would be notified before October's public hearing.

Phony Brinks Guards Get $300,000

MENTOR, Ohio (UPI)—Two men who gave faultless performances as Brinks' guards walked off with more than $300,000 Tuesday from a branch here of the Lake County National Bank.

The ruse became evident only when the real guards arrived an hour after the imposters had departed in what police said was an armored car.

The imposters arrived at the Great Lakes Mall branch bank in official-looking gray uniforms and caps, handguns slung from their belts.

They passed through a check-in procedure at which time their credentials and signatures were checked. Both appeared authentic, bank president Albert R. Pike said.

"The procedure was pretty much foolproof, we thought," Pike said.

Ten minutes later the two men pushed a cart loaded with six money bags containing more than $300,000 in currency from the bank to the parking lot and departed.

Branch Manager David Gibb was in the bank along with 20 employes and about 15 customers at the time, but nothing the men did raised their suspicions.

"They conducted themselves like Brinks' guards would," Pike said.

Because they entered the bank by a rear windowless door, regularly used by Brinks, no one inside saw their getaway vehicle.

Separate Fact From Fiction, Would-Be Corona Jurors Told

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—Prospective jurors were told to separate "fact from fiction" if the state attempts to link mass-murder suspect Juan V. Corona to an alleged "death list" containing some of the names of 25 victims.

Defense attorney Richard Hawk told a would-be juror Tuesday that state handwriting experts that will testify during the trial "are just going to give an opinion."

"You can either accept that or reject it. Listen carefully when these handwriting men come here so you can tell how much is fact and how much is fiction."

Hawk asked that the jury panel member "take into account that they (the handwriting experts) are being paid by the state."

The handwriting controversy centers around a green ledger allegedly confiscated by sheriff's deputies when they arrested the 38-year-old Corona at his Yuba City, Calif. home in a predawn raid May 26, 1971.

Corona, accused of killing 25 persons and burying their bodies along the banks of the Feather River, recently relented to a demand for fresh handwriting samples the state wanted to compare with writing in the ledger.

A source close to the investigation told UPI that the prosecution is "highly satisfied" with the results of comparisons conducted by private handwriting experts.

"They match up beautifully," the source said.

Hub Approval Of New Care Center

The San Anselmo City Council last night backed the city's planning commission and approved operation of a child day care center at 241 Los Angeles Boulevard.

The center, run by Linda Hersh, will take care of a maximum of 10 children between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The council turned down an appeal by Earl L. Kemp of 256 Los Angeles Boulevard and several other area residents who said they objected to the noise of children and the increased traffic the center would bring to the neighborhood.

"This is getting to be a little too much," Kemp said and presented the council with a 15-name petition opposing the center.

Kemp said the street holds at least three other day care centers.

Charles R. Leitzell, public works director, informed the council that one had been established before zoning regulations were in effect, another was on county property, and said the city knew nothing about a third care center on the street.

The council put aside a suggestion by Councilman Kenneth G. Anderson that it table the matter until the city investigate how many day care centers actually were in the neighborhood.

The day care center was approved for a three-month period with Mayor Warren R. Perry and Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro voting against it.

The council set Oct. 2 as the deadline to accept applications for the post of San Anselmo City Attorney.

Seven applications have been received so far, and the council will advertise in a legal paper for the spot.

Councilmen Martin G. Blinder and Kenneth L. Anderson presented the council with a list of 14 questions each applicant will be required to answer after his application is received.

The San Anselmo City Council Also:

WOLFBACK RIDGE — Supported a Sausalito resolution that 180 acres of Wolfback Ridge be included in the proposed Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

TRELLIS — Granted Ted Smith permission to keep a trellis at the rear of 634 San Anselmo Avenue which encroaches on city property.

EASEMENT — Granted a 99-year encroachment easement at 241 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard for a fee of $2,000 to Mozart Kaufman for property bordering on San Anselmo Creek.

LIBRARY — Entered into a joint-library agreement with Marin County Free Library by joining the North Bay Cooperative Library System, and approved hiring of Margaret Mollenkopf as half-time librarian in San Anselmo Library.

PARCELS — Accepted certain odd-shaped lots, tax-deeded property, on Carlson Court, Loma Robles Drive, and Indian Rock Court.

GENERAL PLAN — Approved $1,533 budget for Citizens' Committee on the General Plan to be used for part-time clerk-typist and materials.

CARRIAGE HOUSE — Approved transfer of $3,800 from Robson-Hartington Park reserve fund to complete restoration of carriage house.

KTIM — Agreed to participate in radio station KTIM's bi-weekly public affairs program, and named Mayor Warren R. Perry to be first council representative.

GASOLINE SIGNS — Passed sign ordinance prohibiting free-standing gasoline price signs in service stations.

Candidate Hurt As Auto Flips

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)— Democrat Will Knedlik, running for lieutenant governor, was "scratched and bruised" Tuesday when he tried to avoid a deer crossing a highway near Spokane and his car rolled over two or three times.

The candidate said he would continue his speaking engagements.

"I don't feel very well but I'm happy to be alive," said Knedlik.

It wasn't his first injury in the campaign. While walking through the state this summer to get his name before the public, Knedlik was struck on the head and robbed in a service station restroom.

San Anselmo To Continue Prosecution

San Anselmo will continue to take owners of illegal backyard cottages and basement apartments to court, despite a move last night by Councilman Lewis W. Stewart to halt the practice until a general plan is adopted.

Stewart was overruled 3-2 on a motion to drop litigation until the council has weighed a citizen's group finding on illegal and nonconforming units. These include units dating prior to 1926.

Councilman Martin G. Blinder voted with Stewart.

Had the motion carried, it would have halted the city's long standing case against an alleged illegal apartment occupied by Gay Kagy at 280 Redwood Avenue.

Stewart's motion, which caught the council by surprise, came after it indicated it would take no action on the citizen's committee report on nonconforming uses.

The study, begun in 1970, was presentedto the council in Aug. 1971 and was never acted upon. It has since shuttled between the planning commission and the council.

According to Stewart, the report found that these dwellings, though technically illegal, provide low-cost housing in San Anselmo. It recommends they be regulated, not banned outright.

In the meantime, the city started legal action to wipe out San Anselmo's 83 illegal dwelling units in R-I districts.

Mayor Warren R. Perry said that he recognized the need for low-cost housing in San Anselmo., but added, "It wouldn't be right to adopt a policy which would open the door to a population explosion of units in every garage, attic and loft."

Perry appointed Stewart and Councilman Kenneth L. Anderson to extract a policy statement from the lengthy citizen's report for consideration by council at the next meeting.

Wells For 'Dinner'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Orson Wells will star in a 90-minute Hallmark Hall of Fame production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" for NBC in the role of Sheridan Whiteside.

Sausalito College Blessed By Council

The Sausalito City Council gave its blessing last night to the new College of California at Sausalito which hopes to make its home on the second floor of the Schoonamaker Building.

The college was begun last year in Sausalito by several educators who were disenchanted with the direction and emphasis of traditional colleges and universities in the country. Its three-year bachelor's degree program and student-oriented curriculum attractrd about 18 students and 10 teachers last year.

College President John Leary told the city council he anticipates a jump in enrollment this year to between 60 and 80 students.

Lacking a permanent home, the new college held classes last year in churches, the Sausalito Art Center, a houseboat and the president's home.

This year, Leary said the school wants to move under one roof. It will apply for an occupancy permit for the Schoonmaker Building tomorrow from planning director Eric Borgwardt.

Borgwardt said the application does not have to be referred to the city council or the planning commission and he expects to approve the application as an administrative decision.

When the council asked for a rough outline of the college's future, Leary said he hoped the college could eventually move into the Martin Luther King School or build its own classrooms and auditorium on an undeveloped piece of land in Sausalito.

While he said he could not be certain, Leary predicted the enrollment at new college would swell to between 250 and 300 students.

Each of the councilmen at last night's special meeting expressed concern over the possible impact such an expansion could have on city services, but no one concluded the college would present an intolerable burden.

At the suggestion of Councilmen Evert Heynneman, the council agreed to withhold any Carte Blanche approval of the college's future growth plans until the impact of its growing enrollment can be evaluated.

95 Cases Of Strep Reported In Marin

Streptococcus infection, with 95 cases reported, was the most prevalent communicable disease reported last week to the Marin County Health Department, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, health officer.

Twenty-three cases of gonorrhea, one case of mumps, two cases of syphillis, and four cases of infectuous hepatitis were reported during the same period.

Sausalito Waterfront Issue Forces Redevelopment Delay

In lengthy rehashing of a familiar topic, the Sausalito City Council last night agreed that the creation of a redevelopment agency in Marinship should be postponed until a precise plan for the entire waterfront in Sausalito is prepared.

The council started discussing the feasibility of a redevelopment agency in an informal studysession, but soon got sidetracked on the city's larger planning problem.

After City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr outlined the powers of a redevelopment agency and the procedure required to establish one, Councilman Evert Heynneman said he was against planning for only one isolated section of the waterfront.

Restating a position he had advocated for months, Heynneman said the city needs a total plan which precisely and logically indicates how each portion of the waterfront should be used.

Planning for a fragment of the waterfront — such as the Marinship area — would lead to chaos, said Heynneman.

Councilman Earl F. Dunphy disagreed, saying the council could move forward on a section of the waterfront before a plan for the entire area was completed.

But, despite Dunphy's remarks, the council agreed on the importance of an overall plan of the waterfront.

As Mayor Robin Sweeny said, "the only problem now is manpower."

The council discussed the possibility of hiring an assistant planner to relieve Planning Director Eric Borgwardt of his day-to-day responsibilities, but postponed any decision until its next regular meeting Tuesday.

The council agreed that Borgwardt would have enough time to prepare such a waterfront study only if he was given help with routine planning chores.

The original idea of a redevelopment agency was lost in the discussion of the precise plan and the assistant planner.

Under California law, designation of a redevelopment area and creation of a redevelopment agency freezes the assessed valuation in the area in so far as various taxing districts, such as schools are concerned.

Increased tax revenues from higher assessed valuation goes to the redevelopment agency until bonds sold to finance redevelopment are repaid, at which time other taxing agencies participate in the higher returns.

Earthquake Causes Panic In Greece

ATHENS (UPI)—An earth tremor rocked much of Greece today, causing panic among the population.

The tremor, which occurred at 6:15 a.m. (12:15 a.m. EDT), registered six on the Richter scale, and its epicenter was 60 miles from Athens, a national observatory spokesman said.

Enterprise Off For Vietnam

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)— The largest ship in the Navy, the carrier Enterprise, headed for Vietnam Tuesday, sailing smoothly past a "people's blockade" of tiny boats.

About 20 small craft, including canoes, kayaks and skiffs, were left floundering in San Francisco Bay when the world's largest warship passed under the Golden Gate.

Ten antiwar demonstrators were rescued by Coast Guard vessels, some after jumping from their boats and others when their craft capsized.

The 89,000-ton carrier left the naval shipyard with 4,000 crewmen while relatives and friends waved from the docks and about 150 antiwar protesters marched outside the base gates.

Congress Passes Revenue Sharing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the fiscal relief of officials in 50 states and 38,700 towns, townships, cities and counties, both houses of Congress now have passed bills to share about $30 billion in federal revenue with local and state governments over the next five years.

But whether the legislation will live up to its backers' promises and decelerate local and state tax increases remains in doubt.

The billions provided from the federal treasury amount to only a small fraction of what state and local governments spend and their spending in most places still trends upward.

The Senate adopted its bill by a vote of 63 to 20 Tuesday night. House approval of a different version occurred in June.

Now a House-Senate conference committee must meet to approve a compromise version which will get quick ratification from both chambers and be sent to President Nixon, who first broached the idea to Congress in August, 1969.

The Senate bill, reflecting rural strength in that body, is more generous to 33 rural states—at the expense of 17 urban states and the District of Columbia—than the House bill, where city strength is felt.

The likelihood is that the Senate's view will largely prevail in the compromise that finally emerges. Urban state senators complained in vain that the bill was "discriminatory" against their states, which, they said, needed help most.

Both bills provide $29.6 billion over five years. The first year grant is $5.3 billion. Two-thirds would be made available to county and local governments with the rest to be spent by state legislatures.

The Senate bill, however, also provided $1 billion a year for state-run "social services" programs to get off or keep off the welfare rolls people who are past, present or potential welfare recipients. The "social services" money can be spent for a variety of programs, from job counseling to family planning.

The $1 billion actually represents a cutback on a program that had been running at $2 billion a year and—as more states learned to master it—was expected to grow to $4 billion quickly.

Urban states which had been first to take advantage of the "social services" money were again the victims of the $1 billion ceiling. It may be dropped by the conference committee.

Governors, mayors and county commissioners, hard pressed for funds and reluctant to increase taxes, had lobbied hard for revenue sharing. Some pictured it as their only hope of staving off fiscal disaster at the local level.

The bill—keystone of Nixon's "new American revolution" proposal to turn power back to local government—carries no restrictions on how the money can be spent. Critics contended this would lead to irresponsible spending.

New Pact For Jet Mechanics

BURLINGAME (UPI)—United Air Lines mechanics across the nation have ratified a new contract creating an improved retirement program, the International Association of Machinists announced Tuesday night.

George J. Robinson, president and general chairman of District Lodge 141, said the new program would provide for increased benefits and would enable mechanics to retire at age 55.

The 20-month contract provided for a $6.20 an hour pay rate retroactive to Jan. 1 with a 40-cent increase next Jan. 1.

The IAM represents about 17,000 UAL mechanics.

Socialist Candidate In TV Time Dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Linda Jenness, presidential candidate of the Socialist Workers Party, is in a battle with the National Broadcasting Co. The network denied her request for equal time to answer a speech by Sen. George McGovern on grounds that at 31 she is too young to be president and therefore is not entitled to equal time.

"NBC is denying the American people their right to hear all the candidates when it denies Linda Jenness her right to equal time," she said Monday when she announced plans to picket the network's New York headquarters.

Devices Will End Fish Kills

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — All dams on the Columbia and Snake River systems of the Northwest will have devices installed to prevent fish kills due to nitrogen supersaturation by 1978, the Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday.

Traveling screens and a "flip lip" device are designed to help alleviate the problem which has killed thousands of migratory fish during the past several years.

Nitrogen supersaturation is caused by water falling over the spillway of dams into deep pools below.

38,000 Fewer Children In California Schools

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Schools Supt. Wilson Riles says 38,000 fewer children have enrolled for the current fall term in California classrooms and predicts another 1,000 reduction in teachers.

Riles also told a news conference yesterday that 16 schools have begun year-around programs.

He estimated a .8 per cent drop off in school enrollment this fall, for a net decline of 38,000 students, and said the continuing gradual decline should persist until 1978 "when we expect enrollment to level off and gradually increase again."

Kindergarten through the fifth grade will decrease by 54,000 youngsters while the upper seven grades will increase by 16,000 the superintendent of public instruction said. Total enrollment should be 4,386 million.

Population experts at the state Department of Finance generally attribute the decline in school enrollment at the lower grades to the end of the "baby boom" starting in 1963 and to be a parallel drop in net migration to California.

Riles had more bad news for teachers, estimating that their employed numbers will drop by another 1,000 from last year to 190,000. He said an earlier survey indicated there were 5,000 jobless teachers in California.

NICE TRY ANYWAY

Julie Nixon Eisenhower tried a few shots at pool yesterday while touring a rest home for the elderly in Cleveland, Ohio. She missed the pockets twice in a row, however, and gave up. She was in Ohio campaigning for her father's reelection.

'Obscene' Answers To Mailings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A campaign to combat radical ideas on university campuses got a rough reception at Stanford, a public relations man declared Tuesday.

Gregory I. Topper of the Campus Studies Institute told the Rotary Club that mailings were sent to students on 10 campuses and that more than half the returns from Stanford were "obscene scrawls."

"Stanford students had by far the most childish, immature and obscene response," he declared.

For the total mailing, he said 60 per cent of the replies from the campuses "agreed generally" with the institute's message.

The other schools were Columbia, Cornell, California state universities at Fullerton and San Diego, University of California campuses at San Diego and Irvine, the University of San Diego, and Connecticut's Westfield State College.

Theodore B. Loeffler, a San Diego printer, founded the institute three years ago to try to "balance the education being given our young people." Its mailings contain arguments promoting human liberty and capitalism.

Owner Loyal To Her Gardeners

LONDON (AP) — A 70-year-old widow sold her home for 80,000 pounds ($208,000) — and bought it back a couple of weeks later for 86,000 ($223,600) because "I heard the six gardeners might have to go."

Mrs. Dorothy Pierson's mock-Tudor mansion stands in 25 acres near Ipswich. There are landscaped gardens, a tree-lined drive and a swimming pool.

Mrs. Pierson said, "My gardeners worked tremendously hard to make the grounds beautiful. I wouldn't like them to lose their jobs through any action of mine."

The house, with 14 bedrooms and six bathrooms, is too big to live in alone, so Mrs. Pierson plans to build a bungalow for herself in those lovely gardens. She still hopes to sell the house.

McGovern, Nixon Jockey For N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Early polls give PresidentNixon a wide lead over Sen. George S. McGovern in New York state, but even the most optimistic Republicans agree the gap will be narrowed considerably by election day.

Aware that the present strong lead cannot be maintained, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman of the President's New York campaign, is acting like Nixon is the underdog. Rockefeller has assembled the same skilled team that won him the governorship four times and has put a price tag of $1 million to $1.5 million on the effort.

McGovern supporters are conducting a vigorous voter registration drive, which includes use of mobile registration units which are signing up thousands of persons, many of them black and young, particularly in New York City.

In addition, a million young people will be allowed to vote in New York for the first time this year. A state law requires they vote at home, or by absentee ballot.

Democrats outregister Republicans by nearly one million in the state, but that is not always evident at the polls, what with Rockefeller in the statehouse, Republicans James L. Buckley and Jacob K. Javits in the U.S. Senate, and both houses of the state legislature are under GOP control.

However, a Republican presidential candidate has not carried New York state since Dwight Eisenhower in 1956. Nixon lost to John F. Kennedy by 371,000 votes in 1960, and four years ago Hubert H. Humphrey carried New York by 384,000 over Nixon.

If the polls are correct, Nixon could reverse the result on Nov. 7. "Certainly at this point every sign indicates a successful campaign, but election day is two months away," State Republican Chairman Charles T. Lanigan said.

"The vote in New York State is closer now than in other northern industrial states, and there is always a normal closing of the gap between opposing candidates as election day approaches.

"I'm urging our workers and our candidates not to be hypnotized by the hustlers who are predicting a Nixon steamroller will carry the entire GOP ticket to victory in New York this year."

As it did nationally, the McGovern campaign got off to a slow start in New York. The smooth organization that brought the South Dakota senator a primary landslide in June somehow fell apart and is just now being put back together.

The campaign is being headed by former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who still has excellent political ties in the Democratic-rich city even though he has been out of city hall seven years. His selection was also seen as a good way to try to heal wounds the young, independent McGovern forces inflicted on old line Democrats in the primary.

The Democrats are concentrating on their normal stronghold in New York city. In some parts of upstate New York, McGovern is as unpopular as was Arthur Goldberg when he was the Democratic nominee for governor against Rockefeller two years ago.

"I did a good job making myself scare when the Goldberg people came to town looking for me in 1970," one Democratic state legislator who represents a heavily Republican upstate district said, "and I plan to do the same thing when the McGovern people come around this year."

But in other parts of upstate, especially around Buffalo and Utica, local Democratic candidates are identifying with McGovern, especially on issues like unemployment.

The McGovern campaign lost ground last week when he failed to get endorsement of the state's 2 million member AFL-CIO. Rockefeller, who succeeded in winning the union's endorsement in 1970, skillfully maneuvered the AFL-CIO convention into taking no stand on the presidential race.

Hearing Slated In Check Fraud

A 29-year-old Marinwood man who allegedly tried to cash a check on a closed account at a Novato market last month has pleaded innocent to a charge of passing a fraudulent check.

A preliminary hearing for David Hennessy is scheduled for next Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Novato police arrested him Aug. 29 at the Cala Market, 1530 Center Road, when he tried to cash a check on an account on which 70 checks totaling $5,400 have been cashed in the Bay Area since the account was closed in May.

Police said Hennessy described himself as a heroin addict with a habit costing $200 a day.

District Decides On Advisory Groups

The Bolinas-Stinson School District last night decided to establish three advisory groups to offar it background information and policy recommendations on matters of finance, curriculum and organization.

According to Supt. Lester M. Horning, members of the advisory committees will soon be sought by a mailing from the district office.

Commission Warns City To Expect Earthquake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A city commission warned again Tuesday that San Francisco can expect another earthquake and urged enforcement of a law which demands that parapets be strengthened or removed.

Enforcement of the parapet law is "the number one seismic priority because it would save the most laws for the money expended," said the Seismic Investigation and Hazard Survey Advisory Committee.

In 1969 the city passed an ordinance requiring that all parapets, gargoyles, overhangs and other buildingappendages be strengthened or removed so that they would not fall on humans in the event of a quake. Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has so far rejected requests from the Department of Public Works to enforce the law.

His office saidthat federal funds were being sought for the work since "it's a perfect opportunity to use federal emergency employment funds ... to help unemployed engineers and other technical people."

Forgery Charge Hearing On Tap

A preliminary hearing for a 48-year-old Sausalito man charged with three counts of forging prescriptions for dexadrine and doriden has been scheduled for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Clyde Wilson Collings Jr. was arrested Aug. 23 by an investigator of the state Department of Consumer Affairs on a warrant charging he had passed forged prescriptions at the Corner Drugstore in Sausalito on March 17, April 15 and July 21.

The prescriptions bore the name of a Los Angeles doctor who said he never wrote them, the agent said.

Felony Dope Charges Against Two Novatans

Two Novato residents arrested after they allegedly threw a five-gallon bag of water containing goldfish at Novato Police were bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on felony drug charges.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of municipal court ordered Donald Paul Seaman, 37, and Judith Elaine Neil, 28, to appear on Sept. 28.

Seaman is charged with a felony, possessing marijuana for sale, and two misdemeanors, assault on a policeman and having a marijuana smoking device. Miss Neil is charged only with the felony.

They were arrested May 28 by two officers who said Seaman hurled the water at them on the grounds of the Western Country Fair.

During a search, police said, possible marijuana and a list of clients was found. More possible marijuana was found at Seaman's residence, police said.

Three other brothers arrested in the ensuing investigation have denied drug charges and Smallman is scheduled to decide tomorrow whether there is enough evidence to try them and whether their home was legally searched.

The three are, Patrick Gingher, 24, charged with having pot, Michael David Gingher, 21, charged with possessing marijuana for sale, and Kevin John Gingher, 20, charged with possessing narcotics equipment, a misdemeanor.

Canal Approved

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Bakersfield voters yesterday approved by a near 3-1 majority a $17.5 million bond issue to finance a 17-mile canal which will bring California Aqueduct water to the city.

Police Patrol German Airports

BONN (UPI)—Border police armed with machineguns patrolled the nation's airports today, and government sources said security agents had launched an investigation into the backgrounds of an estimated 40,000 Arabs living in West Germany.

An Arab League spokesman said "hundreds of Arabs" already had been expelled from Germany. Federal and state interior ministries said special undercover agents were actively hunting for Arab citizens who had suddenly disappeared from the places they had listed as their legal residences.

The Bundesrat (upper house of parliament) called a special emergency session to debate a government proposal for tightening entrance requirements for citizens of all Arab countries.

Chancellor Willy Brandt met with his cabinet to discuss special security measures against terrorist acts, and Interior Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher called together all 11 state interior ministers for a conference on the same subject.

In Munich, where Arab guerrillas kidnapped and killed 11 members of the Israeli olympic team, a Bavarian state spokesman said security agents today stepped up their hunt for would-be "Arab terrorists."

"The police have undertaken special methods to get at the truth," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution, a security organization equivalent to the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, had sent in special agents to assist in the Bavarian crackdown.

"The Arabs have caught wind of our operations and are beginning to hide from us," the spokesman said.

He said a number of Arab residents had already been expelled from the country for various reasons, but he said he did not yet know how many.

Hessen border police said they were investigating an average of 60 to 80 Arabs a day at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport. An Egyptair spokesman in Frankfurt said all Arab passengers had to wait at least eight to 10 hours for processing through customs.

Robbery Charge Hearing Slated

Two men charged with holding up the bartender at George's recreation parlor in San Rafael have denied the count and a preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Edward Alexander Moten, 20, of Hamilton Air Force Base and Jerry Wayne Hurd, 21, of Santa Venetia were arrested Sept. 3 in San Francisco less than half an hour after three men, one armed with a pistol, held up bartender John Goveia and emptied two cash registers and a floor safe.

The two were arrested by San Francisco Police after toll takers at the Golden Gate Bridge, alerted by a police bulletin, reported their car had passed through the toll plaza.

The name of a 17-year-old youth arrested with Moten and Hurd was withheld from the press on orders of Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

$1 Lease Of People's Park Passes

BERKELEY (AP) — Lease of the University of California's People's Park, symbol of campus unrest since the late 1960s, has been approved by the City of Berkeley for a token rent of $1 per year.

Approved 6-1 with two abstentions by the Berkeley City Council last night, the lease now goes to UC regents for further consideration.

It calls for designation of the park as a "user-developed" community park and contains a provision declaring a moratorium on use of the park as a campground.

Dropped from the lease, drafted by Walter Toney, head of the city's parks and recreation department, was a previous provision calling for purchase of the park after seven years for $1.3 million.

The park was the focus of riots in May 1969 in which one person was killed and scores injured and arrested.

Last May 8 a cyclone fence around the park was torn down by protestors demonstrating against President Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors.

Sincethen, the park has become a popular spot for tent-pitching young people who have planted vegetables and fruit trees where asphalt was uprooted during this year's disturbances.

Top Court Overturns Ruling On Damages

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Saying "the infant's cry of hurt is as poignant as the most detailed exposition," the state Supreme Court has reversed a 1938 court ruling that babies cannot recover damages for pain and suffering.

The decision yesterday cleared the way for possible payment to Kim Capelouto, one of 14 infants who developed severe diarrhea, vomiting and cramps after coming in contact with a bacterial infection at Kaiser Foundation's Sunset Hospital in Hollywood in 1964.

The unanimous ruling reversed a 1938 state appellate court holding that infants cannot recover damages for pain and suffering.

"The infant's inability to explain the cause of pain or to describe the extent of it does not affect the sting," said Associate Justice Mathew O. Tobriner in the court opinion. "The inarticulate anguish of the infant serves as much a ground for recovery as the adult's most sophisticated description. Indeed, the infant's cry of hurt is as poignant as the most detailed exposition," he said.

A Los Angeles trial court had awarded the Capelouto girl only $1,510 — the amount of her medical expenses — based on the appellate ruling.

The opinion said one child contacted the salmonella bacteria from his mother and it spread to the infants at two maternity wards at the hospital.

"The entire Kaiser maternity unit was temporarily closed during one period of that August as a result of the epidemic," Tobriner wrote.

Former Judge Granted Decree

An intermediate decree toward dissolving the marriage of former municipal court judge Hadden W. Roth and his wife, Shelly Marie, was issued yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson granted the interlocutory on grounds of irreconcilable differences. Property settlement and support for Mrs. Roth and 10-year-old Elizabeth Roth were worked out privately.

According to the petition for dissolution filed by Roth last October, the couple married July 12, 1959, in Nevada and separated April 12, 1971.

Roth, a former deputy district attorney, was a municipal court judge from 1966 to 1970. He now practices law with the firm of Goldstein, Roth, Kopp and Skinner of San Rafael.

Authorization For Air Service

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — STOL Air Inc. of San Rafael has received interim authorization to provide air passenger service between Santa Rosa and San Francisco.

The permit, good for 90 days, was granted by the state Public Utilities Commission Tuesday to avoid interruption of service to Santa Rosa. Golden West Airlines notified the PUC July 25 that it would discontinue its service to the community.

STOL Air will continue the service with a twin-engine propeller plane on similar schedules and fares.

STOL Air also has applied for a route between San Francisco and Monterey non-stop and San Francisco and Monterey with San Jose as an intermediate stop. This will be subject to a public hearing.

L. C. JOHNSON
Ross Hospital

New Head Of Hospital Is Named

The new administrator of Ross General Hospital is L. C. Johnson, for eight years administrator of the Sun Towers Hospital in El Paso, Texas, it was announced today.

Both hospitals are owned and operated by Hospital Corporation of America, which delayed announcement of the June 26 appointment, a spokesman said, "to give him time to get settled."

Johnson — who for many years served as an ordained Lutheran minister — directed the growth of the Grace Lutheran Hospital from a small 50-bed sanatorium to a modern 200-bed general Sun Towers Hospital.

A graduate of Wartburg College and Seminary, he holds a diploma from the American College of Hospital Administrators. He is a member of the American Hospital Association, Texas Hospital Association, and Federation of American Hospitals.

He and his wife, Mattie, parents of four grown children, have established residence in Greenbrae.

Sentences Given For Smuggling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three men and a woman have been sentenced to jail in what narcotics agents described as a multi-million-dollar heroin-by-mail smuggling operation.

Superior Court Judge Robert W. Cole Tuesday ordered indeterminate prison terms for Susan Browning, 25, Kenneth Pense, 22, and James Walker, 25, all of Sacramento. He earlier ordered a five-year-to-life sentence for Raymond Hoagland, 23, Carmichael. All pleaded guilty to conspiracy to smuggle heroin.

Deputy District Attorney Christopher Lee said the four were involved in an operation that used eight-cent and air mail postage to mail half-ounce quantities of heroin from Thailand to Sacramento and possibly other areas.

Lee said the investigation by federal, state and local authorities indicated the daily mailings had been going on for more than a year. He said the heroin was pure or nearly pure and valued at $15,000 to $20,000 per letter in street sales.

Over a year's period, he said, this could add up to $5.5 million to $7.3 million in heroin street sales.

Judge Cole told Mrs. Browning, a former registered nurse, that "you ought to know better. You know what this stuff does to people."

Her husband, William, 23, described as a key figure in the operation, supposedly fled the country. He failed to make a court appearance last month while out on bail.

Suspension Ordered In Oakland Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Judge Oliver Carter in U. S. District Court ordered a union Tuesday to suspend its strike against the West Coast computer center in Oakland of Foremost-McKesson, Inc.

The temporary restraining order was issued after company attorneys argued the Office and Professional Employes Union had signed a no-strike contract and had failed to use grievance procedures.

Judge Carter set Sept. 26 as the date for a hearing into whether his order will be made permanent.

A issue is the firing of a black woman, Mrs. Rose Abrams, who the union contends is a victim of sex and racial discrimination.

Mrs. Abrams, a union shop steward, said she was fired after she protested she had been passed over and an inexperienced white man named to a computer operator trainee program. She is a long-term employe of the firm.

The walkout started last Friday.

Airliner Forced Down In Ohio

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — An American Airlines 707 with 84 passengers aboard made a forced landing at Wright Patterson Air Force base here early today after part of its landing gear system malfunctioned. Three persons were treated for minor injuries.

The plane was en route from Los Angeles to Chicago and Detroit when Captian Dale Cummings reported the nose landing gear could not be lowered.

Cummings was told he could not make an emergency landing at Detroit because of poor visibility and low ceilings and the flight was diverted to Cincinnati Airport which is located in Florence, Ky.

The plane was diverted to Wright Patterson when Cincinnati Airport officials told Cummings they did not have enough time to foam the runway.

Bitterness Remains From Olympic Games

The Munich Olympic Games have left considerable bitterness.

Bitterest of all, no doubt, are the Israelis, for 11 of their athletes and coaches were murdered. Two of them were slain in their Olympic Village quarters by Arab terrorists. Nine others died in a gun battle between those terrorists and German police. Dispute still rages over the police handling of the affair, and whether the lives of some of the nine might have been saved if it were handled differently.

COMPARED to what the Israelis suffered, the causes for bitterness in the United States are paltry. But they nevertheless may restrict American participation in future Olympics — especially since in the U.S. the costs of sending the team must be raised by public subscription.

The International Olympic Committee's cancellation of the gold medal won in swimming by our own Rick Demont, because it was found that he had been taking a medicine containing ephedrine, may be justifiable. But it scarcely can sit well with a youth who went all-out to win, and who was unaware that the medicine he took was forbidden.

Rick, who set a world record in the 1,500-meter swim (we wonder whether the record will remain on the books) has been put in the same kind of position as was the great Jim Thorpe, all of whose Olympic medals were taken away when it was found that he had played semi-pro baseball for pay. For whatever comfort it is to Rick, we would remind him that Jim Thorpe is still a hero and still chronicled as "the world's greatest athlete" — medals or no medals.

The remarkable, indefensible officiating mixup that gave the basketball championship to Soviet Russia after the game apparently ended with the United States a one-point victor also leaves a bitter taste.

BUT THERE was one other incident of the politics-riddled Olympics in which the United States itself appeared in an unsavory light.

Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett, who won first and second in the 400-meter run, stood chatting on the winners' stand while the "Star Spangled Banner" was played in honor of the United States. Then, as they walked away, they reportedly gave the clenched fist salute.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, which had expelled two runners for giving clenched fist salutes on the stand at the 1968 Games in Mexico City, did not even reprimand Matthews and Collett. It remained for the International Olympic Committee to remind them — and their country —that decorum, respect and patriotism are not dead. The international committee expelled both athletes from the Olympics — for life.

It is indeed a slap in the face for the United States that this action had to be taken by the International Olympic Committee. A nation that countenances disrespect for its own national anthem cannot complain too convincingly about "political" decisions that went against it.

Saving The Gulls

It may come as a surprise to some readers to learn that laws to protect gulls were enacted about 70 years ago. At that time, gulls were almost wiped out on both coasts of the United States. Their eggs were collected from offshore islands and sold commercially as something of a delicacy. San Francisco was one good market for them. And at the same time, feathers were very big in fashion and plume hunting took the lives of thousands of birds, gulls among them.

Conservation isn't really new, but the public is more aware of it today. And, small wonder, since it becomes more apparent that the ultimate endangered species is man himself.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Does Traffic Get More Attention Than Crime?

By EARL G. WATERS

It would not be fair to jump at conclusions based upon some raw statistics. But figures released by the FBI and other sources certainly give rise to some questions in order regarding the priority of efforts made by the local police.

The statistics at hand relate primarily to California's capital city, but there is reason to believe they generally reflect conditions throughout the state.

Standing out like a sore thumb is the fact that there were 46 homicides in the Sacramento area during the year, 184 forcible rapes, 1,158 robberies, 1,058 aggravated assaults, 12,427 burglaries, 13,074 grand larcenies and 4,692 vehicle thefts.

About the same time these figures were released the Sacramento Safety Council reported that traffic fatalities had dropped from 29 to 21 during the current year.

FROM THESE bare facts it would appear one is safer driving around in a car than walking down the street or in the sanctity of his own home.

The FBI report reflects marked increases nationwide in murders, rapes, robberies and other crimes of violence.

With these facts many citizens are reacting in wonderment at the attention being given to traffic. Spurred on with federal money, Sacramento police handed out nearly 30,000 tickets during the first six months of this year, a 95 per cent increase over last year's activity.

It was this direction of police effort which prompted Sen. Lawrence Walsh, D-Commere, to author his "speed trap" bill. According to Walsh, local police are using the federal money, provided by President Nixon to make the streets safe, to put money into the city cash registers.

"The President wasn't talking about traffic," Walsh said. "He was aiming at the muggings, robberies, rapes nd murders which have made our city streets unsafe."

NOR IS TRAFFIC control the only detraction of the police from all-out efforts to combat serious crime and violence. It may be fancied and, in the absence of a factual study to assess police man-hour distributions, not as diversionary as repetitive news stories make it seem. But, law enforcement appears to be overly concerned with offenses which do not endanger the lives and property of the citizens.

While the peddling of dirty books and the showing of sex movies may be morally offensive, no one can maintain such things are as serious as robbery, rape and murder. The same can be said of offenses relating to homosexuality and prostitution. Yet the police are called upon to exert great effort in the prosecution of these activities. Likewise, social gambling like bingo, which a majority of the populace has indicated they favor legalizing, further occupy the time of the police.

A full scale legislative study to determine the distribution of police effort in the various categories of enforcement would seem to be in order. It may be that a whole new schedule of priorities for law enforcement is needed.

"Why shouldn't I be out here in the suburbs? I live here."

Two Reasons Why Fluoridation Advocated

There are two reasons why we believe that fluoridation of drinking water is superior to providing fluoride to children as a daily dietary supplement.

Requiring parents to provide daily supplements to their children perpetuates the pattern of discrimination in health care against the less educated and less economically fortunate members of our society who are least likely to possess the knowledge, motivation and financial resources required to provide fluoride to their children.

The second measure of concern focuses on the advisability of accustoming children to pill-taking as a means of dealing with a health problem. With all the legitmate concern about drug abuse in our society, we believe that providing fluoride through drinking water is more desirable than requiring children to take a pill a day for the first 12 years of their life.

Accept Conclusions Of Health Professionals

In reading the letters which have been published related to water fluoridation, it troubles me to find there are people who so blithely challenge the authority and integrity of our health professionals. On what basis do they expect me to accept their refutations of the official endorsements of all our health organizations?

When our health or the health of our children is threatened by disease or accident, it is our physicians and dentists to whom we turn. Who more than they should be trusted to make proper evaluations and recommendations concerning public health measures such as fluoridation?

I, for one, have confidence in our medical, dental and other health professionals in this just as I do in other health matters. I believe they are the people who know and care and can be trusted to recommend what is best for me and my community.

As we consider fluoridation for Marin County, I hope we will not be ruled by the fear and negativism of the anti-medical minority. Rather we should be guided by faith in our established health leaders woking within the democratic system.

Defeated Candidate Supports Giacomini

Recently I have received many letters and phone calls from some of my former supporters requesting reaffirmation and amplification of my support for Gary Giacomini for supervisor of the Fourth Distirct.

For the benefit of all the people who supported me in my bid for supervisor, I would like to say that I am supporting Gary because I believe he ran an honest campaign — more important than the difference between liberal and conservative labels.

I also stated, as you know, that I expect our entire campaign committee to do everything it can to help him win. I personally am doing all I can to help him. Of course, I cannot control what all of my supporters will do, but I am confident that after listening to Gary and his clear-cut statement on the issues, his willingness to listen to all points of view, and his sincere desire to be of service to all the people in the Fourth District, that those people who supported me will now support him . . .

Only Israeli-Arab Settlement Can End Acts Of Terrorism

WASHINGTON — It is all to the good that President Nixon and others are pressing for international action to combat the kind of heinous terrorism the Palestinian guerrillas perpetrated at Munich.

Every avenue which has any chance of being useful should be explored.

But it would be wishful to pin hopes on the prospect that any boldly worded resolution by some international body will end this type of cruel and criminal lunacy.

The world is too divided ideologically to get meaningful agreement, and the political terrorists are not going to tremble before7 any U.N. resolution.

The international community is totally unable to unite to deal with crimes against itself.

ON THE VERY DAY that the Black September group turned the Olympics into a morgue, we had a dismal example of the feeble will of the nations to act together to protect themselves.

The International Civil Aviation Organization was meeting in Washington and it had before it a U.S.-Canadian draft treaty, which had been under study for two years, providing for international sanctions against any country which harbors hijackers or fails to release plane, crew and passengers and either punish or extradite the air terrorists.

It was scuttled in a wave of words. France did not want to offend its Arab allies. Russia didn't want to do anything unless it had a veto over doing anything. The hijacking goes on.

The Palestinian terrorism will go on in the face of such flabby, shortsighted, narrow nationalism.

It will continue until the one thing which the Palestinian terrorists most fear is engendered; that is, to turn the present Egyptian-Israeli truce into an honorable and acceptable Egyptian-Israeli peace.

I QUOTE A MOST revealing statement by an Egyptian who has made a close study of the acts and motives of the Black September organization:

"These extremist guerrillas do not only want to hit hard at Israel and win the release of their comrades in Israeli jails, they also want to halt any moves by Egypt which could lead to a poltical settlement in the Mideast.

"Whenever there is talk of Egyptian leaders thinking of reaching a settlement with Israel, you will find some Palestinians who will do anything to stop it."

Surely the best way — perhaps the only way — to halt the fanatic crimes against innocent people by the Palestianian terrorists is to give them what they don't want: a constructive and early settlement between Israel and the Arab nations.

THIS IS the moment to strike — for peace. Today Israel is militarily secure. It can negotiate from strength. Having expelled the Soviet forces, Egypt has earned a generous peace offer from the Israelis. Both nations will benefit from lifting the pall of tension from their backs.

Peace initiatives to this end are surfacing at a high level in Israel.

The next step is a willingness on Egypt's part to begin serious negotiations.

The time is right. The Soviet Union and the United States do not want strife in the Middle East to bring them into conflict. Each wants to see the tenuous truce turned into a firm peace, but they can't bring it about. Only Egypt and Israel can bring it about. It will be an incalculable boon to both.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

A Prisoner Of Russ For 13 Years —And The Preaching Of McGovern

LOS ANGELES — On a rainy night in 1956, I interviewed a German who was honeymooning on a coal ship. I was impressed by how clean the vessel was despite its cargo, as it stood alongside a pier in Baltimore Harbor. I remember the man's tale of how he had been captured on the Eastern front in World War II, and spent his years as a Soviet prisoner working in the coal mines at Vorkuta, north of the Arctic Circle.

I was amazed that after that he could have chosen a coal ship for his honeymoon with the sweetheart he had not seen since before the war, no matter how cheap the passenger fare. For he had been a prisoner 13 years — two years from his capture till the end of the war in Europe, and 11 more years till the Russians released him.

IT MAY NOT BE fair that that German came back to mind for the first time in years as I stood listening to George McGovern in Seattle the other night, as he confidently stated his position on the American prisoners in North Vietnam. "I have enough common sense," he said, "to know that the only way we're ever going to bring those men out of their prison cells is to end the bombing and end tha war that keeps them in their cells."

That may be true. But if he based his speeches on history rather than "common sense," any candidate would have to recognize that as a hope rather than a known fact. It is McGovern's style, however, to state hopes as facts, to eliminate grays in favor of blacks and whites, to ascribe to his opponents motives even more evil than they really are. In short, to do what his Methodist father did and he himself almost did for a living: to preach.

It is apparent, from the way hyperbole ebbs and flows in his vocabulary, that he is struggling with it. He indicated that back in the final days of the primary season, when he reminisced about his boyhood. "I used to be terrified as a small child at some of those hellfire sermons by visiting evangelists," he recalled. "I think that gave me a fear of emotionalism, almost a hatred of it. And I remember being terrified at those radio speeches of Hitler's —the demagoguery. I vowed then that if I ever got to a situation where I made a speech, I was not going to try to get people to do something by frightening them and getting them all excited. I would rather reason with them."

COMMENDABLE. Yet within a week or so of decrying demagoguery and emotionalism, he was accusing Mr. Nixon of committing crimes worse than Hitler's by continuing air strikes in Indochina. Before and after that, up through last week, he was declaring that "never again will we commit the young men of this country to die for a corrupt military dictator 10,000 miles from our shores" — as if General Thieu had been in power when we made our commitment in Vietnam, and as if we stayed as a sacrifice to him rather than out of idealistic notions about freedom or cynical assessments of geopolitics.

Taking off from the Nixon campaign slogan of "Four More Years," McGovern maintained here in the West that he did not want four more years of "young GIs, some of them hopelessly hooked on heroin. . .Warmongers. . .Purveyors of racial fears. . ." Neither do you and I, of course, but it stretches fair campaign practice a trifle to blame everything including drought and gypsy moths on the administration in power.

Preachers are not bound by fair campaign practice because they are at war with the devil. Hellfire, brimstone, demagoguery and emotionalism are legitimate weapons in that war. And no doubt it seems nitpicking to critically analyze one candidate's rhetoric while the other is bedfellows with Watergate eavesdroppers and amateur magicians who play now-you-see-it-now-you-don't with bundles of campaign money. Yet it is reasonable to judge a man by his own standards.

MCGOVERN DID well in the primaries because his main message was to the widely celebrated alienated of America — including many to whom the facts are unimportant as long as your emotions are in the right place. Now he is under more or lessserious consideration for the presidency, and his compulsion to overstate still overtakes him even while he is trying to use bread-and-butter terms to the unalienated Democratic coalition of old. Emotion in place of fact scares such people when they are looking for a President rather than an evangelist.

And George McGovern does not need to go beyond the facts. Who needs to exaggerate what happened at the Watergate, or the unemployment and inflation statistics, or the unjust tax loopholes? The unembellished facts are God-sent campaign material as they stand, but it is hard for a man to leave well enough alone when he seems to confuse airplane ramps and television microphones with the pulpits and congregations of his South Dakota youth.

Public Safety Morale Low In Wake Of Salary Rejection

Morale is low among San Rafael's public safety personnel, who claim the city council did not negotiate in good faith on salary and fringe benefits.

The council last week granted safety personnel a 5 per cent pay increase effective Sept. 1, and ordered insurance benefit payments increased by $2 a month.

In ordering the settlement, the council rejected a mediation team's report which urged a 5 per cent salary hike retroactive to July 1 and a $15 monthly benefit increase.

The report— drawn up at the council's request — cost the taxpayers $2,125, and drained the police and firemen associations of an equal amount.

The council in closed session took numerous votes on various pay schemes, ranging from total acceptance of the report to outright rejection. No more than two votes were tallied favoring any one proposal, according to one councilman.

At issue during the closed meeting was "new information" that had recently been received by the city. This, according to Mayor C. Paul Bettini, showed that San Rafael safety personnel ranked eighth in pay and fringe benefits on a list of 18 "benchmark" cities of similar population.

The mediation team's report said San Rafael policemen ranked 16th in total compensation, and firemen ranked 10th. The council did not reveal how it arrived at the new ranking, or from where the new information had come.

Worse, public safety employees were not consulted on the new figures.

THE SAN RAFAEL Planning Department asked the Independent-Journal Monday whether or not the full page of drawings of the Dollar estate development proposal in Saturday's I-J was an advertisement on behalf of developer Thomas E. Schaal. It was not. The spread, which detailed what Schaal claims is allowed on the property, as well as what he has proposed, was rather an attempt to inform readers and spark attendance at last night's planning commission hearing of the plan.

A PACIFIC TELEPHONE and Telegraph Co. official's heated denials last month that San Rafael's pole-climbing Alana MacFarlane had asked for a desk job became quiet affirmations this week.

As reported in the I-J Aug. 19, an official at first confirmed and then denied that Miss MacFarlane — the first female to work as a repairman-installer for Ma Bell - was seeking more down-to-earth work with the company due to coworker ridicule.

Miss MacFarlane is now chief equipmentman for the company's San Rafael office, the official asserted Monday.

His confused position last month was due to the company's use of Miss MacFarlane in a nationwide advertising campaign, which gave Ma Bell a women's lib glow as an equal opportunity employer.

"The Phone Company Wants More Installers Like Alana MacFarlane," the national advertisement said.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Education Innovations Fail To Impress High Schoolers

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The educational picture during the past decade has been crowded with innovations, each of which, we were assured, would make schools more effective in their job of educating the young.

Many of the new programs and new methods have been designed to make school more pleasurable and interesting to the pupils. Such purpose has been advanced for changes ranging from the "open classroom" in primary grades to the emulsifying of assorted subjects into a single "block" in high school.

A survey by American Institutes for Research, however, indicates high school students don't much like the results.

THE SURVEY was made in 1970, but the resulting report was published only recently by American Institutes for Research (P.O. Box 1113, Palo Alto).

A series of questions matching those used in "Project Talent" in 1960 was asked of 12,722 juniors in 134 high schools across the nation.

Fifty-five per cent of them said they found school uninteresting. This was six per cent more than gave the same answer in the "Project Talent" survey.

This lack of interest was shown also in the students' reports on how much home study they did. Only 41 per cent of the 1970 juniors said they studied 10 hours or more per week, compared to 46 per cent of those surveyed 10 years earlier.

THE "MORE INTERESTING" and "more relevant" approaches also were not much more successful in educating the students — at least not in reading, according to the survey results.

The same reading comprehension test used 10 years earlier was repeated. Average score of the 1970 juniors was 31.2, compared to 30.8 in 1960 — just four-tenths of one point higher.

AIR, however, said this should be adjusted upward because the dropout rate had declined approximately 10 per cent during the decade — meaning, presumably, that more of those whom the educators describe by such euphemisms as "exceptional," "maladjusted" or "culturally deprived" had remained in school to the 11th year. Allowing for this, said AIR, the 1970 average score should be "weighted" upward to 32.8 — a two-point gain.

The 1970 survey used a question not asked in 1960: Were the 11th graders satisfied with the progress they had made in reading, writing and thinking? Less than half of them — 46 per cent — said they were.

THE EMPHASIS on "relevance" in today's curriculum, however, caused a few more of the students to feel that what they learned in school would be valuable to them after graduation. Only 23 per cent said they felt it would be of little value, compared to 28 per cent in 1960.

Along with a decrease in dropouts went some reduction in absenteeism, according to the survey. Of the 1970 juniors, 10.5 per cent reported they had missed 15 or more days of school during the year, down nearly two per cent from the 12.3 per cent who said the same in 1960.

It would be interesting to know whether the students considered they had attended school on days when they were present only for a single class session. If they followed the reporting methods used by California schools in computing average daily attendance for receipt of state funds, they would figure one class counted the same as all day.

The survey did not attempt to measure subject skills, except in reading. But it gives some picture of the students' own regard for the education they receive. Over all, it appears that what they thought of it in 1970 was pretty much what their older brothers and sisters thought of it in 1960 — despite all the highly publicized (and often expensive) innovations.

Old Bomber Is Found In Swamp

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)— Military officials are searching through records to trace the identity of a B24 or B25 bomber found submerged in a swamp, perhaps since World War II.

The plane was barely visible in muck and slime just north of the Savannah River in South Carolina. Army officials said it was possible the plane was buried there for more than 20 years.

A highway survey crew spotted the aircraft two weeks ago, and an Army unit recovered eight 50-caliber machine guns from its skeletal remains.

But they said it would take a major effort to dig up the submerged fuselage, which was made virtually inaccessible from the ground due to waist-high water and mud.

Teens' Radio Program To Premiere

Marin County teen-agers will premiere their own free-wheeling weekly radio broadcast at 3 p.m. tomorrow on station KTIM.

A changing cadre of youth will decide each week on the topics and who'll be interviewed on the one-hour program. Adults and teen-agers will be encouraged to call in during the live broadcasts each Thursday to ask questions or argue a viewpoint, according to station manager Robert W. Dinsmore.

"This will be exclusively theirs," Dinsmore said of the youth broadcast.

"There will be no limitations or guidelines — no holds barred except those imposed by the Federal Communications Commission. This will be an hour once a week for the youth to get into whatever they want to — if they want to get into teen-age sex habits, or politics, or whatever, that's fine."

In contrast with many stations which use "bleepers" and taped delays on incoming calls, the youth program phone lines will be direct to the air, the station official said.

James Looney, executive director of the Marin County YMCA, is helping recruit youth to launch the program. He said yesterday that five or six teen-agers will quiz adults and other teen-age panelists on such topics as student rights in the schools, how students can involve themselves with community volunteer activities, and Marin's recreational facilities.

Brian Perkins, San Rafael High School student, will be producer-coordinator of the first program tomorrow.

"Perhaps I have grandiose visions," Dinsmore said of the new broadcast, "but I hope the show will enable parents and kids to talk to each other over the telephone and on the air when they can't communicate face to face in the home."

He stressed that it probably would be some time before the show settled into any sort of format — "the first few shows probably will be largely exploratory, with the teen-agers deciding to some extent on the air what they'll want to talk about," Dinsmore explained.

The Thursday afternoon broadcasts will be tape recorded and rebroadcast at 11 a.m. each Sunday.

Car Seat Belt Warning System Fails, Research Group Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto-safety research arm of the insurance industry declared yesterday the buzzer-and-light warning on new cars does not stimulate seat-belt usage.

When the government moved last year to delay the effective date of standards requiring a passive passenger-protection system, such as air bags, it required that cars built after last Jan. 1 have a buzzer and light to be activated if the car begins moving before the front seat belts are fastened.

"The buzzer-light system can only be described as a public-health failure," said the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

"It is unlikely that it will contribute to a reduction in over-all frequency or severity of injuries."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported earlier this year that the new safety belt system raised the retail price of a car $20.25.

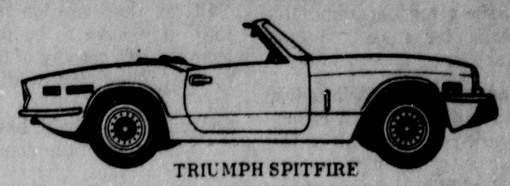
The institute made its study by posting observers at intersections and approach ramps in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia. From observer reports of how many motorists had seat belts fastened and how many didn't, researchers culled out 1972 cars and traced tag numbers through police and manufacturers to determine which cars had the buzzer-lights.

Eighteen per cent of the drivers in the 2,864 buzzer-light cars were using belts. Sixteen per cent were using belts in the 2,795 cars without the warning system.

Cars built after next Jan. 1 will have to be rigged so the engine won't start until the belts are fastened. The so-called "air bag" standard is to become effective on 1976 cars. The Transportation Department has proposed making it a crime after next April to not use safety belts.

The institute, which has urged greater road testing of air-bag cars, termed inadequate the research done by the government in trying to determine whether the buzzer-light system increased seat belt usage.

"Hopefully the armchair approach and inept science illustrated by the buzzer-light case will soon be replaced by competent science," said the institute's report.



TRIUMPH SPITFIRE

The least costly Triumph sports car, the Mark IV Spitfire is also the smallest and nimblest with an amazingly tight 24-foot turning circle. It shares with the GT6 coupe such advanced features as an expensive separate frame of torsion-rigid backbone design, and fully independent rear suspension. A centrally-pivoted transverse leaf spring at the rear and a heavy anti-roll bar at the front give the Mark IV cornering power of a high order. Its finely balanced roadholding is matched by powerful braking-by discs in front and drums of high swept area at the rear.

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

SHE'S MAD

Martha Details 'Imprisonment'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell says she is neither a mental case nor an alcoholic —but she's mad at some Republicans for making people think she is.

In an interview published in today's editions of the Washington Star-News, the wife of the former attorney general described additional details of her alleged "imprisonment" earlier in the summer in California and said she wanted to write a book about the whole affair.

Two Star-News reporters, Clare Crawford and Winzola McLendon, said Mrs. Mitchell was packing to move to New York when they interviewed her in her Watergate apartment Tuesday.

"I want to be sure my side is revealed and that people know I'm not sitting here a mental case or an alcoholic," she said. "I think it is rotten after all I have done for the Republican Party for them to cast aspersions on me."

She said her "imprisonment" —allegedly being kept under watch and told not to use the telephone —"was a most bizarre thing ... worse than the Watergate caper."

The latter was a reference to the break-in and alleged bugging attempt at Democratic national headquarters, also in the Watergate hotel-apartments complex, which occurred when Mitchell was head of President Nixon's re-election committee, and for which the Democrats are blaming the Republicans.

Of the "imprisonment" at Newport Plaza, Calif., Mrs. Mitchell said her bodyguard, Steve King, threw her into a window at one point, cutting one finger and injuring others. She said her ring finger is still swollen.

"All my rings are too small —they may have to be made bigger. I can't get any of them on —not even my wedding ring."

She said she would like to write a book and "I'm going to tell it all."

She disputed a Parade Magazine report which said that King, now security director of the Nixon re-election committee, was not involved in the incident.

Mrs. Mitchell was talking to UPI's Helen Thomas on the phone from Newport Beach last spring when the altercation happened. She told Miss Thomas that she had demanded that Mitchell resign as chairman of President Nixon's reelection committee. The telephone connection was broken after Miss Thomas heard Mrs. Mitchell shout, "You just get away."

Mrs. Mitchell later said that King ripped the telephone out of the wall. She also complained she was a political prisoner.

A few days later Mitchell submitted his resignation as campaign chairman.

The Star-News quoted sources close to Mitchell as vehemently denying rumors and speculation that Mrs. Mitchell had had a nervous breakdown.

CBS Executive Defends Reruns

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The reason you see reruns on your television set at least six months a year is to give you a chance to watch the shows you missed the first time around, according to the president of CBS, Robert Wood.

Wood made that defense of reruns Tuesday in a speech to the Hollywood Radio and Television Society. He criticized recent proposals to limit the amount of time given to reruns to 25 per cent of network prime time per year.

"When the average program is presented for the first time, 131 million people—86 per cent of television's total potential audience—do not see it," Wood said.

McGovern Heartened By Big Midwestern Crowd Turnouts

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern says he thinks he turned the corner in his uphill presidential race during a series of emotion-charged joint appearances with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

McGovern and Kennedy were to campaign in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia today following a 16-hour day Tuesday which produced generally large and enthusiastic crowds for rallies in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

"I have a feeling that we are turning the corner in these last few days," McGovern told newsmen. "I think we are on the way up."

Several hundred well-wishers and a few hecklers turned out in a post-midnight drizzle to welcome McGovern and Kennedy to a Pittsburgh airport early today. Although the crowd was dwarfed by the gatherings at the earlier rallies, it was the largest airport welcome for the Democratic presidential nominee in more than a week. His aides considered it a good omen.

In each appearance, Kennedy compared McGovern's campaign against President Nixon with the 1960 election in which his brother, John F. Kennedy, defeated Nixon for the presidency.

"The question which is before us in 1972 is very much like the question of 1960," Kennedy said. "It is the choice between the comfortable and the concerned."

Although he battled bad weather all day, McGovern appeared Tuesday before the largest number of people of any single day of his campaign. The biggest crowd was in Chicago where perhaps as many as 40,000 persons jammed the intersection of State and Madison Streets in the heart of the Loop to listen to McGovern, Kennedy and Mayor Richard J. Daley. It rained steadily.

Several estimates of the State and Madison streets crowd were larger, including one by Chicago police estimating the crowd at 100,000 persons.

Another 10,000 to 15,000 saw McGovern at Kennedy Square in Detroit and about 7,000 heard him at the Cleveland Arena.

In Detroit the South Dakota senator did not mention school busing, perhaps the most volatile issue in the city and its suburbs. Some strategists had urged McGovern to soften his position in support of Supreme Court school integration orders, even ones that require pupils to ride a bus. But he neither backed away from earlier statements nor restated them.

As McGovern's motorcade traveled from the airport to downtown Detroit, it passed homes with large signs proclaiming: "This family will not be bused."

In Chicago, McGovern carefully tried to woo Daley and his powerful Cook County machine. The senator referred to Daley as "a great mayor of a great city who has proved that a city can be made to work in modern day America."

Chicanos Hear Shriver Appeal

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)— Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver said today President Nixon has failed to provide the necessary jobs for Mexican-Americans.

Shriver arrived at El Paso early today for a breakfast meeting with local Democratic leaders. He said he would later meet privately with representatives of labor unions, farmers and civic groups during a quick swing through Texas.

Shriver urged Democrats not to bolt the party. In a brief airport speech, he specifically mentioned the defection of former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who is heading a Democrats for Nixon movement.

In a city with a large Mexican-American population, Shriver said, "President Nixon is a president of promises and has not done anything for Mexican-Americans in finding jobs in this area."

Shriver said the administration of President Lyndon Johnson had done more to create jobs and educational opportunities for Chicanos than any other.

Shriver arrived about two hours later than planned and the airport crowd numbered 400-500 persons, most of them young. Following a 12-hour stay at El Paso, Shriver said he would jet to San Antonio and Houston.

Shriver said he would also meet with strikers from the Farah Manufacturing Co. plant who have been out for 18 weeks protesting bad working conditions. They have already gained the support of Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy.

In a fast-paced campaign tour through the Pacific Northwest Tuesday, Shriver said in Seattle that defense spending could be cut by $10 billion a year through 1976 without hurting national security.

He said the armed services were "very top heavy with top brass," and that the biggest chunk of the defense budget goes for personnel.

He told reporters that George McGovern had never proposed a $1,000 per person welfare plan but that his Democratic rivals convinced the public he did.

The plan was only a study paper that was put in the Congressional Record for discussion purposes, he said.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dyan Cannon is the fifth star to be cast in "The Last of Sheila" topped by Raquel Welch and Richard Benjamin.

Educators Supporting McGovern

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Leaders of the nation's two biggest teacher organizations today endorsed Sen. George S. McGovern for President.

Two officers of the 1.2 million member National Education Association (NEA) joined with representatives of the rival 275,000-member American Federation of Teachers (AFT) to support McGovern, saying President Nixon holds education in contempt.

The NEA itself has not taken a stand on the presidential race but the AFT has as a body already endorsed McGovern.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, campaign chairman for McGovern, attended the session and thanked them for their help.

David Selden, president of AFT, said the action "was forced by Richard M. Nixon himself."

"No president in the history of this republc has demonstrated more contempt for the public educational system than President Nixon," Selden said.

The groups attacked him for vetoing three major educational appropriation bills and a child care bill.

They praised McGovern for his proposals to increase federal funding to schools by one-third, supporting teachers' right to free collective bargaining and supporting liberal child care and school lunch programs.

LOVE THAT CLOVER!

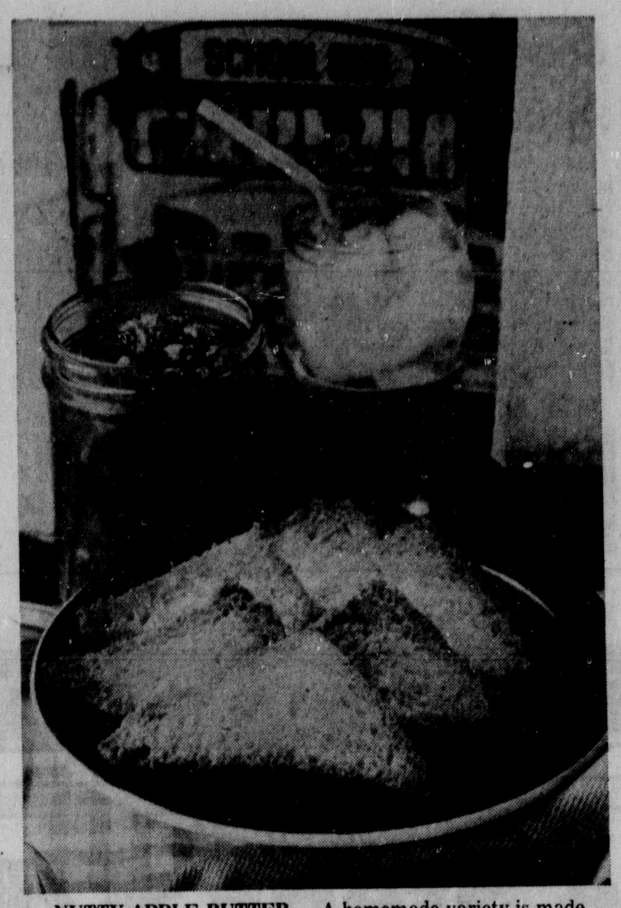
Feeding The After School Crowd

When the after-school crowd swoops down on the kitchen, it's best to be prepared. They will be eating dinner in a few hours so they don't need a lot... just enough to satisfy.

Why not toast with homemade nutty apple butter and a cool glass of apple juice? Apple butter is merely apple sauce cooked with sugar and spices for a couple of hours until the sugar carmelizes and the flavors blend. For a new twist, add chopped nuts. Somehow this tastes better when made at home starting with canned apple sauce.

Shown with the apple butter is a special recipe for oven toast. It is well-known in gourmet circles, but it's too good and too simple to save just for special occasions. Generously buttered bread slices (from the firm type of loaf) are baked in a hot oven until crisp and brown. They are just as good cold or served the next day as they are straight from the oven.

A hearty yet not too filling snack for any time of day.



NUTTY APPLE BUTTER — A homemade variety is made by cooking applesauce with sugar, butter and spices until thick and dark. Makes a perfect after-school snack when spread on toast and served with chilled apple juice.

NUTTY APPLE BUTTER

4 cups canned apple sauce
1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped nuts

In a saucepan, combine apple sauce, sugar, spices and butter. Bring to a boil and simmer uncovered over low heat for two hours or until thick and dark in color. Cool. Stir in nuts. Makes three cups. Serve with oven toast.

OVEN TOAST

1 loaf firm-type white bread
¼ pound butter, melted

If desired, trim crusts from bread; cut slices in half. Pour half the melted butter into shallow baking pan or jelly roll pan. Place bread slices in pan and brush with remaining butter. Bake in 450-degree oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown.

CUPCAKE FANTASY

Split store-bought cupcakes from side to side. Fill with ice cream. Replace top and spoon on canned apple sauce heated with a little chunk-style peanut butter.

APPLE SAUCED-GINGERBREAD

Hot and fragrant gingerbread topped with hot and fragrant canned apple sauce hits the spot on a brisk fall afternoon.

APPLE SAUCE BOWL

A bowl of canned apple sauce mixed with raisins and chopped nuts makes a nutritious after-school snack, without spoiling appetities for the evening meal.

TOASTED APPLE ENGLISH

Hot apple sauce with a big pat of butter melted down through it makes a tangy spread for toasted English muffins or toast.

APPLE SAUCE-CRANBERRY TOPPING

Beat canned apple sauce into cranberry jelly and use as a topping for slices of pound cake or as a filling for sponge cupcakes.

APPLE SAUCE A LA MODE

Just top chilled canned apple sauce with ice cream and shake a little cinnamon over all.

SALMON AND EGGS — Here are two of today's best complete protein buys, teamed upflavorfully in quick and easy dishes.

Fish And Eggs: Good-Tasting Way To Balance The Budget

The importance of including protein in the family diet has been firmly established in our minds, but protein foods are among the worst offenders in the present inflated prices. The challenge seems almost insurmountable, but not impossible.

Fish and eggs are the answer to balancing the budget, and canned salmon is one of the best seafoods and one of the most nutritious, delicious and attractive. In addition to its protein content, it is rich in vitamins and minerals, especially calcium, and the fats in salmon are unsaturated.

According to a number of food authorities, unsaturated fats such as fish oils not only do not contribute to the hardening of the arteries as do many animal fats but help to prevent this condition. Canned salmon also is an excellent candidate for low calorie diets, since four ounces, solids and liquids combined, contain only 150 to 200 calories, depending on the variety.

The following recipes combine eggs and salmon in flavorful dishes which give the best food value.

CREAMED EGGS IN SALMON CRUST

1 pound can salmon
1 slice white bread, crumbed
1 egg
10¾ ounce can mushroom soup
¼ cup light cream
4 ounce can button mushrooms, drained
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Parsley for garnish

Drain and reserve liquid from can of salmon. Flake salmon and combine with bread crumbs and egg. Mix well. Press mixture into bottom and on sides of an eight-inch pie plate.

Combine soup, cream, reserved salmon liquid, mushrooms, Worcestershire sauce and heat over simmering water.

Bake the salmon "crust" in a preheated 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Reserve a few egg slices for garnish and add remaining eggs to the hot mushroom sauce.

Remove pie from oven, pour hot creamed eggs and mushrooms into it, and garnish with reserved egg slices and parsley. Serves four.

SUNDAY SALMON

Drain one-pound can salmon. Flake salmon. In skillet heat two tablespoons butter. Add salmon and cook, stirring, for one minute. Pour three beaten eggs over salmon and cook, stirring, until eggs are set to taste. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast or English muffins. Serves four.

SALMON BREAKFAST CAKES

In mixing bowl combine one-pound can salmon with liquid, two eggs and two tablespoons evaporated milk or cream. Beat in as much leftover mashed potatoes as the liquid will absorb and season to taste with salt and coarsely ground pepper. Shape into 12 flat cakes. Dip cakes in mixture of two eggs beaten with two tablespoons cold water. Coat cakes with bread crumbs or corn meal and saute in bacon drippings or butter until nicely browned on both sides. Serves six.

Mexican Independence Day Twin Surprise

"Pinata double dip" is full of surprises for Mexican Independence Day on Saturday. Turn on your fiesta guests with a double surprise: this palatable "pinata" doubles as a spicy dip for tostados or as a saucy topping for your favorite seasoned taco meat.

Developed by home conomists at Rosarita Mexican foods, the double dip can be prepared quickly and served warm in crock serving bowl, or warmed in a chafing dish.

PINATA DOUBLE DIP

1 can (16 oz.) refried beans
1 cup canned tomatoes, drained
½ can (4 oz.) diced green hot chilies
½ lb. grated cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

In a skillet, mix all ingredients together well. Heat over low heat until cheese melts, stirring occasionally. Transfer to preheated serving bowl or food warmer.

THIS FESTIVE "pinata double dip" has double identity: serve as dip for tostados or as saucy topping for taco meat. The dip-sauce is rich with Mexican 'staples," such as refried beans, chili, cheese and spices.

How To Stretch The Retirement Funds

When retirement age is reached it's just as important to eat nutritionally well balanced meals as ever. And though cooking for one or two is always a challenge, it becomes more so if retirement funds must be stretched and appetites sometimes decrease.

One problem is a shortage of recipes that cater to one or two. Today's recipes were specially developed for small families and those who eat alone: Triple Meat Loaf and Toasted Corn Bread Rounds.

The ground beef mixture for the loaves is mildly seasoned, and quick or old fashioned oats lock in natural juices, making the meat moist, flavorful and especially tender. The meat is shaped into three little loaves — one to cook now and two to freeze for later; each loaf makes two servings.

TRIPLE MEAT LOAF

Makes three small meat loves

1½ lb. ground beef
⅔ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 egg, beaten
One 4-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces, drained (optional)
½ cup tomato juice

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Combine all ingredients thoroughly. Divide the mixture into three equal parts: Shape each part to form a meat loaf about one and a half inches high and about six inches long. Tightly wrap two loaves in freezer wrap and freeze for future use. Bake remaining loaf in preheated oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes.

Note: Thaw frozen meat loaf before baking. Bake as directed above.

CORN BREAD ROUNDS

Makes 8 slices

1¼ cups enriched yellow corn meal
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar (optional)
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening, soft

Heat oven to hot (400 degrees Fahrenheit). For corn bread, sift together dry ingredients into bowl. Add egg, milk and shortening.

Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about one minute. Do not overbeat. Bake in well greased empty one-pound, 13-ounce round can in preheated oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 40 to 45 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand two to three minutes; loosen with spatula and remove from can. Cool thoroughly.

Cut into eight slices. Wrap and freeze. Remove slices as needed and toast in toaster or broiler. Serve with butter or margarine.

Let Tongue Stand

When you've cooked a smoked beef tongue to be eaten cold you can let it stand in the cooking water for several hours. Then drain the tongue and refrigerate it.

Beer Deviled Crab Can Be Appetizer For Any Meal

Crabs have been a delicacy prized by man for many centuries, since they could be found in abundance along the coastal regions.

The addition of beer complements the robust flavor of this shellfish, making this beer deviled crab an appealing appetizer for any meal.

BEER DEVILED CRAB: ¾ cup beer, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 1 tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. salt, two 6½ oz. cans king crab (cartilage removed and flaked), ⅓ cup melted butter, 1 egg well beaten, ¾ cup cracker crumbs.

Pour beer over stale bread crumbs. Let stand for 5 minutes and mix until thoroughly blended. Add mustard, salt, crab meat, paprika, egg and 3 tablespoons of melted butter. Blend ingredients together and spoon mixture into individual ramekins.

Mix remaining melted butter with the cracker crumbs and sprinkle over crab mixture. Bake in a preheated oven at 375 degrees for approximately 30 minutes.

Mature Wine Before Drinking

If you have been ordering California Cabernet Sauvignon wine in restaurants or buying it for immediate consumption at home, you may or may not have tasted this wine fully matured, says Malcolm Hebert, writing in Vintage magazine.

Top men in several Northern California wineries agree. The supply is slim, they say, and the demand growing faster than vineyards can be planted.

The result is that purchasers are drinking the wine too soon, rather than aging it in the bottle for many years. Its vintner can advise on how long each Cabernet needs to mature.

Homemade Toys Make A Comeback

By EVELYN RADCLIFFE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ALTOS — Ask any adult what toys of his childhood he remembers best and he'll most likely say those he made himself. After the bicycles, of course.

Stored away in the toy chests of many of our pasts are the homemade trains, the little cars made of matchboxes with button wheels and toothpick axles, the rag dolls, and the multitude of things we made from spools when the thread was gone.

Many of the toys on today's market make a strong argument for a return to such self-fulfilling, wholesome activities as an antidote to deleterious boredom.

Young mothers in a Los Altos conservation group have been steering their children to the kitchen cabinet and tool drawer instead of the shopping center for toys. They have designed a wide selection of toys made completely of recycled household items. Together with their children the women have devised playthings that have provided hours of constructive fun.

LISTED BELOW are a few of their toy suggestions and the directions for making them:

—One of the most toy-prone household items is the plastic bleach bottle. Beach pails can be made by cutting off the top attaching a handle made of yarn or ribbon. The top portion with the cap off can be used as a funnel. With the cap on, it's a good sand or water scoop. The pieces can be painted by children with lead-free paint or trimmed with colored cellulose tape.

—A ball game for two can be made by cutting two plastic bleach bottles into scoops as follows: With bottle lying on its side, handle up and to the right, cut down from the middle of the bottle about halfway through, then tapper out to the bottom end to the left, so the scoop is a wide one. Discard the cut-out. Now make another one the same way. Using a yarn ball about the size of a tennis ball, players toss to each other and try to catch the ball in the scoops.

—For a play-alone version, take another bottle and cut the bottom from it near the end. Remove the cap and put a string or rubber band three or more feet long through the bottle from the bottom through the top. Secure the string or band by screwing the cap back on. Attach a small rubber or plastic ball to the other end of string. The object is to swing the ball on the string and catch it with, or let it fall into, the bottle's open bottom end. Children learn coordination and won't have to chase the ball in this game.

—A toy to amuse toddler is a caterpillar made from egg cartons. Cut between egg cups lengthwise into single row strips. Invert, cup side down. Add more sections if desired by securing with pipe cleaners. At the head attach two pipe cleaners for "feelers," add a string to the front and the toddler has a safe, recycled toy.

—Take an old shoe box, cut out inch-wide strips on sides to make a cage for stuffed lions, etc.

OLDER CHILDREN can make attractive gifts from empty oatmeal cartons. Cover the outside with glued-on fabric, or fancy paper. Form the word "knitting" in yarn across the front. Add braided yarn handles and the latest knitting project will have a carrying case.

New Home Treatment For Teeth

NEW YORK — A do-it-yourself dental treatment recommended by 91 per cent of dentists in the United States is eliminating or reducing pain in thousands of patients with a condition known as dental hypersensitivity, according to a national survey.

The home treatment, which is recommended to individuals whose teeth are overly-sensitive to hot, cold or sweet foods or drink, or other stimuli which are responsible for varying degrees of pain and discomfort is simple toothbrushing — with a special toothpaste.

The dentifrice has a formula, which includes strontium chloride and desensitizes teeth. It should be noted, Dr. Harry Skurnik of Montreal, Canada writes in The Journal of Periodontology, that this is a harmless strontium, not to be confused with the radioactive isotope occurring in "fallout". Both chemically and pharmacologically, strontium resembles calcium in behavior, he explains.

"It acts as a useful adjuvant to calcium in remineralizing the human skeleton." he said.

Strontium chloride has been found to make teeth hard and smooth.

Ninety-three per cent of Dr. Skurnik's patients were helped by the dentifrice. According to Dr. Skurnik and other researchers reporting in dental journals, pain relief is obtained in most patients by the end of two weeks.

The dental researchers who developed the therapeutic toothpaste added a pleasant flavoring to its formulation.

Ida Staggers—World's Oldest, Most Experienced Stewardess

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the mandatory retirement age of 60 took Ida Staggers out of the air as hostess, she promptly got airborne again on another mission for her employer.

Miss Staggers, billed as the oldest and most experienced stewardess in the airlines industry, retired officially June 1. She immediately set out to speak to other former stewardesses who'd worked for her employer, Trans World Airlines. The women have an organization called the "Clipped Wings" and Miss Staggers said to date she's visited 26 U.S. chapters.

"It's amazing what these women are doing," she said in an interview. "Almost every chapter has some charity, some volunteer project it's working with. But I guess it's only natural the girls would be active. To begin with, to become a hostess you have to have a spread of vision."

MISS STAGGERS said she will tell her story to college and other groups, talking up the airlines industry as a profession.

"I've loved every darned minute of it," said Miss Staggers of her hostess years, which began in July, 1936. In those 36 years, the woman from Hill City, Kan. (a farm community 120 miles north of Dodge City), has flown just about everywhere in the world.

She's never kept a log but the company has — some 29,000 hours in the air, 10 million miles of flying.

Her career almost spans the growth of the air age, from the 14-passenger DC2s on which she first crewed to the jumbo jet 747s with their 300-plus passenger capacity.

She's gone from propeller-driven, unpressurized craft to planes that soar 39,000 feet above the earth and travel at such speeds that nature's biological clock doesn't always adjust and jet lag is a familiar passenger complaint.

SHE'S GONE from the almost military uniform that used to mark the stewardess to mod clothes—"I never dreamed that I who once wore my skirts almost down the ankles would one day be working in hot pants," she said.

One day, when she finishes some special projects for the line, she plans to "sit down and visit" some of the places she's flown over, in and out of. "I want to do South Africa, Australia, New Zealand..." she said. "I can go out to JFK (Kennedy Airport in New York) anytime and go around the world free."

Free, anyway, on her lifetime pass on global TWA. And she can fly other carriers at reduced rates.

MISS STAGGERS' flying career began after she'd worked for two years as a private duty nurse in Kansas City. She had trained at St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City.

A friend, who was a secretary to a TWA executive, told her the airline was recruiting stewardesses. Miss Staggers, as a registered nurse, would qualify; in those early flying days, only RNs were hired.

She also qualified in size—five feet three inches. "In those days of little planes, they hired small girls," she recalled. Now when cabins are the size of auditoriums, the airlines will hire women or men up to six feet two inches for the job.

Only two developments in the flying industry fret Miss Staggers.

ONE IS the fact that passenger loads now are so large it is difficult to offer the personal attention that was possible when one hostess flew with 14 in the cabin.

"But to be good in any job you can't be blase," she said. "The girls will have to work at putting themselves there, thinking in terms of the passenger as an individual."

The other is the hijacking danger. "It is dreadful," she said, "that the industry has come to surveillance. But it is necessary for the safety of all passengers...and safety is the airlines' responsibility.

"I fear this will be with us forever and hope that air travelers will see that surveillance is necessary...that it will become as routine to them as going through customs."

She was reminded, she said, of a veteran pilot who wistfully asked her one day, "Ida, remember when all we had to worry about was flying the airplane?"

Kitchen Emerges From Dark Ages

A kitchen of the dark ages conjures up visions of primitive man huddled around a smokey fire deep in a cave. However, considering recent improvements in kitchen lighting, it has only been the past five years since homemakers began to energe from the kitchen dark ages.

One of the most significant changes in kitchens during the past five years has been the dramatic 60 per cent increase in lighting levels. Homeowners remodeling their kitchens, and families building new homes, are insisting that contractors install more kitchen lighting. The added installations are predominantly soft lighting in flush mounted ceiling fixtures.

Although lighting has taken on increasing importance in remodeling, one of the principle reasons families remodel is to upgrade their kitchen with new time-and-labor-saving appliances in today's bright and cheerful colors.

You Won't Be Marked Forever If You Go To A Hospital

DEAR READERS:

Each day I receive letters which say in many ways: "I feel so lost — is it normal to be this depressed?" Since the Thomas Eagleton fiasco, such questions have increased, with an added worry, "Will I be marked forever if I go to a hospital for treatment?" The answer is "No!!" We're not in the dark ages. Polls indicated the American people backed Eagleton three to one, remember?

The National Association for Mental Health has an excellent bulletin on "Depression," which I'd like to share with you:

Depression is an emotional state of dejection and sadness, ranging from mild discouragement and downheartedness to feelings of utter hopelessness and despair.

Mild depression is characterized by unhappiness, pessimism and discouragement. One suffering from this often feels inadequate, loses interest in the social environment. Such depression is normal, a condition of existence.

Mild depression frequently progresses to a MODERATE stage in which the same characteristics are exhibited in such a degree that it will interfere with social functioning. Conversation is difficult. The inability to think, feelings of unreality and bewilderment and various physical disturbances are also common complaints.

When the degree of depression becomes severe, there are marked changes in behavior, manifested in a decreased interest in everything. Initiative is lost, there is a preoccupation with guilt and unworthiness. Suicidal thoughts come.

Depression is not necessarily related to mental illness. It is one of the most widespread emotions occurring in normal life — usually traceable to loneliness, social or business setbacks or a loss of perspective due to fatigue or stress. Such depressions are generally transient, either subsiding spontaneously or as a result of short-term therapy.

Depression, however, may be an illness . . . A sense of guilt, sin and remorse are more common in this form than in the externally induced depressions.

There are three main treatments for depression: 1. psychotherapy, 2. Drugs, and 3. electroshock therapy.

Psychotherapy is useful for treating mild cases of depression . . . "talking through" the problem with a neutral figure will help the patient regain some. self-esteem and self-understanding.

Drugs (anti-depressants and tranquilizers) are also used for treatment of depression. Although use is widespread, their effectiveness may vary. Drugs are easily administered on an out-patient basis.

Most depressed persons requiring treatment do not require constant supervision and can remain at home. The exceptions are those patients who are extremely suicidal and those being treated by electroshock therapy. Used for moderate and severe depressions, electroshock therapy is effective (about 90 per cent). The treatment is safe and a short course (a matter of days or a month) of treatments produces dramatic improvements.

The assumption of normal activities by countless thousands of people who have been successfully treated for depression is compelling evidence that the existence of an episode of depression in a person's medical history should be considered in the same manner as a wide range of other successfully treated illnesses. — NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR MENTAL-HEALTH

Traditional Methods Coming Under Fire

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The traditional method which salesmen use to compare life insurance costs is coming under increasing fire from state insurance departments.

Under the so-called traditional method, salesmen add up premium payments over a 20-year period, then deduct expected "dividends" and cash values to determine what they say is the net cost.

In some cases, when the deducations are more than the payments, it appears that the insurance has not cost the policyholder anything. This is the method which leads Paul Harvey and others to talk about "money-back" insurance plans.

But there is a growing group of critics who say such a method of determining costs is deceptive because it does not include such factors as interest, policy lapse rates and mortality experience per company. They say true insurance costs must include these factors.

THE PRIMARY critics have been Joseph Belth, a professor at Indiana University, and Herbert Denenberg, a former professor at the Wharton School of Business, who is now insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania.

Spurred by the questions raised by Belth and Denenberg several years ago, the life insurance industry set up a committee of top officials to look into the matter. They concluded that the traditional method was indeed inadequate for determining the true cost of life insurance.

But they could not agree on a simple substitute.

Meanwhile, a system of including interest costs has been devised. It is called the "interest-adjusted" method. It aims to show the amount of interest that is lost to a policyholder who puts his money into insurance rather than, say, a savings account at 4 per cent interest.

If a bank kept a depositor's money for 20 years and then boasted of giving the "money back," it would be cheating the depositor out of the interest earned over that time.

The same is true of insurance that is sold as both income protection and an investment. (So-called "term" insurance does not include an investment feature and is therefore not involved in the dispute.)

WHEN INTEREST costs are included in 20-year projections, insurance begins to appear more expensive than it does under the simplistic "net-cost" system. For this reason, life insurance companies have been reluctant to adopt the "interest-adjusted" method.

In both Pennyslvania and Wisconsin, however, the state insurance commissioners have begun to apply pressure on the industry to do so. Both states have proposed that the "interest-adjusted method" be required in comparisons of life insurance costs. Texas is also considering such a requirement.

Helping to break the ice has been a recent publication of Denenberg's office, "A Shopper's Guide to Life Insurance." In it, he compared the actual costs of leading company policies. More than 250,000 people asked for free copies.

Denenberg says he has encountered a surprising number of insurance salesmen who do not understand the role of interest in insurance costs. But most salesmen are now aware of the controversy and are ready to discuss it with policyholders or prospective customers.

The least a person can do to protect himself is to have his agent explain the interest factor and use it in any price comparisons.

Trick Or Treat

Trick or treat may have been invented by the Irish. Irish farmers in groups were accustomed to go from house to house soliciting food for village Halloween festivities in the name of the ancient god of Irish clergy, Muck Olla. Those who gave cheerfully were promised prosperity; stingy people were threatened. Trick or treat celebrations in America are a result of Irish immigration here.

Just Lucky To Have A Good Baby

A word to new mothers: Does your baby seldom ever cry, eat regularly as clockwork, sleep like a top and when awake, plays beautifully? You think you must be doing a really terrific job as a mother, right?

What is more likely, reports the Health Insurance Institute, is that you're just lucky in having a "good" baby, according to Dr. Arhold J. Sameroff. He is a University of Rochester psychologist who says that infants have individuality at birth.

Dr. Sameroff, whose research into newborns' personalities and behavior is supported by a number of grants from government health agencies, does have comforting words, however, for the mother of the "difficult" baby — the kind many of us seem to know — who cries a lot, won't eat regularly and is extremely active.

"SHE SHOULD not worry that she is not doing a good job of 'mothering'," he told the Institute. "There are some babies who are probably 'just born this way'."

The psychologist, whose laboratory is adjacent to the nursery at the University's Strong Memorial Hospital, measures babies' "temperaments" — with permission from the mothers — by observing their activity, excitability, sleeping and eating behavior. He is trying to find out why one baby's temperament akes it "difficult" and another one "perfect."

As a result of his research, Dr. Sameroff thinks that prenatal influences may have something to do with a baby's temperament. "Anxious and tense mothers," he told the Institute, "usually have a more difficult labor and delivery" and this fact, he suggests, could be an influence in the baby's hyperactivity.

SOME OF the parental tensions at delivery time — at least the financial ones — may be reduced, points out the Institute — through health insurance. Hospital and medical costs — a source of some anxiety — can be trimmed considerably. Private health coverage or a group plan where the father or mother works will pay $150 to $350 or more toward normal medical expenses.

Nuptials in San Anselmo

Vows Exchanged In San Anselmo Church

The First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo was the setting for the wedding of Linda Swift and Paul Stefani of Novato on Sept. 2.

Linda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Swift Jr. of San Anselmo, chose her sister, Mrs. Jerome Akey of Tucson, Ariz., as her matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Gino Stefani of Walnut Creek and Sharon Stout of San Rafael.

Gino Stefani was best man for his brother and ushers were Robert Guilfi of Novato and Kenneth MacKay of San Rafael. A reception was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The bride was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin. She is employed with Dr. Marshall Taylor in Greenbrae. She is also the sister of Edward Swift of San Anselmo and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank Swift and Mrs. Ruth Thompson of Fairfax.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Angelina Bessac of Santa Barbara and Francesco Stefani of San Francisco. He is also the brother of Michael Stefani of Los Angeles. Paul was graudated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended Healds College in San Francisco after serving in the Army. He is employed with the Marin County Sheriff's Department in San Rafael.

Competition – This Woman Likes It

BRANTFORD, Canada (AP) — When Ruth Bartlett first started buying cattle, she says her male competition minded.

"They used to give me a rough time, but not any more.

"They would make wisecracks about some of the calves I bought. Sometimes they would run me up in the bidding and try to leave me stuck with too high a price. That doesn't happen too much now."

Mrs. Bartlett is believed to be the only woman cattle order buyer in Canada. She started 11 years ago, buying for the farm she and her husband Ray have at Hagersville.

"I had been buying some alves for ourselves, when one of the buyers for Monarch suggested I buy for them. I've been buying ever since."

Order buying involves knowing what her customers want. One firm may like lean calves, another may want a little more finish or a heavier weight.

A cattle buyer must be able to appraise the weight of a calf when it walks into the ring. When she bids 50 cents a pound for a veal calf that weighs 240 pounds, that's $120 of someone else's money she is spending. She may buy 60 or 70 calves a day, and a cent a pound can affect a packer's profit or loss.

Mrs. Bartlett has become the biggest buyer at local auction centers, and she says that brings its own problems.

Instructions For Rug Making

To make rug, cut a piece of unbleached muslin 48 inches x 72 inches, piecing it if necessary. Draw lines on muslin, dividing it into six-inch squares, using diagram shown.

Suggested colors: 1—bright green; 2—burgundy; 3—red; 4—chartreuse; 5—shocking pink; 6—orange; 7—gold; shaded areas—turquoise; unmarked sections—background of black o navy.

Cut piece of background fabric 52 inches x 76 inches, to allow for a two-inch margin all around. With chalk, draw a line marking off the margin and draw squares to correspond with those on unbleached muslin. Starting at center of design, cut out one or two sections of muslin for pattern pieces. Work from center to edges, so there will be the least bulk under the machine. Following colors on diagram, cut fabric from these patterns and baste in position on background. With matching thread and sewing machine set at wide zig-zag stitch, stitch each piece to background, covering raw edges with the stitching. If pieces overlap slightly, only the upper layer needs to be stitched in plae. Continue util design has been completed.

Place rug, wrong side up, on a flat surface. Pin piece of burlap 48 inches x 72 inches to wrong side of rug, two inches from edges, and tack to rug underneath the design. Fold edges of rug over burlap, mitering corners and cutting away extra bulk underneath. Pin firmly in place on burlap. Finish edges of rug with seven yards of iron-on rug binding, covering rw edges of background fabric and fastening them to burlap.

TIME FOR A FACE LIFT?

Cosmetic Surgery It's Out Of Hiding

NEW YORK (UPI)—When you would just as soon not look at your face in the mirror in the morning, the time may be right to consider a face lifting, to try cosmetic surgery which finally has come out of hiding.

Two doctors whose specialty is plastic surgery helped to provide information on what it can and cannot do during a recent seminar for editors in New York.

The two, referring to the session as an "educational mission," said surgery can do much to make the aging face look younger. But there is a limit to how much. As Dr. Victor Royce Syracuse put it, "Surgery can make you look five to 10 years younger. But once the clock is turned back, the aging process starts again."

The other doctor was Ralph L. Dicker and the two are founders of the New York Facial and Reconstructive Surgery Group.

Both surgeons are lecturers also at international congresses of facial plastic surgery and have lectured and shown their films of cosmetic surgery techniques globally.

At the seminar, they used slides to show the aging process of a woman starting at age 35. At that age, she had the start of crows' feet, a line forming from nose to mouth, suggestions of lines in her forehead.

At 45, the lines were deeper in the forehead, the crows' feet more pronounced, the neck wrinkles beginning to show, and the start of a double chin.

At 50, the lines were deeper, jowls had begun to form and muscles of the face beginning to "relax."

At 55, "everything seems to go down," as one of the surgeons said. "It's the law of gravity...double chin, neck wattle, crepey skin, nose drooping...baggy lines around the eyes."

At this point, the doctors explained the way they'd lift such a face. In most cases, the anaesthesia would be local—novocaine and maybe adrenalin to help prevent bleeding.

A scalpel would be used around the hairline, under the ears and into the scalp. The hairline would have been shaved so when the surgery healed, the incision would not show. In effect then, the doctors would pick up fallen muscles, remove excess skin, close the incision with tiny sutures so there would be no major scarring.

The operation itself would take three to four hours, they said. Recuperation would be 10 days to two weeks.

The doctors said that eye surgery after a face lift was almost always necessary to take the marks of the years off the whole face. "After a face lift you're inevitably drawn to the eyes," said Dr. Syracuse. "Otherwise, it'd be like getting some new furnitureand leaving some of the old."

Cost for the face lift depends on the area and the skill of the surgeon, they said. But it averages from $1,800 to $2,500.

What about the life of a face lift? "It'll last as long as you do," said Dr. Syracuse. And there's no reason the process can't be repeated.

The surgeons touched briefly on dermabrasion to remove lines, freezing the skin and using abrasives to penetrate the skin layers. About then, I decided I could get by another five years with a nightly slather of cold cream.

I didn't have the $1,800 to $2,500 anyway.

A Bold Challenge To New York Fashion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bold California apparel manufacturers are throwing a growing challenge at the venerable New York garment industry.

Emphasizing colorful, innovative styles, California firms boosted their total sales from $848 million in 1965 to $1.22 billion in 1971 and to an estimated $1.4 billion in 1972.

While remaining a distant second to New York in sales, the California industry's growth in the last three years has been at twice the rate for the nation as a whole, United California Bank reports.

New York apparel manufacturers' sales totaled $6.76 billion in 1965 and $7.92 billion in 1971. There was no official estimate available for 1972.

"I think the California apparel industry should outperform the industry as a whole in the next few years," says Jack Kyser, vice president and regional economist of United California Bank. "It could have an increase of 10 per cent or better in 1973.

"The industry here is offering the type of apparel that is going to be in demand in the future. This is sportswear and casual-type wear because the trend is toward informality."

This opinion is echoed by Harvey Morse, founder and owner of the $30 million California Mart, hub of the apparel industry in Los Angeles.

He says, "California manufacturers and designers have brought to the apparel industry a freshness of design ... an originality in fabric and styling ... and an array of color combinations that have become a California trademark."

The Mart, occupying twin 13-story towers completed in 1964 and 1966 in downtown Los Angeles, is a central merchandising complex in which more than 5,000 lines of wholesale men's, women's and children's wearing apparel are displayed. It operates the year around.

Tremendous Presence In Exhibit Of Prints

By ADA GARFINKEL

Phyllis Taplitz's prints currently on exhibit at the Corte Madera Library, have a tremendous amount of presence.

Sensuous in color — rich, luscious reds, purples, blues, and greens — and of the utmost simplicity of form, her work has a remarkable sweep of space and thrust, as, for example, in "Yosemite Falls," "Suspension," "Endless Flow," and "Primeval Dawn."

Although her seascapes and landscapes are abstracted, they are instantly identifiable. A singular example of this may be seen in "Pastoral Journey," a parklike setting with stark, barren trees of bright cadmium red. And in "Sailing" (a small lino-cut), lilting triangles become sails, and against a wavy purple band of color, it conveys the very feeling of being on the water.

The artist's diversified technical ability creates a skillful legerdemain in "Serenity by the Sea" which is indicated as a relief print. Using rice-paper with its characteristic ragged edge, and employing delicate gradations of color, it comes out looking more like a water color.

Mrs. Taplitz, who has had a background of fashion design and illustration has been able to overcome the stereotype fashion-figure disposition of the human form. This is readily apparent in "Waiting," a somber and thoughtful depiction of maternity. Here, two archetypal women are shown on a reddish background with a high-perspective floorline and a low-down-slant ceiling. This creates a looming and monumental quality, and the viewer is caught up in the suspense of the impending event.

Most recently the artist has added colographs to her media repertoire. Thus, in "Pulsation" the visible marking of texture is of nylon netting which blends in subtly as background. And a geometric mandala form is used to convey her interpretation of the "Cosmos" in cerulean blues with touches of pink and red.

Included in this exhibit of 23 prints by Mrs. Taplitz, are several with the characteristic woodgrain texture, some of intimate family scenes and portraits.

The exhibit will continue at the Corte Madera library, 707 Meadowsweet Drive, through September, and may be seen from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Supervisors Still Deadlocked Over Purchase Of Carousel

Marin County supervisors remained deadlocked yesterday over whether to proceed with purchase of an antique carousel from San Francisco's defunct Playland-at-the-Beach.

After about an hour's discussion, the board's 2-2 split which developed last week remained unchanged even though the carousel owner, Martin Davis, sent word he was willing to negotiate his $62,500 price.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who jined Louis H. Baar in oppostion to the merry-go-round deal, said he had been informed the carousel was only worth half the owner's asking price. He said he "would have hoped it would have been privately financed."

Purchase of the 56-year-old carousel was proposed earlier this month by supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. They urged their fellow board members to go along with "the once in a lifetime opportunity" to buy it for $62,500.

Baar and Baptiste balked, however, saying not enough was known of the equipment's life expectancy, operating cost and storage requirements.

Little new was offered yesterday, through the supervisors office had earlier been swamped with telephone calls in support.

Since last week, two other carousels have been offered to the county ranging in price from $12,500 to $15,000.

"We could buy a brand new one for $20,000," said Baar, adding "we wouldn't go to an auto wrecker to buy an auto."

Beth Rowen of San Rafael, seeking appointment to the vacant board seat, told the supervisors she opposed spending public funds on the merry-go-round.

"I don't want the question of the merry-go-round to die," said Arrigoni, directing the public works department to study operation costs and where it could be placed on the fairgrounds.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

TRIP — Learned from Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that he, Supervisor Louis H. Baar and County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney will travel to Washington, D.C. next week to testify before a Senate committee in support of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

SWIMMER — Approved unanimously a resolution commending Rick DeMont, ar. olympic swimmer from Terra Linda, for his gold medal win this month. The medal was subsequently withdrawn by olympic officials in a dispute over medicine used by the 16-year-old.

AUTOS — Upheld a request from the public defender's office that its investigators be allowed to continue using county-owned vehicles. The administrator's office, following board policy, had moved to place the autos back in the general pool.

PARKS — Rejected a request from Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske to pay a park planner for open space $1,318 per month. The board approved a salary of $1,195.

LUCAS VALLEY — Approved a master plan amendment for Lucas Valley Unit 10 permitting eight homes.

INTERSECTION — Agreed to ask the state division of highways to correct dangerous conditions at the Los Ranchitos Road intersection with Highway 101 near Civic Center.

APARTMENTS — Approved plans for a 28-unit apartment development on Merrydale Road in San Rafael Meadows over the protests of nearby residents. The apartment project had been approved unanimously by the planning commission.

Navy Program Deadline Set

Men and women interested in a four-year scholarship through the Navy Reserve Officers Training Corps program have until Nov. 1 to apply, said Harry Wiggs, Navy recruiter in San Rafael.

Under the program, the Navy ROTC pays tuition, educational fees, books, uniforms and $100 per month subsistance allowance. The scholarships may be used at any of 53 approved colleges in the country.

Applicants will be chosen on the basis of college testing scores. Five scholarships were awarded to Marin County students last year, Wiggs said.

Suburban Auto Hosts All-Stars Saturday

Suburban Auto Repair of San Rafael will host the Golden Gate Softball League North-South All-Star game Saturday night at 8 o'clock in Albert Park.

The nine inning affair, held for the first time in Marin County, features Suburban stars catcher Jess Munyon, third baseman Phil Gambucci, and outfielder Dennis Staub.

Authorization Given To Build New Power Unit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has been granted authority to construct generating unit 11 at the Geysers Power Plant between Cloverdale and Middletown in northeast Sonoma County.

Scheduled for operation in August, 1974, the unit will cost about $3,383,000, including substation and transmission facilities.

It will have a capacity of 106,000 kilowatts and bring the plant's total operating capacity to 502,000 kilowatts.

The Public Utilities Commission held Tuesday that the project "does not compete with, or limit or prevent generation by" other agencies, particularly the Northern California Power Agency which represents 11 cities, each with its own municipal electric system.

Alioto—Look Trial Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Opening of the $12.5 million Alioto-Look magazine libel retrial has been delayed until Sept. 25.

U.S. District Court judge Russell E. Smith Tuesday put the trial over from its previous Sept. 16 staring date because James F. Boccardo, of San Jose, an Alioto attorney, will be engagd in another case.

The suit by San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto is over an article in the now-defunct magazine entitled "The Web that Links San Franicsco Mayor Alioto with the Mafia." The article appeared in the Sept. 9, 1969 issue of Look.

The first trial ended in a hung jury May 15, 1970 after 19 days of trial and four days of jury deliberations.

Transportation Program Lashed

The Phase II report of Marin's balanced transportation program took another whipping yesterday from county supervisors, one of whom labled it "an Alice in Wonderland approach" to solving transportation problems. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The study is basically a 1990 transportation forecast recommending that transit needs be met by 350 intracounty buses operating on 23 miles of separate "busways."

It recommends against any new freeways, major road widenings or a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Supervisor Michael Wornum said the City-County Planning Council of Marin's transportation committee was "anti-road and anti-automobile" and had precluded study of new road networks as a means of improving intracounty travel.

Yesterday was the second time in a month the study has come under fire from the board. Last month, the board lashed out at it for having been "politically influenced" by a committee of the City-County Planning Council — charged with aiding in the study.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, most scornful of the supervisors, said he found sections of the transportation study "environmentally degrading and fiscally impossible."

He listed those as sections recommending intracounty buses within five to 10 minutes walk of most residents' homes.

"I'm not going to approve it," he warned. "Some basic assumptions have to be cleaned up before getting into long-range policy decisions for Phase III."

Baptiste's fiery salvo came as he prepared to leave for a luncheon engagement. He questioned the validity of the report's assumptions that only 285,000 persons will be living in Marin by 1990 and that the number of Marin jobs will double from the present 50,000.

As explained by Robert L. Harrison, who spearheaded the study for the county planning department, the study recommends keeping road congestion about the same as today and picking up the added number of people through improved transit.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar questioned whether residents could ever be induced to leave their autos in favor of public intracounty transit.

"I just don't think you will force people into buses in a suburban area," Baar said, citing an example of a housewife trying to do her grocery shopping by bus. "The community we have has been laid out for autos."

Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., said the alternatives to providing an expensive transit system were "frightening" since they relied on vastly expanded roadways. "We do have a chance in Marin County to lessen the dependency on autos," he said, adding he generally favored the report but questioned parts.

Anne West, a member of the city-county group's transportation committee, said the committee believed portions of the study not strong enough against the auto. She said the committee supported much of it, however.

Mrs. West said the county was "heading straight for an environmental disaster" unless population, land use and transportation were controlled.

Wornum, also a director by the Golden Gate Bridge District board, said the recommendation against a second (transit) deck on the bridge "really upsets me."

Without it, he continued, transit to San Francisco would be hampered as would auto traffic.

"If we are going to use the bridge as a throttle, why did we spend $3 million of the state's money widening Richardson Bay Bridge?" he asked.

Wornum, who has been urging a transit deck on the bridge for years, said he felt the staff and the city-county planning council had pulled the rug out from under him.

He also questioned other portions f the report such as that section saying one of its aims was to create "social diversity" in local neighborhood by providing transit.

"Who are we kidding?" said Wornum.

The study will be reviewed again Oct. 3.

Youth Killed By High Voltage

WEST COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—A 14-year-old member of the Brookland-Cayce High School football team was killed and five others injured Tuesday when a goal post came in contact with a high voltage wire.

Assistant Principal Jim Porter said the boys were leaning on the goal post during practice when they began to make it sway. He said the post then came in contact with the electrical line.

The boy, Charles E. Derrenbacher, was taken to the Baptist hospital in serious condition. He later died.

Board, Teachers Battle On Pay

The Petaluma Board of Education backed off on employee salary raises last night after teachers charged negotiations had not been conducted legally and traded bitter accusations with board members.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer had recommended elementary district employees receive a 2 per cent increase and high school district employees 4 per cent raises, but teachers packed the room to say it would not be enough.

Teachers bickered heatedly among themselves on what approach to take on negotiations. Paul A. Lyon, first vice president of the Association of Petaluma Area Teachers, charged in a letter that the board had violated the Winton Act because it failed to negotiate in good faith. He said the negotiation council met with Meyer, but not concerning salaries.

Charles Craig, association president, disavowed any part of the letter and said Lyon was not speaking for the organization. Lyon said he had resigned as negotiations chairman last month because of differences of opinion with Craig. "He's not willing to push hard enough," Lyon said of Craig.

Board president Arthur L. Lafranchi, an attorney, said the implications of the charge were legally dangerous and called for an opinion from the county counsel's office before proceeding further.

"I don't know what's behind it," Lafranchi said. "It would be a suit and I don't want to see the district walk into a trap."

Teachers charged individually that the proposed raises wouldn't allow them to keep up with the rising cost of living. They said morale in the district is at an all-time low.

Under the salary plan, all employees would receive the same amount of increase regardless of their place on the salary schedule since raises would be based on averages.

Elementary teachers would receive $200 more for the 1972-73 school year; high school district teachers $400 more; elementary district classified employees $120; and high school classified employees $240.

Business Mgr. George W. Castleberry said the increases would cost the high school district $168,000 and the elementary district $34,000.

Normally, the same increases are granted to elementary and high school district employees, but Meyer said the financially troubled elementary district could not allow for more than a 2 per cent increase. The board agreed the action would not be precedent-setting and that common increases will be granted again when more money is available.

Board member Daniel Plumley said more money would have been on hand if last March's tax rate increase election had passed and said teachers didn't work hard enough for its passage. He expressed surprise at the teachers' reactions and said, "We're giving you what we can."

Lyon countercharged that the board did not tell the public in March that the extra money would go largely for teachers salaries. "You didn't ask for money for salaries," he said. "You asked for money for schools and tried to slip it past the public. You're just inefficient."

Recommendations by Meyer to restore budget cuts in school operations also were shelved as teachers demanded that all funds that have recently become available from the state should be subject to salary negotiation.

Meyer's recommendations had included increasing the supply budget by $30,000, adding $30,000 to the maintenance budget and adding $25,000 to the operations budget and $25,000 for a reading program report, all to be spent in the high school district. A plan to hire an additional psychologist to serve both districts also was shoved aside.

Lafranchi said the board would await a legal decision on the negotiation question before going further.

The Petaluma Board of Education Also:

Final Meet On Building Plan Set

The Technical Housing Advisory Committee of the Marin County Planning Commission will hold its final meeting tomorrow to complete work on a proposed incentive plan for building low and moderate-income housing mingled with more expensive homes in new subdivisions and older neighborhoods.

The committee will meet at 4 p.m. in the Marin County Planning Department conference room at the Civic Center.

The proposal would allow developers to build additional units in return for providing lower-cost units within the development. Still to be refined are the price ranges of units to qualify for the bonus, and proposals to lower expenses of street, sewer and utility improvements to enable developers to sell housing at less cost, according to Ruth Friedlander, planning aide and secretary to the committee.

The committee, which has been meeting for more than a year, also will discuss how to present its recommendationsto the planning commission, board of supervisors and other agencies involved.

Nixon Director: Build It Right

DETROIT (UPI) — President Nixon's director of consumer affairs, Virginia H. Knauer, has challenged Detroit industrialists to "build the cars right and the tires right the first time around."

Mrs. Knauer said yesterday she took a survey in 1971 which "showed that automobile problems were a major source of consumer complaint in virtually every state.

"Clearly, there's a problem, and clearly, something has to be done about it," she told a National Convention of the American Automobile Association.

"For once and for all, let's see if we can cut down on the recalls. Let's build the cars right and the tires right the first time around."

She said a recent Harris Poll found that three-quarters of the public rated the auto industry negatively on its "ability to give a good buy for the money," including service rendered by auto dealerships.

$1,300 Raised By Book Sale

The Friends of the Marin County Free Library has announced that it made $1,300 from its annual book sale at the College of Marin last month.

The board, at its meeting Monday night at the new regional library in Corte Madera, also announced it has contributed a collection of San Quentin Prison memorabilia to the county library at the Civic Center and is considering purchasing opera scores, scripts, records and tapes for its member libraries.

A proposal was made to establish a library board to coordinate activities among member libraries and with the Friends of the California State Libraries. Leonard Born, president of the Friends' board, was authorized to make such a suggestion to the county board of supervisors.

The board will next meet Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in the Corte Madera regional library.

23-Year-Old Arrested On Drug Charge

A 23-year-old man was arrested today on suspicion of being under the influence of drugs and possession of dangerous drugs.

David William Newton, 23, reported by San Rafael police to live at 32 Humbolt Street, San Anselmo, Anselmo and by sheriff's deputies to live at 32 Arroyo Road, Fairfax, was held in Marin County Jail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

His wife, Sandra Rae Newton, 25, was released with their 3-year-old son.

A 16-year-old juvenile with them was cited to juvenile authorities as under the influence of drugs. His name was withheld by order of Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

According to San Rafael Police, the Newton car was stopped after midnight in the 600 block of Francisco Boulevard and Newton appeared to be under the influence of narcotics.

Police said they found two capsules, a bag containing a white powder thought to be heroin, two bags containing a brown substance and a leather bag with a white powder in it on the floor of the car, according to reports.

Nixon Speechmaker Blasts President's No-New-Tax Vow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, one of President Nixon's key reelection speechmakers, said today the President wasn't being "altogether honest" in promising no new taxes if he wins a second term.

"I think we're living in a dream worl," Saxbe told a news conference.

Saxbe also criticized the revenue-sharing measure the Senate passed Tuesday, calling it "a fraud on the public."

"It's just typical of the politics of today when both parties are trying to fool the people," he said, and added:

"I don't think the President is being altogether honest with the people when he says there won't be any new taxes."

Saxbe said Nixon had qualified his statement by saying it applied if Congress kept government spending under $250 billion, then commented: "That's great. You can say the same thing to your wife —don't buy any groceries and we won't go into debt." Asked what tax increases he foresaw, Saxbe replied: "Across-the-board percentage increases ... at every level."

"I'm sorry that I can't be more pleased with what's going on," he added. "The country's full of con-men and a lot of them are in politics."

Saxbe, chosen by Nixon to make numerous re-election speeches throughout the nation, also criticized Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the Democratic presidential nominee, for his stands on defense spending and farm and food prices.

He dismissed McGovern's campaign as being merely a prelude to a 1976 presidential bid by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I get the feeling it's Kennedy's '76 campaign," he said. "McGovern can't get a crowd."

Fairfax Break-In Hearing Slated

A preliminary hearing in Marin municipal Court has been scheduled for next Tuesday for two Central Marin men charged with breaking into a Fairfax home in order to burglarize it.

Joel Andrews Petterson of San Anselmo and Richard James Giakovmis, 19, of San Rafael, are charged with breaking into the home of Robert J. Cole of 276 Tamalpais Road and stacking items in the living room.

Police said Giakovmis and Petterson were seen in the neighborhood before the June 12 burglary and were arrested on warrants after fingerprints matched with Giakovmis's were found in the house.

PET DELIVERY — Kevin Greenwood of San Rafael, cofounder of the new "Fresh Air Animal Taxi" for Marin, helps a customer alight at its destination. The dog is Tashi, a lhasa apso. Greenwood's service delivers dogs or cats to grooming parlors, kennels, veterinarians or airports.

NEW BUSINESS

Fresh Air Animal Taxi 'Beats Flipping Pizzas'

By JEFF GREER

"Running a taxi for pets sure beats flipping pizzas," declared young Kevin Greenwood of San Rafael.

Greenwood and his wife, Janet, now are veterans of two weeks of operating Marin County's first animal pickup and delivery service. For a fee, the "Fresh Air Animal Taxi" will take a family dog or cat to the veterinarian, to a kennel, grooming parlor or to or from an airport, any time day or night.

Greenwood, 25, holds a master's degree in creative arts, and teaches part time at San Francisco State. He had been depending on a pizza parlor job for steady income until he and his wife decided to test the old American business adage that the straightest road to success was to find a service that was needed — and supply it.

She is a part-time employee wih one of Marin's largest boarding kennels, a student, and part-time art therapist in a local hospital.

Both are animal lovers — she formerly raised Saint Bernard dogs in San Jose and he owned German Shepherds.

Going into business for themselves involved wading through such complexities as finding insurance to cover the dogs and cats riding in their "taxi," arranging for an answering service to handle appointments, and obtaining crates and carrying cages for pets ranging in size from kittens to Great Danes.

They started out with a shiny little compact sedan, its back seat removed to provide room for the crates. Already, they've had to begin negotiations for a small van to meet growing demand.

As an introduction to their pet transport service, the Greenwoods will offer free transportation for pets being taken to the low-cost Animal Birth Control Clinic in San Rafael, next Monday through Friday, Greenwood said.

He said the taxi service will offer a 50 per cent discount for pets using the spaying clinic at other times, and he hopes to make similar arrangements with the Marin County Veterinary Medical Association spaying program.

The taxi service is for pets rather than people, but Mrs. Greenwood reported they're rapidly finding that pet lovers are very particular persons. One patron insisted on riding along with her cat to reassure herself that kitty would enjoy the trip, Mrs. Greenwood reported.

The husband said he'd be happy if the "Fresh Air Animal Taxi" business proves successful enough to sidetrack other career plans for a few years.

Larkspur Planners Will Hear Proposal For Train Excursions

A Sept. 26 public hearing was set last night by the Larkspur Planning Commission on a plan by a youthful railroad enthusiast to run steam excursion trains between Baltimore Park and Sausalito.

Douglas B. Morgan, owner of a rail car renovation company in Greenbrae, told the commission he planned intermittent weekend service at first, depending on reaction from residents and official bodies in communities through which the train would run.

Morgan's project already has received a chilly reception in Mill Valley.

The Larkspur commissioners didn't indicate their position, following instead a suggestion by City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that community opinion be sought through an informal hearing.

Bathurst cited noise, parking and the futre of the abandoned Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way as areas of concern.

"I could live with all kinds of suggestions," said Morgan, who added he plans $20,000 in track improvements if the service is greeted favorably.

Larkspur officials said residents along the tracks, as well as representatives of the city's property owner groups, would be notified of the Sept. 26 hearing.

The Larkspur Planning Commission Also:

ACCESS — Recommended to the city cil for adoption of an ordinance that requires public access to the main channel of Corte Madera Creek be provided by developers of subdivisions containing more than 200 units. The ordinance follows recent state law.

DESIGN — After long delay, gave design approval to multiple dwelling units proposed by developer Niels Schultz Jr. on South Eliseo Drive.

CONDOMINIUMS — Conditionally approved design of a condominium development proposed by John A. Moran at 515 Larkspur Plaza Drive, pending review by the city's architectural review committee of color, building exterior and related matters.

TIME — Passed to the council an ordinance setting time limits on use permit life.

Sex Charges Dropped Against Marin Man

Six sex charges against a 32-year-old San Rafael man were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for several reasons.

Judge Robert A. Smallman freed Robert Thomas St. Jovite of three felony counts of indecent exposure, one count of lewd and lascivious behavior with a 10-year-old child, a felony charge of soliciting a person to perform lewd acts and a misdemeanor count of failing to register as a person convicted previously of indecent exposure.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Edward Turrico said the registration and felony exposure counts, which stemmed from 1970 and 1971, were dismissed because, although St. Jovite was convicted previously in 1958, his record was cleared in 1961.

Turrico said indecent exposure can only be a felony if there is a previous conviction on the record. The other two counts were dropped after witnesses failed to identify St. Jovite, Turrico said.

Two Shops In Marinwood Hit For Cash By Burglars

A total of $383 was taken from two Marinwood shops Sunday or Monday by burglars, the sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Deputies said $25 was taken from the Golden Mirror Beauty Salon, 195 Marinwood Drive, and $358 from the Bourbon Shop at 197 Marinwood Drive between 10 p.m. and 4 a.m.

Air Compressor Stolen

An eight horsepower air compressor valued at $500 was stolen from a shop of the Alan Marin Construction Co. on Damont Way in Tamalpais Valley between 5 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Friday, the sheriff's department said yesterday.

Zone Changes Recommended In Larkspur

A short-handed Larkspur Planning Commission last night recommended a series of zoning changes to foster planned commercial and residential development of a large portion of the San Quentin Peninsula.

The vote on the request by T. I. Properties, an investment corporation, was 2-1, Charles H. Curley dissenting.

Preliminary plans for about 100 acres of land east of Highway 101 and north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a T. I. spokesman has said, include a hotel and convention center, a swimming and tennis development, shops, offices and apartments. Nearly 75 per cent of the site would be devoted to residential use.

Curley's objection, though broad-based, focused primarily on timing of the approval. He said the action was premature in view of the fact that a consultant's suggested general plan for the area is expected in city hands by Oct. 11.

"I feel this is backward planning," he said. Curley added it was unfortunate that two commissioners — Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Leonard S. Rubin — weren't present for a discussion "of this magnitude."

Rubin, however, joined the commission after the T.I. discussion.

With Earl J. O'Grady and chairman Otto Hoefler approving, the commission endorsed rezoning of two parcels to multiple dwelling and commercial from industrial and "study" designations, as well as prezoning to multiple dwelling ridgetop property which the city wishes to annex from San Rafael.

But the majority said the vote rested on the outcome of the general plan study being conducted by Dan Coleman and Associates, the $3,500 cost of which is being paid by T.I. Properties. The T. I. concept would be placed in jeopardy if Coleman recommends contrary uses.

Norman T. Gilroy, Sausalito architect and design consultant for T. I. in Marin, told the commission his client wished to proceed with the rezoning and take its chances on the Coleman study outcome. The reason, he said, is that T.I. wants to maintain interest among potential users of the 100 acres, some of whom are eyeing Corte Madera's planned regional shopping center for space.

Gilroy also emphasized that the rezoning was not binding, merely to guide the developers in general "land use concept." Arthur M. Stout, city planning and community development director, told the group that development plans ultimately would be considered under a "planned community" application.

O'Grady disputed Curley's charge that the commission action was premature. O'Grady said the area has been studied for years and that the suggested uses are compatible with city development policy conference recommendations earlier this year. "It's not a rush job," he said.

Death Row Is Finally Empty

San Quentin's historic Death Row was officially closed yesterday, according to Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer.

Six convicts who had occupied cells in the condemned men's quarters were transferred to other facilities, and in some cases other prisons.

O'Brien said the last man to be moved out was Gordon Barkley, 38, sent to Death Row in February after strangling a 10-year-old girl in Los Angeles County. He was transferred to Folsom Prison.

The long-idle, apple-green gas chamber adjoining Death Row will remain intact until state penal authorities "see how things go" with proposals to reinstate the death penalty in California, O'Brien said. If the death penalty remains outlawed, the execution chamber will be dismantled, O'Brien predicted.

Sausalito Woman Reports Attack

A 22-year-old waitress in San Francisco was raped early today by a hitchhiker she had picked up on her way home to Sausalito, sheriff's deputies reported.

The woman said she picked up the hitchhiker near Lombard Street in San Francisco at about 2:30 a.m. and was forced at gunpoint to drive up a fire road in Marin City where the hitchhiker raped her.

According to sheriff's deputies, the unidentified man then got back into her car and was dropped off in the Marin City housing project.

Florida Tourists Lose Cash, Guitar To Burglar

Two tourists from Tampa, Fla., went home short $300 cash and a $150 guitar because a burglar broke into their car near Stinson Beach Friday, sheriff's deputies said today.

Deputies said the money belonging to Valeria M. Kaskeski and the guitar of Stanley F. Moore were taken from their car on Shoreline Highway about one and a half miles from Stinson Beach at 7:30 p.m.

Flares With Wick Thrown At Fire Department Door

Two road flares with a burning wick attached were thrown against a door of the Tamalpais Valley Fire Department Friday, but firemen reached the device before it burst, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

The flares bound together with electrician's tape bounced off the door at 11:30 p.m., deputies said.

Fairfax Can Use Site Of School For Debris

Fairfax School District trustees last night voted to let the Town of Fairfax use district property at White Hill School as a debris disposal site, according to Gwyneth McGee, board secretary.

The property, once it is filled, will be added to the school playground area. School board members inspected the site prior to their adjourned business meeting in the school last night.

The Fairfax School District Board also:

BUSING — Refused to support the antibusing initiative sponsored by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-Los Angeles. Trustees declared the issue not germane to Fairfax, but said Wakefield's proposal would prevent districts from busing pupils in emergencies such as post-earthquake periods if local schools were closed by damage.

CRASH VICTIM — Ordered condolences sent to Dr. Rolland Carter, husband of Fairfax special education teacher Julia L. Carter, who was killed in a traffic accident near Vallejo Sept. 5. Plans were discussed to recruit a replacement for Mrs. Carter, who had taught 22 years in Fairfax.

NEWSLETTER — Approved plans to begin distributing a monthly newsletter to district parents and teachers.

TAX INITIATIVE — Ordered a resolution against the so-called Watson tax limit initiative prepared for adoption at the board's Sept. 26 business meeting.

STAFF EVALUATION — Adopted a district policy for staff evaluation, as required under the Stull Act.

TRANSFER — Approved the request by a Fairfax mother who is a Dixie School District teacher that her child be allowed to attend school in the Dixie district.

ENROLLMENT — Received a report from Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond that enrollment as of yesterday was 597, down 40 from the district total a year ago.

TOUR — Scheduled a special meeting for 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the district office, to make a tour of the district's school buildings, district office and storage facilities under construction.

Record Number Of Riders Took Golden Gate Buses

Golden Gate Transit buses carried a record 6,388 commuters from Sonoma and Marin Counties to San Francisco Monday morning, according to H. Donald White, transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

White said that despite the heavy patronage, only eight standees were reported on the buses, indicating the scheduling is providing adequate seat availability.

Average patronage on Grayhound buses which served the two counties' commuters until Jan. 3 this year, was between 4,000 and 5,000 riders each morning.

Wounded Man Identified; Hearing Slated Tuesday

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in identifying a man wounded near the heliport on Richardson Bay Thursday in a knife fight in which another man was killed.

The wounded man was Paul Earl Jordan, 44.

Carlos Rico, 22, a transient, is charged with manslaughter in the killing of Dean Russell Ironcloud, 25, also a transient, during the fight. Rico has pleaded innocent and will face a preliminary hearing next Tuesday.

Tomales Bay State Park Closed — Water Shortage

Tomales Bay State Park north of Inverness was closed yesterday and will remain closed for an indefinite period because of a water shortage, park rangers said.

James Phillips, a ranger at the state park office at Samuel P. Taylor State Park in Lagunitas, said springs feeding water outlets in the West Marin park had stopped running. He pointed to low rainfall last winter and the virtually rainless summer.

Pleads Guilty To Drug Charge

One of two San Rafael residents arrested after an offduty sheriff's deputy thought he saw a drug sale in progress pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor possession of dangerous drugs.

Judge David R. Baty then set sentencing for Roxanne Lynn Baldi, 21, for Oct. 13.

For codefendant Earl Eugene Butler, 42, Judge Baty heard part of a preliminary hearing on a charge of selling dangerous drugs, then continued it to Oct. 3 for decision.

San Rafael police arrested the two after Deputy Warren Wright reported the sale of pills in a booth at Anjo's Bar, 535 Fourth Street.

Police said they found a plastic bag and pill bottle each containing white pills in Mrs. Baldi's purse.

Phone Refund Hearing Held

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The California Public Utilities Commission is holding a hearing on whether 29 independent telephone companies must make refunds totaling about $11 million.

The State Supreme Court on Aug. 8 ruled a $143 million rate increase granted Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. was illegal and ordered refunds.

The present hearing involves money collected by the independents when their calls went over PT&T lines.

The court had ordered the refunds from the independents but the commission granted a rehearing at the request of General Telephone Co.

South Sonoma Arraignment Set

Edward Michael Upchurch, 20, of 212 Baker Street, Petaluma, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of stolen property, dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia.

He was booked into the city jail on $1,000 bail and scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Police said he was found with items reported stolen June 22 from the home of B. L. Christie, 533 Murray Drive, Petaluma. Officers said drugs and narcotics paraphernalia also were found in his possession.

Easter Seal Group Starts Drive

The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin has launched its annual membership drive, president James W. McClintock announced today.

The society, at 1601 Second Street in San Rafael, provides a number of services for handicapped people, including speech and language therapy, recreation and social development, resident and day camping, equipment loans, and others.

Board Wants Meeting On Finances

Amid reports of possible relief, the San Rafael Board of Education said last night it intends to meet with the city council over a financial squeeze that would be posed by a community redevelopment project.

Supt. John F. Plank said the baord was told by Michael Mitchell, county auditor-controller, that a newly enacted state law enables release of tax revenue frozen in some redevelopmnet projects for school use.

Plank said the law is an outgrowth of suits brought by several Southern California school districts against community redevelopment agencies.

The San Rafael City Council has designated a large portion of the community as a potential redevelopment area, meaning that bonds may be issued to finance public improvements in the region.

While the cost of the improvements is being paid off, tax revenue accruing from private property enhancement in a redevelopment area is frozen under state law. School and special districts, as well as the city's own general fund, don't benefit immediately as a result.

Plank said Mitchell, while not expressing opposition to redevelopment, nevertheless urged the school board to keep its "eyes wide open" on the issue.

The San Rafael Board of Education Also:

ANTIDRUG — Formally endorsed a pilot antidrug project, involving a myriad of agencies under the coordination of the county drug abuse office, that will start in the school system this fall. The board said it expected progress reports along the way. Project cost of $3,000 will be borne by outside funds. Other Marin public schools also are involved.

DeMONT — Voted to send congratulations to Olympic swimmer, Rick DeMont, a Terra Linda High School student, on whom misfortune fell in the Munich games. Board member Francis X. Kelly said he believed the 16-year-old student actually earned three gold medals, including "one for his exemplary conduct and attitude."

GLENWOOD — In response to citizen concern, asked for a cost study of placing a graveled walk across a portion of the proposed Glenwood Middle School site that tends to flood in winter.

GOALS — Accepted from the citizens advisory committee a statement of recommended student learning and behavior goals.

PERSONNEL — Approved appointment of 15 teaching and nonteaching personnel and accepted the resignations and leave requests of seven others. It also endorsed hiring of 53 adult education instructors at $8.45 per hour each.

GIFTS — Accepted gifts of a stadium cash box from Maurice Johnson and of a volume of encyclopedias from Compton's Encyclopedia.

MEETING — Said it next would meet Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Santa Venetia Middle School, preceded by a tour of new facilities at the school.

County Crackdown On Bolinas Mesa 'Motor Homes'

Residents Grumble Over 'Appalachia In Marin'

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The license plates on the old yellow school bus read "Utah 62." Out of one window curved a rusty stovepipe. Inside, dirty dishes were stacked randomly about. Mattresses lined the floor. The smell of stale urine hung in the air.

"This is what it's all about," said a disgruntled Bolinas Mesa resident, motioning to the bus. "Would you want that next door to you?"

"Appalachia, Marin County style," another resident said sarcastically.

The men, joined by several of their neighbors, stood chatting as an official from the county planning department slipped a printed warning into the bus.

The notice warned the absent residents that they had until today to meet health and safety standards and obtain a county permit, or to move on.

That chore done, the men, the county official and a deputy sheriff climbed back into their cars and the caravan bumped its way down another dusty mesa road in search of more of the homes.

The old yellow bus was one of more than a dozen such dwellings singled out in one day by the county in a new, get-tough policy with West Marin's swelling population of youthful transients — unaffectionately known as "the blight" by the area's more-established residents.

The crackdown was ordered last week by county supervisors after about two years of complaining by Bolinas home and property owners.

Under existing county regulations, it is illegal to reside in a "motor home" which is not adequately equipped to handle garbage and sewage. Also, a use permit must be obtained under the zoning ordinance.

For most of the mesa's transient "street sleepers," the high cost of an adequate sewage system will probably dictate their move from Marin.

"If they have a different life style, that's fine," said Rey Collins, the county's zoning enforcement officer, as she handed out the warnings. "But they must be cognizant of other people's life styles."

She was accompanied by Deputy James Riddell of the county sheriff's department.

Mrs. Collins's sentiments were echoed by a small contingent of residents who accompanied her on her rounds.

"This is a great day," said one elderly resident as another warning was delivered, this time into the back of a large van. The van's occupant wasn't inside.

"You can say that again," responded Alonzo S. Nelson, who purchased his retirement home in Bolinas six years ago. "It's been a long time coming."

While most of the dwellings appeared lived-in, only a few were occupied when Mrs. Collins knocked. ("The word got around fast," as one resident put it.)

One occupied dwelling was that of Jay Pursellary. His home was a vintage milk van.

Pursellary broke down crying when informed of the ordinances prohibiting living in vehicles without a permit or sanitary facilities.

"I just come here to crash at night," he said, adding he was on welfare but had been traveling around the state lately.

"Why should I have to buy a permit? Its the county's money anyway," he said.

Another stop was at the home of Dale F. Roddy. A baby's cries came from inside the blue camper back, which had been removed from a pickup truck.

Toilet paper, human waste and flies covered what served as kind of a "front yard" to the Roddy home.

"Yes ... interesting ... that's cool ... is that right?" were Roddy's comments as the ordinace was explained. "We're only living here temporarily."

"You have until Wednesday to get a permit (and sanitary facilities)," responded Mrs. Collins.

Most of the dwellings to receive warnings appeared to be clear-cut violations, but one young family was caught on the fringe.

Nina Bellak, 24, resides with her family in a teepee, though the family's cooking and sanitary facilities are located in a small trailer nearby.

She was warned that if the family sleeps in the teepee, it also must have sanitary facilities and must meet the building code.

"We've gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to be legal," she told the Independent-Journal, adding the family was planning to build a home on the lot for which they had already acquired a building permit.

A use permit for the small trailer had been acquired and toilet facilities had been connected to a septic tank which cost "a couple of thousand dollars," she said.

Requiring another $35 permit is unfair, she added.

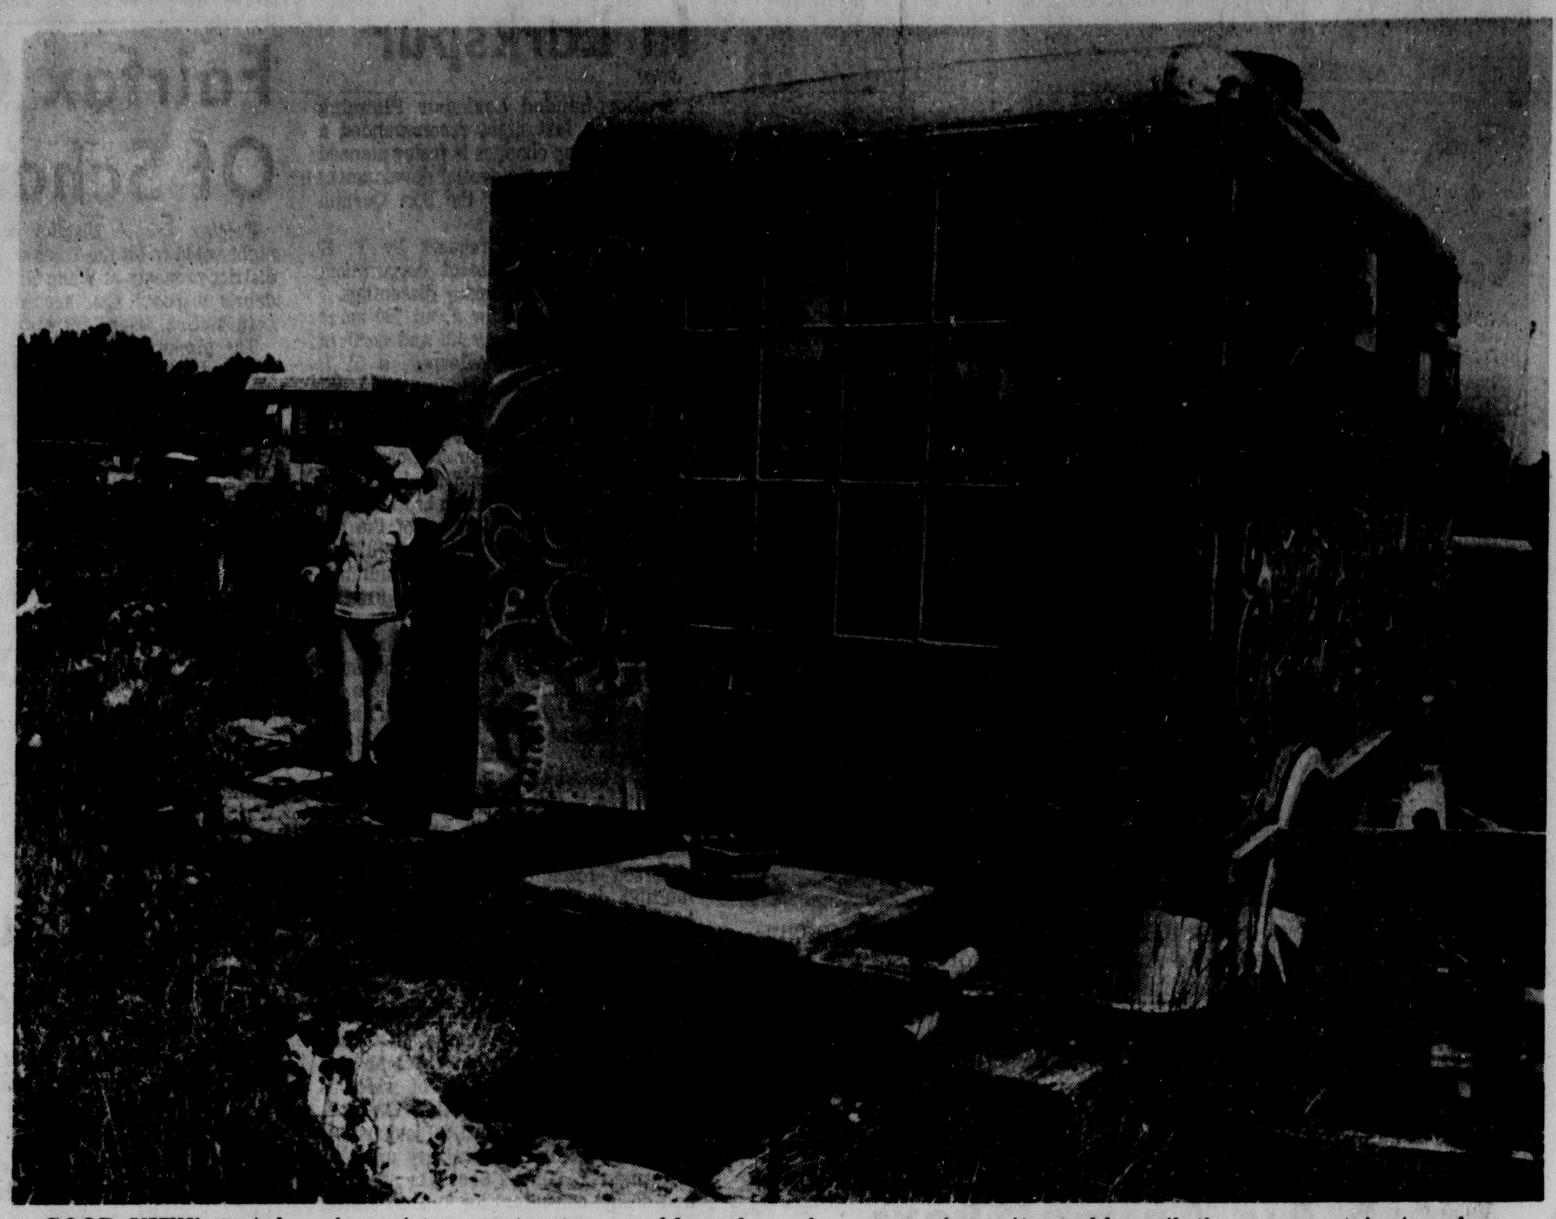
"This really angers me. There's no hope for communication and working together if they (complaining residents) run to law enforcement officials."

She said, however, that she agreed with their efforts to clean up unhealthy sanitary conditions caused by some residents.

Under the county's warning, those notified last Thursday have until today to comply with county ordinances or move on.

If they don't, they will be cited for a misdemeanor offense and run the risk of having their vehicles towed away and impounded.

"THE HOG FARM" — A 72-hour warning is issued by Mrs. Collins and sheriff's deputy James Riddell to the resident of "The Hog Farm," the name printed on this bus. If the vehicle isn't moved by today, the owner will be cited for health and zoning violations.



GOOD VIEW — A lone bonzai tree rests atop an old card table outside the "picture window" of this hand-painted van. Garbage was strewn about the vehicle but, fortunately, none where it would spoil the occupants' view from inside.

INSPECTION TOUR — Mrs. Collins and Riddell inspect the grounds around this commercially designed teepee prior to issuing a warning to the owners that it didn't meet the county building code.

HOMEMADE VAN — County employees prepare a warning to the unknown occupants of this homemade van which has water and electricity running to it from a nearby home. The area around the van was littered with an assortment of hand tools and auto parts.

CONTRASTS — County Zoning Enforcement Officer Rey Collins inspects an aging van which contrasts with the modern design of the home nearby in the background. Owners of the van, who were not inside when the county team came by, were warned to obtain a permit to live in it and install proper sewage or to move on.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF SAFEWAY STORES, INC.

On August 13, 1972, Meryl J. Maler, Sylvia Mathon and Marilyn Rosenweig filed a legal action in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles against 36 supermarkets, including Safeway Stores, Inc. ("Safeway"), charging defendants violated section 1770 of the California Civil Code in connection with the labeling of ground beef products sold in their California stores and further charging that defendants had otherwise misrepresented the nature of ground beef products.

The action purports to be a class action brought under section 1781 of the California Civil Code and Section 382 of the Code of Civil Procedure on behalf of plaintiffs and all other California residents who have purchased ground beef products in California from any defendant.

Safeway, while denying that it has violated section 1770 of the California Civil Code or any other law, has made an offer in settlement of all claims in the action described above.

The proposed settlement contemplates the entry of a consent judgment providing that:

1. Safeway will expend the sum of $400,000 over the period January 1, 1972 — December 31, 1974 to continue to improve its ground beef program by the implementation of new and better manufacturing and testing procedures and by conducting a consumer education program;

2. Safeway will continue to use its best efforts to prevent any mislabeling in connection with the sale of its ground beef products;

3. Safeway will undertake, for a period of three years, a consumer information program designed to inform the public on how Safeway prepares the ground beef products sold in its California Stores, including, but not limited to, fat content objectives for its ground beef products;

4. Safeway will pay attorneys fees to the attorneys for plaintiffs.

Since, for purposes of this settlement, the proposed judgment treats the above-noted action as a class action brought on behalf of the above-described class, the court on August 30, 1972, ordered that this notice be published so that all persons addressed hereby have an opportunity to object to the proposed settlement, or be separately represented.

The specific allegations of the complaint which will be disposed of by entry of consent judgement are set forth in the complaint (Case No. C-9691) which is on file with, and may be inspected at, the office of the clerk of the Superior Court of the State of California for the court of Los Angeles, 111 North Hill Street, Los Angeles, California, 90012.

NOW, THEREFORE, TAKE NOTICE:

1. If you are a member of the class described above who purchased ground beef from Safeway, you will be included in such class and any judgment, whether favorable or not, including any judgment approving any settlement of this action, will be binding upon you.

2. If you prefer to be represented by your own counsel, rather than by counsel by Plaintiffs, you may enter an appearance through your counsel, but not later than October 13, 1972.

3. If you wish to object to the proposed settlement, you must file written objections with the undersigned by October 13, 1972, and appear on October 20, 1972, at 9:00 A.M. in the courtroom of the Honorable Joseph A. Wapner, Judge of the Superior Court of the State of California for the county of Los Angeles, 111 North Hill Street, Los Angeles, California, to show cause why the proposed settlement should not be approved by the court and a judgment entered accordingly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Endoscopes Used To Examine A Canal Or An Internal Organ

Endoscopes are instruments for examining the interior of a canal or a hollow internal organ. Most people have been examined with one of these and view the devices with mixed emotions. Ears are inspected with the otoscope; lungs with a bronchoscope; the rectum with the proctoscope; and the urinary bladder with a cystoscope. Until recently, most of the devices were solid, rigid tubes with a light at one end and an eyepice on the other.

Flexibility of some of the newer scopes enhances their value because the physician can see "around corners" without causing the individual undue discomfort. They are narrower and contain special lenses. Our new flexible fiberoptic endoscopes have extended the doctor's visibility to the extent that he can inspect most of the gastrointestinal tract. When inserted through the rectum, the end can be guided 74 inches into the intestines. To do so, it must go around several 90-degree turns.

WHEN THE INSTRUMENT is passed through the mouth, it allows the physician to inspect the inside of the esophagus, stomach, and small intestine for 50 inches. During passage of the instrument, the eyepiece is twisted and turned so the physician can view every nook and cranny. Even the opening to the liver and pancreas can be seen.

Along with the ability to detect tumors, ulcers, and bleeding blood vessels, the device also has attachments to cauterize or excise benign gastric or colonic polyps. In some instances, it eliminates the need for major surgery.

IT IS ALSO used to obtain biopsies and cauterize bleeding under direct vision. Photographs of the inside of the stomach can also be taken.

Fiberoptic instruments can be passed via the urinary bladder into the tube leading to the kidney. They can also be threaded through blood vessels to peek into the heart. A final refinement is a window washer at the end to clear the lens and enable the medico to get a better look.

(Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.)

PIGMENTED HIVES

R. C. writes: What is urticaria pigmentosa?

REPLY

In this rare condition, small pigmented tumors develop on the skin. The lesions swell and itch like hives (urticaria) whenever rubbed or irritated. The disorder usually develops in the first year of life, although late forms in adults have been reported in the medical literature.

BLOOD POISONING

P. R. writes: What is subacute bacterial endocarditis?

REPLY

This disease involves previously damaged heart valves. Bacteria invade the edges of the valves, producing small inflammatory growths. The microorganisms also get into the blood (septicemia) and, before penicillin, the outlook was almost always fatal.

DROOPING EYELID

Mrs. D. writes: My grandson came into the world with one drooping eyelid. What happened before he was born to cause this defect?

REPLY

This abnormality may be hereditary or caused by injury to the nerve that stimulates the muscle that holds up the lid. It can be corrected surgically.

Sierra Club Tries To Block Nuclear Plant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Sierra Club says it has asked the Atomic Energy Commission to prevent Pacific Gas and Electric Co. from building a proposed Mendocino nuclear power plant on grounds construction would wiolate antitrust laws.

Attorney David Pesonen said Tuesday the club had filed a petition to intervene in the "antitrust aspects" of PG&E's application for an AEC construction permit for the plant, which would be located on the coast near Point Arena, about 130 miles north of San Francisco.

Pesonen said the Justice Department told the AEC approval of the plant would allow PG&E to maintain "an anticompetitive position" against publicly-owned electrical distribution systems.

The club's petition said PG&E rejected alternative sites that would be safer and cause less potential radioactive and thermal pollution.

Barger Indicted On Tax Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hell's Angels leader Ralph "Sonny" Barger, now in custody in Oakland on charges of murder, kidnap, assault and arson, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion and firearms violations.

Tuesday's indictment said Barger had understated his income for 1967-69 by $44,223. Internal Revenue agents said it was a "net worth" case, meaning the government proposes to show that Barger would not have as many assets as he does if he had paid all taxes due.

The indictment resulted from investigation under the federal government's new narcotic trafficker program in which IRS agents inspect the tax returns of persons suspected of illegal narcotic activity.

Fire Damages Printing Plant

NEW YORK (UPI) — A three alarm fire Tuesday damaged the West Side printing plant which produces feature sections of The New York Times' Sunday edition, but next Sunday's paper is expected to be on the newsstands as usual.

A Times spokesman said any delays stemming from the fire will be made up during the week.

A Fire Department spokesman said the fire started in the duct system and spread through the four-story, 200-by-600-foot brick building. The Times spkesman said most of the damage was confined to the roof.

NEW YORK — A little box that sits atop hotel TV sets and enables a traveler to tune in current feature films is television's hottest new development. It is putting X-rated films in some rooms, but the trend appears to be away from this sort of fare.

The rush is on among some 19 companies to tap the huge commercial potential of the nascent industry, which combines the technology of cable, closed circuit, and pay TV in its appeal to a highly mobile society.

Today only a handful of hotels and motels are actually operating the devices— most of them in New York — but the present leader in the field, Trans World Communications (a division of Columbia Pictures), expects to be in 29,000 hotel rooms by the end of 1972 and in 160,000 rooms by this time next year.

"By the end of August we'll be in five hotels in New York, eight in Atlanta, seven in Toronto," a company spokesman asserts. "And by the end of '72, we'll be completely in service in Miami, Chicago, and Houston."

"Everybody's building up this hardware," says Paul Klein, head of Computer Cinema, Trans World's major rival, "and as soon as it's all ready it'll be so explosive it'll spread like wildfire. In a year or two virtually every hotel that could have it, will have it."

Trans World already has exclusive five-year contracts with Sheraton, Loew's, Marriott, Stouffer, Knott Hotels, Hyatt House, and other major chains.

Competition to fill the lucrative vacuum has sparked sharp cross-claims about the superiority of the mostly incompatible systems now in use — especially between Trans World and Computer Cinema. But basically they enable a person to order one or more movies without leaving his room.

"You go into your room," explains a Trans World spokesman, "and there on top of the set is the Selectabox, about five by three inches. It's tuned into a dead unused channel in that city. You can watch 'Around Town,' a 30-minute program of highlights of the city you're visiting, and you can also see previews of the two films available on the set that day.

"If you decide to take either film, you phone room service, and before you can hang up, the movie is on. It will play continuously until 7 a.m., so you can tune out to watch regular TV programs if you want to."

While many of these are far from family entertainment, they don't fall into the same pornographic category as some of the fare at New York's Commodore Hotel.

Besides what it calls "family films," the Commodore offers such unedited X-rated films as Russ Meyer's "Vixen" through a company called Players Cinema Systems. A guest chooses from the hotel's "movie menu" and his selection is delivered, player and all, to his room. An on-and-off button allows interruptions at will. But once played, it cannot be seen over.

Whereas families, students, and touring foreign groups tend to go for the "family" films, a Commodore spokesman reports that X-rated movies are popular with businessmen and others and thus lead the non-X titles there.

Despite is apparent success, both Trans World and Computer Cinema are quick to rule out such material for their own enterprises.

"I'd be run out of town," admits Mr. Klein. "Most of the hotels and motels we deal with won't take X-rated films."

Trans World's position is essentially the same, and its contracts preclude movies of that kind. Since these two companies are far ahead of the field, their aversion to pornographic films represent the industry's present major direction in this area. The Commodore calls its present system "an experiment," and even its X-rated movies are not the hardcore "skin-flicks" widely available at theaters within walking distance of the hotel.

And the experiment appears to be near an end, since Trans World states it will be replacing the Players Cinema operation with its own, X-free system in that hotel by next February.

Other companies may try to cash in on pornography, but the National Cable Television Association in Washington says its code of ethics — covering any material a member company produces or distributes — would forbid it among its own ranks.

It's that call to room service used in Trans World's method on which Computer Cinema bases much of its challenge. Its own "two-way" system requires no phoning. The occupant simply decides which of two major motion pictures he wants and then turns to it by means of a dial on the face of the brown box. He even has ten minutes of viewing to make sure he likes the movie. If not he can turn it off or else tune in the other film for another ten-minute period.

"That's how you make money, by letting people sample," maintains Mr. Klein. "Big-time movies are going to be the staple, but only if you are allowed to sample."

Trans World's one-way system was originally prototyped by equipment used in a California pay-TV experiment in 1964. Since then, it has been updated several times.

One sign of the industry's quickening pace is a complaint filed by Sterling Manhattan Cable Television against both Trans World and Computer Cinema with the Federal Communications Commission. New York City's other cable operation — TelePrompTer Corporation — is asking the agency permission to join the proceeding.

Sterling claims the two hotel-pay-TV companies should be required to obtain city franchises before going ahead. Behind the legal action is a recognition by Sterling and other cable companies that Trans World and other outfits could be taking the cream off the top of a rich market which cable people feel they themselves have a right to. Under FCC and other rules, the cable companies have had to fulfill several obligations as a prerequisite to opening up the cable-TV market itself. At the last minute, hotel-pay-TV companies — having done none of this — come in for the big financial killing. And they use cables wherever the clustering of hotels and motels, as in large cities, makes it feasible.

Among other movie-in-hotel operators is Theatervision, Inc., a company affiliated with Storer Broadcasting and headed by Dore Schary, long a prominent Hollywood and Broadway producer and playwright. It plans to place 500 units in hotels and elsewhere as part of a large pay-TV experiment in Sarasota, Fla.

Their little box has a slot on the top in which you stick a magnetically encoded plastic card that looks something like a guitar pick. It selects the proper pay channel. When the channel appears, the card is automatically chewed up into a small ball to prevent reuse. The hotel guest must buy the card — or "ticket" — before he can see the film. The Athena Company, a division of Gulf and Western, runs a system in Little Rock, Ark., similar to the one Computer Cinema tested last year in Newark, N.J.

Congress Gives No Help To Nixon And Prospects Aren't For Change

By COURTNEY R. SHELDON

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon whistles for help from Congress and all that comes back is an echo.

As Nixon closes out his term of office, the Pennsylvania Avenue link between Capitol Hill and the executive office is littered with discarded drafts of presidential legislation.

Conversation with White House officials finds no great hope that the stalemate will be broken in the next few months before the election.

Only revenue sharing, among Nixon's major controversial proposals, is given a chance of enactment.

The prospects for what once was Nixon's No. One priority, a reform of the welfare system, are rated almost zero by White House officials.

Busing legislation is given a chance in the House, but could be headed toward burial in the Senate.

The Whita House has not given up the fight. It may try attaching busing legislation to an unrelated bill the majority of Democrats favor, a White House official says.

The Nixon administration spent its first two years carefully preparing its major legislative agenda and Congress reacts "miserably" in the last two years, one White House aide bemoans.

This is a worrisome hour for White House officials and there also is concern that even a whoppingly large reelection of Nixon still would not give him a congressional majority in 1973.

There is some confidence that Nixon can extract political mileage from accusing the Democratic Congress of obstructionism. And, perhaps, construct the ideological majority in the next Congress.

One White House official commented that the ideological majority that Nixon thought he had after the 1970 election never materialized.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., for example, has not been of as much assistance to the Republicans as anticipated.

Of more consequence to White House strategists at the moment is the failure of Republicans to follow their own President. Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts is the living example.

He sponsored end-the-war amendments which White House officials complain severely undercut Nixon's efforts to negotiate a peace settlement with North Vietnam.

Why does Brooke do this despite pressures from the White House and appeals for Republican unity?

One White House officials says it is because of Brooke's liberal constituency in Massachusetts. Another discounts this and says that Brooke is in such good shape with Massachusetts voters that he doesn't need to shine up his anti-war record.

This is the time for Republicans to stand up and be counted in behalf of Nixon's programs, White House officials insist. They were gratified by the Republican unity on the $4 billion McGovern slash in the defense budget. Only Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon defected.

The summertime focus has been on disorientation among Democrats and White House officials would prefer it to stay that way.

There have been some congressional actions to which President Nixon can refer fondly in the last four years. Among them was the passage of anti-ballistic missile legislation, his price and wage control program and the early environmental bills.

The Senate approval of Nixon's treaty with the Soviets curbing defensive missiles, in effect, put the congressional seal of approval on Nixon's policy of seeking reconciliation with Communist Moscow.

The current scrap over the interim agreement on offensive missiles is muddying up this picture but there is White House expectation that it will be cleared up.

Nixon got along better with Congress in that period when it appeared he would have a rough road to re-election. That was when he advanced his welfare program.

As Nixon extended his lead in the polls, there seemed to be a parallel decline in interest in welfare reform. It was not a program which caught fire in Middle America, except the portions which would more restrict welfare recipients.

The far-reaching Nixon plans for governmental reorganization have skidded almost into oblivion. They have the support of many nonpartisans, who think the present division of duties among cabinet agencies is outmoded and serves special rather than public interest. But Congress is reluctant to juggle its traditional committee relations with agencies.

It has taken the support of governors and mayors, many of them Democratic, to keep alive the general revenue-sharing propoals of Nixon.

The Democrats, frequently meandering as do parties who do not control the White House, have tried to leave a trail of social welfare legislation. They have almost always increased appropriations; defense and foreign aid have always been the exceptions.

The country will probably hear from Nixon often in the next few weeks when he criticizes Congress for overspending and failing to pass his legislation.

San Franciscan In Plea Bargain

Douglas Anthony Patricks, 24, of San Francisco, has pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of grand theft in return for a judge's promise of no more than nine months in jail.

Patricks pleaded guilty before Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner under a plea bargain with Judge Joseph G. Wilson. He is to receive credit for two months already served in Marin County Jail plus credit for time served in a pending narcotics case in Sonoma County.

Patricks was served with a warrant charging him with stealing a 10-speed bicycle valued at $220 from William Coleman of San Anselmo after being arrested July 13 on suspicion of trying to sell stolen auto parts to an off-duty sheriff's lieutenant.

No charge was filed in connection with the auto parts, but felony counts of grand theft and concealing stolen property were filed in the bike case. Those charges were reduced to the misdemeanor as part of the plea bargain.

Warrant Out On San Anselman

A bench warrant has been issued for the arrest of Richard Wendell Jones, 20, of San Anselmo, who failed to appear in Marin Municipal Court on an automobile theft charge.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set bail at $1,000.

Jones was arrested at 12:30 a.m. Aug. 21 at Third and C Streets by San Rafael police. The sedan he was driving was stolen from Thomas R. McGrath of San Rafael, police said.

Olympic Politics Moves Into High Gear

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., Tuesday called for an investigation of biased rulings against U.S. athletes by judges from communist countries in the recent Olympic games.

Mathis in a House speech said judges and referees from communist countries deprived U.S. athletes and competitors from other free world nations of earned victories by biased decisions.

Mathis said he is preparing a joint House-Senate resolution which would create a commission to make an extensive investigation of pro-communist bias on the conduct of the Olympic contests.

The 12-member commission would consist of two members each from the House and Senate and eight public members named by the President, Mathis said. He said he intends to introduce the resolution later this week.

Mathis told the House he would "not remain silent and see America's finest young athletes used as fodder for the communist propaganda cannon."

Mathis said he wanted the proposed commission to investigate the role of the U.S. Olympic Committee, to see if it allowed avoidable mixups to occur.

"We had runners who were gold medal possibilities who did not even show up for their heats," Mathis said. "And a young swimmer who was stripped of a gold medal because of the apparent error of a physician (in reference to Terra Linda's Rick DeMont)."

Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., in another House address accused the communist Olympic judges of following a "straight party line" in decisions they made on the events.

"Some of the decisions were very bad," he said. "One of the worst was the manner in which the basketball championship was handed over to a Russian team."

In Lausanne, Switzerland, Lord Killanin is the new president of the International Olympic Committee and the 20-year reign of Avery Brundage officially is over.

Killanin received the keys to Chauteau de Vity, the IOC headquarters, in a quiet 15-minute ceremony yesterday. In a short speech, he said he would back efforts to "deflate ultranationalism," which had marred past Olympic Games.

The 58-year-old Irish peer told newsmen that the big nations use the Games to show their systems are better than any other.

"I do not think it shows you have a better way of life if you win a lot of medals," Killanin said. He mentioned the United States and the Soviet Union as countries which use the Games for political purposes.

Brundage, 84, who has been the storm center of controversy because of his stands on amateurism, made a brief statement and thanked Lausanne for its hospitality to the IOC during his presidency.

Russian media Tuesday praised their athletes' performances in the Munich Olympics as a victory for the "Socialist" system.

In Moscow, Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the fact the Russians won more gold medals than the Americans proved the "Socialist" system is better.

In Washington, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said the Olympic Games serve no useful purpose and should be abolished.

"Their idea is being dissipated more rapidly with the passing of time," Mansfield said. "Even the refereeing is getting a nationalist tinge."

Just Another Guy? Better Look Again

As anybody with half an eyesight can see, that picture below is not a photo of just any guy. It is really Annie Guy, red-headed beauty who will be representing the new Chosen Frozen Ski Club at the Bay Area Council Snow Queen Contest Saturday in San Francisco.

ANNIE GUY

The Chosen Frozen group is a new Marin County ski club for single adults only (darn). Annie, of Sausalito, is a stewardess for American Airlines and when it read 36-24-36 on her contest application I innocently thought they were calling football signals. Miss Guy, 5-foot-8 with green eyes, is also quite a skier, I'm told.

Winner of the Bay Area Council queen contest, starting at 7 p.m. at Holiday Inn, Eighth and Market streets in S.F., will reign over the Ski Show at the Cow Palace Oct. 19-22. She will also qualify for the Far West Ski Association Snow Queen Contest Oct. 7.

FRANKLIN MIEULI, head man in the Golden State Warriors front office, must have overseen the mailing of advance ticket applications. The package has his flamboyant touch in a pamphlet that says: "Warrior Basketball — the hottest deal in sports." Inside is a picture of a man's hand, holding five aces — cards with pictures on them of Jeff Mullins, Cazzie Russell, Clyde Lee, Jim Barnett and Nate Thurmond. Another hand is about to insert a sixth ace with a picture of matinee idol Rick Barry on it. The date Oct. 2 appears on the card, and that is the day that the much traveled Barry was supposed to become property of the Warriors, by court order.

Franklin is confident but Barry still says, "I won't go," and remains in New York where he would rather stay and continue a radio show and not play basketball. But things will change, says Mieuli.

Anyway, Barry or not, ticket prices have gone up 50 cents to $6, but youngsters 16 and under can get the same Oakland Coliseum seat for $3.

AFTER READING reports about how great the striped bass fishing was in San Francisco Bay, I finally got a chance to see for myself the other day on Keith Fraser's boat. Although the fish were small, up to five pounds, we got our limits fishing near the Sisters Islands. But limits are common for Fraser, who has been tabbed "Lord of the Sea," by some of the regulars out of Loch Lomond harbor. Keith was so impressed by this nickname he's getting tee shirts emblazoned with it so all the world can see.

EVER WONDER WHAT a pro football player does the day before a game? In the case of 49ers Mel Phillips and Randy Beisler, they'll be signing autographs and talking to kids from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday in front of Roos Atkins at the Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda.

BOB LEE, 55, of San Rafael, has the distinction of being the oldest entrant of 66 in the second annual Clear Lake Marathon Sept. 23. This unique event starts at 7 a.m. with a seven-mile run from Lucerne to Indian Beach Resort in Glenhaven, then comes a three-mile swim to the Konocti Harbor Inn, a 3000-foot climb up Mount Konocti, back down the mountain and the three-mile swim back to Glenhaven.

Olympic Doctors Blamed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Physicians handling the U.S. Olympic team have been blamed for failing to note an illegal drug ingredient taken by American swimmer Rick DeMont of Terra Linda.

Olympic officials disqualified DeMont's victory in the 400-meter freestyle because the anti-asthmatic drug he was taking contained ephedrine, a stimulant banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dr. Frederick H. Meyers, a physician and pharmacologist at the University of California Medical Center, said Tuesday U.S. team doctors presumably were aware of DeMont's condition and should have recommended "alternative ways" to treat the asthmatic condition.

Meyers said Marax, the drug used by DeMont can be detected in urine when taken orally. But he added there are many other anti-asthmatic agents—as effective as ephedrine—which could be inhaled and not show up in a urinalysis. He said one of these inhalers should have been given to DeMont.

DeMont said his personal physician prescribed Marax and "didn't even know I was going to be given a doping test."

"The Olympic team doctors—they're the ones who goofed," said the teen-ager. "I had everything down on a medical form. They should have pickd it out."

For an athlete of DeMont's caliber," said Meyers, "ephedrine would have only a minor effect on his performance."

Meyers said ephedrine was "chemically and pharmacoligically related" to amphetamines, stimulant drugs, but it was not strictly an amphetamine. He said ephedrine's "effect on the heart and the bronchials is comparatively great. Its stimulant effect is comparatively small."

Big Growth Of Soccer In Marin

If soccer starts growing as rapidly across the country as it has the past year in Marin County, Pete Rozele might be looking for a job in the near future.

At least, that's the impression one gets from talking to Bob Braghetta, founder of the Marin Youth Soccer Association, which has tripled in size and extended its tentacles outward from Ross to encompass Kentfield, Greenbrae and Mill Valley.

The youngsters will begin play this week and next, with the girls' league in Ross playing its opener tomorrow at 5 p.m. on Ross Common. There will be two games each week night, six on Saturdays and three on Sundays in the next two months in Ross.

Mill Valley kicks off its season Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Tamalpais High School with two games between the locals and the International Soccer Club of Westlake.

Kentfield and Greenbrae begin the weekend of Sept. 22-23.

"Last year (the MYSA's first) we had 10 teams in Ross, one in Mill Valley and one in Greenbrae," said Braghetta. "This year we have 26 in Ross, including eight girls' teams, six in Kentfield, four or six in Greenbrae, four in Mill Valley."

Braghetta dropped another eye-popping statistic: about 430 players are involved in the various leagues, compared with 126 a year ago.

Some 52 adult coaches have been trained with the help of Bill Monti, soccer coach at San Rafael High. "It's a labor of love," said Braghetta. "The way district boundaries are drawn, none of the youngsters will go to San Rafael."

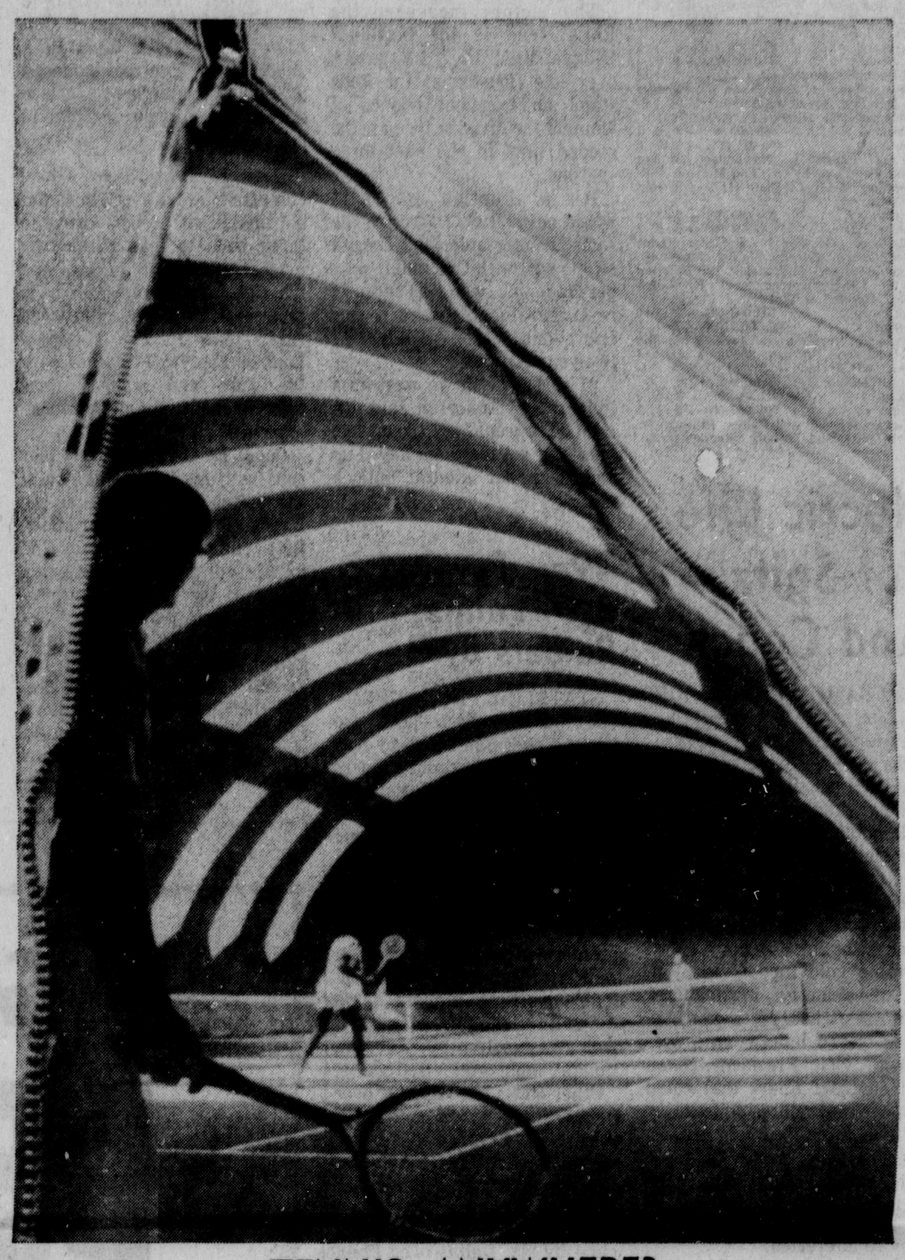
Willard Won't Start For 49ers Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Francisco 49ers fullback Ken Willard, out three weeks with a knee injury, was scheduled to resume contact work today.

"It won't be a real scrimmage, but he'll get bumped around a little by the linemen," Coach Dick Nolan said yesterday.

Willard, who has missed only one starting assignment in his eight year career, is expected to be reactivated for Sunday's game but won't start. Nolan gave second-year pro Larry Schreiber the nod at fullback.

The 49ers placed four men on waivers yesterday to reach the 40-player limit and two of them were claimed. Running back Joe Orduna, 1971 second round draft choice from Nebraska was picked up by the New York Giants, and center Willie Parker, No. 3 pick in '71, was claimed by the Los Angeles Rams. Both were on last year's 49er taxi squad.



TENNIS, ANYWHERE?

For tennis players who can't wait for good weather, there is now a portable, zip-together, inflatable court cover being used in Houston. The plastic cover can be inflated in about 20 minutes with a large window fan, and encloses an area 50 feet wide, 120 feet long and 28½ feet high. Players enter through zipper doorways (shown).

Raiders' Lamonica On Bench

OAKLAND (AP) — Quarterback Kenny Stabler, relegated to the bench through most of his first two National Football league seasons, moves into the starting job for the 1972 opener Sunday.

Coach John Madden announced yesterday that Stabler will start at Pittsburgh instead of veteran signal-caller Daryle Lamonica.

The Raiders also announced that three players have been cut to reach the mandatory limit of 40 players. Released were defensive back Bill West, offensive tackle Mike Taylor and veteran wide receiver Drew Buie.

Giants Triumph Behind Bryant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The possibility that Ron Bryant would be the pitching leader for the San Francisco Giants this year was, at best, remote when the season started.

But Bryant has proved to be just that. He tossed a four-hitter over 10 innings to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 Tuesday night.

"I felt like I could have pitched a lot longer," Bryant said. "It's the cool weather that keeps you feeling strong."

Bryant picked up his 12th victory to just about assure him of the club leadership. The next best pitcher is Sam McDowell with eight. He goes for No. 9 against the Dodgers in the final game of the series tonight.

Bryant used "a super fastball" to subdue the Dodgers. "It's the best I've had since I got out of the hospital," he said. Bryant spent two weeks in the hospital with viral pneumonia just after the All-Star Game.

The Giants scored the winning run on a throwing error by shortstop Bill Russell with two out in the 10th. Bobby Bonds led off the inning with a walk off reliever Jim Brewer. Tito Fuentes moved him to second with a two-strike sacrifice bunt and Chris Speier then was walked intentionally.

Ken Henderson popped out for the seond out but Jim Ray Hart hit a tricky hopper to shortstop. Bonds raced to third on the grounder and headed for the plate as Russell threw to first. The throw was high and Bonds easily beat Wes Parker's relay to the plate.

"I was watching the ball and Jim Ray," Bonds said. "I knew I could score if he beat it out or the throw was bad."

Hart hit his fifth homer to account for the Giants' first run. The Dodgers got an unearned run in the fifth inning and Frank Robinson homered for the other.

Robinson's homer was the 521st of his career to tie him with Ted Williams for seventh place on the alltime list.

The Giants also announced Manager Charlie Fox has been rehired for the 1973 season. It will be his third with the Giants. He replaced Clyde King in May 1970.

Fox has been in the Giants' organization for 31 years, the last 25 as a manager and scout.

OLYMPIC CYCLIST

Emile Returns With Bruises

By LEW CODDINGTON

Bicycle racing is supposed to be a non-contact sport, but it would be hard to tell that to Emile Waldteufel, who came back from the Olympic Games looking like he'd been involved in a football scrimmage with his old high school buddy, Elmer Collett of the San Francisco 49ers.

Smiling wryly and sporting a visibly skinned arm, the 27-year-old Mill Valley cyclist recounted his troubles in Munich, where he failed to finish the 200-kilometer (124-mile) individual road race last Wednesday after twice being knocked from his cycle.

"The first spill was at a bottleneck about five miles from the start of the race," he said. "I was on the outside and when the course narrowed I was forced off the road. That wasn't too bad, and I got up and chased.

"At about 35 miles the guy in front of me hit his brakes unexpectedly and we both went down. By the time I got up, the field was gone and even the trucks that follow the races (with extra bicycles, etc.) had passed me.

"I chased again, but then I got a severe pain in my side, and I had to drop out."

Thus ended Marin County's first excursion into Olympic cycling. The disappointed Waldteufel could go to Lawrence, Kan., and seek sympathy from Jim Ryun, who suffered similar misfortune in the 1,500-meter run. Instead, he will go to Asti, Sonoma County, for the Italian Swiss Colony 100 races Sept. 25-28. And thereafter to the Tour of Mexico, Oct. 19-28.

Waldteufel lived a sheltered life at the Olympics. "I didn't get a chance to do any exploring," he said. "I got to Innsbruck (Austria) one day, and that was it. I had hoped to stay in Europe after the Olympics were over and see some friends, but I didn't have enough money.

"I didn't see any events, either, except for one cycling race. Athletes have to buy tickets to any events except their own. I watched most of the Olympics on closed-circuit television.

"I heard about the Arab commando attack, and I was upset, of course, but I didn't see it, and so the feeling wasn't that strong. I was no more exposed to it than you were. It was no different than the murders I read about in the paper here."

Waldteufel was heartened by the performance of the U.S. road racers as a whole. They came in 15th in the 100-kilometer (62-mile) team road race in 2:17:06.4, trailing the Soviet Union by six minutes, and beating such recognized powers as Cuba and France. In the individual race, John Howard was 61st and John Allis 63rd, about 2:36 back of Holland's Hennie Kuiper, who won in 4:17.37.0.

Waldteufel, a professional chef, will remain unemployed until after the Tour of Mexico. He'll then return to work to earn enough money to go to France next year, possibly in April.

"The best competition is in Europe. They ride more aggressively. Sometimes they try to fill holes that aren't even there.

"I'd also like to work in a fine resaurant, but it would be hard to get a job over there unless I became fluent in French. It's even hard to get a job here if you don't know it.

"Cooking is a never-ending field. You're continually learning. The same is true of cycling. I don't feel I've approached my potential yet. Almost everything I've learned so far has been picked up from older cyclists — I think I could learn a lot over there."

It might even be worth a few more scrapes and bruises.

A's Burst Out Of A Slump

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Bursting out of a prolonged batting slump, the Oakland Athletics rattled 16 hits Tuesday night to down Minnesota 7-4.

Coupled with a victory by the Chicago White Sox, the A's remained two games ahead of the Pale Hose in their struggle for the American League West pennant.

Newcomer Matty Alou paced the A's victory by driving in four runs with a two-run single in the third, a sacrifice fly in Oakland's four-run fifth and another run-scoring single in the eighth.

It was the best offensive showing by the A's in weeks and brought hopes to Manager Dick Williams that the hitters will now keep up with the pitchers who have been carrying the team for a month.

Jim Hunter, seeking his 20th victory, started for the A's but was bombedout with a four-run fourth inning capped by Harmon Killebrew's three-run homer, his 24th.

Reliever Darold Knowles took over for Hunter in the fifth and grabbed his fifth win in six decisions with five innings of one-hit pitching.

The teams conclude their four-game series tonight with Oakland looking for an even split with a victory. In a battle of righthanders, John Odom (13-5) of the A's goes against Dave Goltz (3-0).

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A Topsy-Turvy Eastern Race

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Confusing continues to be the bestword to describe the topsy-turvy American League Eastern Division race.

The four contenders are playing each other head on now and they're still sticking to each other like glue.

With just three weeks to go—after New York's 3-2 victory over Boston and Detroit's 3-2 victory over Baltimore Tuesday night—the four teams are back to within one game of each other.

Boston is still in first with New York and Baltimore a half game back and Detroit a game back.

Two factors make the race even more difficult to handicap than usual. For the first time, the teams don't play an even number of games because of the players' strike so the pennant could be decided by a half game. Detroit plays 156 games while Boston and New York play 155 and Baltimore plays 154.

Also, Boston has a rained out game with Kansas City that hasn't been rescheduled yet—those two clubs have no other games left against each other—and the timing of that game if it's necessary could be vital.

Boston blew an opportunity to get some breathing room when it was beaten by New York as the Yankees snapped Luis Tiant's streak of seven consecutive complete game victories. The Yanks touched him for eight hits and picked up four walks—one intentional—in 5 1-3 innings to beat Tiant.

Boston manager Eddie Kasko thought the Yanks got the edge from plate umpire Jim Odom. "Tiant was pitching at a plate the size of a thimble," Kasko claimed, "and Tiant was visibly affected by it." Sparky Lyle, obtained from Boston in a deal for Danny Cater this spring, stymied the Red Sox on one hit over the final three innings to gain his 33rd save—one short of the American League record—as he wrapped up Fritz Peterson's 15th win.

Manager Ralph Houk was beaming at the Yanks' spot in the race. "We're right where I wanted to be at this point. We just came off a road trip to Baltimore, Boston and Detroit and I said if we were two games out when we came back, we'd be OK. And now we're only a game out."

But Manager Billy Martin of the Tigers was also confident. "Everybody tells us how good Baltimore is and how good Boston is and how good New York is but we're still right in there."

Light-hitting Eddie Brinkman hit a two-run homer and Dick McAuliffe doubled in the deciding run in the seventh inning to give Detroit the win over Baltimore. Woody Fryman, a National League castoff, worked 8 1-3 to gain his sixth victory since coming to Detroit in August. John Hiller, who retired Boog Powell and Paul Blair with the bases loaded to end the game, got the save.

In the other games, Chicago downed Kansas City 6-0, Oakland downed Minnesota 7-4, Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Cleveland 4-3 and 4-2 as the second game was rained out after eight innings and Texas blanked California 3-0.

All of the top-seeded players but one were still in the running after the first round of play. Eighth-seeded Valarie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Calif., fell 6-3, 6-1 to Mona Schallau of Iowa City, Iowa.

MONTREAL — The top seeds saw action on the third day of the $50,000 Rothmans Montreal International tennis tournament yesterday and Cliff Richey, Jeff Borowiak and Cliff Drysdale came away winners in their singles matches.

Hectic Life For Spitz And Coach

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Life isn't the same these days for Mark Spitz.

For years Spitz religiously practiced his swimming strokes in long, grueling workouts with little public notice. Then he was ridiculed for not living up to his predictions of greatness in the 1968 Olympic games.

But that's all changed now. Since winning a record seven Olympic gold medals in Munich, the sinewy, mustachioed Californian has received thousands of fan letters, an invitation to visit President Nixon and contract offers that could reap several million dollars.

"It's really been an experience," Spitz said Tuesday. "The big guys have something in mind. They see dollar signs in me, so I guess that's why they're interested."

"Mark has received about 10,000 letters and cards," said Spitz' coach, Sherm Chavoor. "He's been offered contracts from oil companies, milk companies, clothing manufacturers, TV series, pool suppliers—everything you can think of. He was even offered $25,000 to shave off his moustache for a shaving commercial," Chavoor said.

"I might turn that one down," Spitz remarked, saying he'd miss his well-known whiskers.

Spitz and Chavoor are trying not to miss any trick in collecting the rewards for Olympic success. For example, Spitz declined to pose for photographs with his seven gold medals so he could sell exclusive rights for the pictures to Stern Magazine in Germany.

"I'm going out of my mind," said Chavoor. "We're going to Hawaii and get out of this rat race. We have to relax for a while. You wouldn't believe the amount of letters we still haven't opened."

Sparky Anderson Never Satisfied

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Some people are never satisfied—like Sparky Anderson for instance.

Johnny Bench drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a fielder's choice to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

Cincinnati scored four runs in the first inning on Bench's second grand slam of his career and added three runs in the ninth to ice the contest.

The victory increased the Reds' lead in the National League West to 7 1-2 games over idle Houston as the Reds stand an excellent chance of winning the division title for the second time in the past three seasons.

It's a situation managers would envy. Right? Wrong! The Reds' comfortable lead doesn't sit too well with Cincinnati skipper Anderson, who was recently rewarded for his team's fine effort this season with a new two-year contract.

"I sort of wish we were in a tight race," Anderson said. "A tight race would help keep momentum, get the team keyed up and keep our mental outlook good."

But the Pittsburgh Pirates, runaway winners of their division in the National League East, are faced with a similar problem. "Even Pittsburgh is not playing as well as they are capable of playing because they're so far ahead," Anderson added.

There just might be a couple of managers in the American League East who would gladly change places with Sparky.

In other National League games Pittsburgh blanked Chicago 7-0, New York edged Philadelphia 4-3, Montreal trounced St. Louis 7-2, and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 3-2 in 10 innings.

Dock Ellis and Dave Giusti combined for an eight-hit shutout and Richie Hebner drove in three runs to lead Pittsburgh over second place Chicago. The triumph, the Pirates' 13th in their last 15 games, increased their lead in the National League East to 13 games over the Cubs and reduced their title-clinching "magic number" to seven.

Coco Laboy drove in four runs with his first home run of the season and a double as the Expos downed the Cardinals. Both clubs were tied for the fourth spot going into the game but with the victory Montreal now has a one-game edge.

Don Money's first error in 49 games set up a pair of unearned runs in the first inning and the Mets went on to down Philadelphia. Third baseman Money had handled 162 chances through 48 games without an error.

49ers Favored By 4 Points; Raiders By 3

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers are favored over San Diego by four points and the Oakland Raiders are picked to beat Pittsburgh by three, according to National Football League odds released yesterday by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

Kansas City was favored by four over defending American Conference champion Miami in their first meeting since the double-overtime playoff game last fall. Minnesota was picked over Washington by three in Monday night's televised game.

Other odds: Los Angeles over New Orleans by 12, Cincinnati over New England by three, Green Bay and Cleveland even, New York Jets over Buffalo by seven, Detroit over New York Giants by 10, Atlanta over Chicago by six, Dallas over Philadelphia by 15, Baltimore over St. Louis by seven, and Denver over Houston by four.

Christiansen Sees Rough Game Ahead

OAKLAND (UPI) —New Stanford Coach Jack Christiansen feels the Cardinals are in for a tough one Saturday against San Jose State.

"San Jose is a big, strong, active team," said Christiansen. "I believe they're a better team than last year (when they upset Stanford 13-12). If they have an All-Conference running back (Dale Knott) who can't start, you know they're pretty good."

Spartan Coach Dewey King told the weekly luncheon of the Northern California Football Writers that he was "excited" about Saturday's impending struggle at Stanford Stadium.

"We don't know much about Stanford," he said. "It has a new staff and a lot of new personnel."

This will be Stanford's 1972 opener while San Jose State came from ehind in the fourth quarter last week to beat Santa Clara 33-28 in its opener.

Saturday's contest matches two classy quarterbacks—Mike Boryla of Stanford against sophomore Craig Kimball of the Spartans.

Kimball completed 15-of-30 passes for 274 yards and three touchdowns and ran for another to be voted top offensive player of the week by the writers.

Defensively, the writers cited Pacific guard Jack Carter and tackle John Inglehart of Hayward State. Carter, a 240-pound junior college transfer, anchored a UOP line that limited powerful Washington to 61 yards rushing in a 13-6 Husky win.

Christiansen said Stanford "should be about 100 per cent physically" for the Spartans with running backs John Winesberry and Reggie Sanderson and defensive end Pierre Perrault coming back from minor leg injuries.

Bronco coach Pat Malley said the loss to San Jose State was "tough for us to swallow." He hopes Santa Clara can rebound against Sacramento State Saturday.

Coach Chester Caddas of UOP said the Tigers lost quarterback Carlos Brown for the year to a knee injury. He was replaced by freshman Bruce Keplinger "and if anything happens to him, we may go to the single wing."

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Extra Know-How Needed At Night

Boating at night can be very exciting . . . things are so calm and quiet after a hectic day . . . yet many small boaters resist taking boats out after dark. I think perhaps it's because night boating requires just a little bit of extra know-how, and a better understanding of the rules and regulations.

The law says that all motorboats and sailboats must carry navigation lights from sunset to sunrise. It is not a daytime requirement, but failure to have lights at night could bring a $500 fine.

Most boatmen know . . . some rather vaguely . . . that navigation lights consist of a red light on the port side (left) and a green light on the starboard side (right). But this is not enough. To understand navigation lights thoroughly everyboater should get a copy of the Coast Guard Recreational Boating Guide. It's booklet CG-340 for 60 cents from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C. 20402.

The fact that lights and night navigation concern many boaters is indicated by some of the questions they ask:

Q. Isn't there a new rule about sailboat lights?

A. Yes. It became effective about two years ago with the revision in International Rules of the Road. Sailboats over 40 feet may now (it's optional) display a red over green light at the masthead as well as the red and green side lights. It's explained in the Coast Guard booklet.

Q. Can I use a searchlight on my boat?

A. Yes, as long as it is not shone on another boat so as to interfere with the vision of the operator of that boat.

Q. What lights do canoes require at night?

A. Canoes and rowboats (unpowered craft) do not require navigation lights, but a white light must be shown if there is danger of a collision. A flashlight will do . . . and no one would go out without a flashlight, or would they?

Q. Can I turn off all lights while at anchor?

A. Yes, if your boat is under 65 feet long and is in a recognized, anchorage area. But if it is anchored in a navigable waterway it must show a white light visible all around the horizon (360 degrees) bright enough to be visible for two miles if in International waters or Western rivers (Mississippi waters) but only for a mile on inland waters or the Great Lakes.

Q. The channel into my dock is hard to see at night. Any suggestions?

A. Most hardware stores sell a fluorescent reflective tape (kids put it on their bicycles). Put strips of it on stakes to mark your channel. Put some on corners of docks and other points to be marked. The tape glows in the beam of a flashlight and puts everything in place.

Q. I'm told that fishing at night without a light is illegal. Is it?

A. You can fish all night in total darkness (in some states) if you like. But the moment another boat approaches and there is danger of a collision, the law requires you to show a white light such as a flashlight.

Q. What's the basic reasoning behind the red and green navigation light system?

A. Simply, it's this: If you can see another boat's green light, it's a "go" signal, you have the right of way. But if you see only his red light . . . this means he's approaching from your right and the Rules of the Road give him right of way . . . it's a stop signalfor you. If you can see only his stern white light, it means you are overtaking him and it's a warning to keep out of his way.

Q. Do large ocean ships follow the same rules for navigation lights?

A. Basically, yes. But there's much more to it, and if you plan to operate in the company of big mercantile ships, dredges, barges, tug boats or pilot boats you had better get a good text book. They all carry different identifying lights.

Saskatchewan Rallies To Win

VANCOUVER (UPI)—George Reed scored three touchdowns Tuesday—two in the final seven minutes-to give the Saskatchewan Roughriders a 24-13 win over the British Columbia Lions.

The victory moved Regina into a second place tie with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League Western Conference. The Lions, who have now lost five straight, are last with a 1-7 record.

Attendance Falls In Cal League

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California League averaged 717 fans per game in 1972, official figures showed today.

Cal League President Eddie Mulligan announced a paid attendance of 358,556 — about 24,000 less than last year when the average figure per game was 770.

Mulligan pointed out hopefully that attendance averaged only 553 in April-May but closed with 839 in August.

San Jose lost some 4,000 fans but still led with 77,581 in attendance. Reno lost 8,253 to 22,288. Stockton and Lodi trailed with 22,125 and 21,532 respectively, but both showed more fans than 1971.

PREP FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Terra Linda Head Coach Hopes For Restoration

By LEW CODDINGTON
(First in a series on Marin County Athletic League football prospects.)

Don Lucas will be attempting in 1972 to duplicate a feat that first was accomplished in 1660.

Like Charles II of England, Lucas will be trying to bring about the Restoration — to eliminate a usurper from the throne and reinstate the rightful ruler. And like Charles, Lucas appears to have the army to do it.

Terra Linda High School, for which Lucas coaches football, won or tied for the Marin County Athletic League championship five consecutive years. Last season, however, the Trojans were knocked down to a third-place tie at 4-2, while San Rafael and Novato assumed Cromwell's role and took away the crown.

This year, Terra Linda returns 22 lettermen, 13 of whom were starters last season. The Trojans have as many lettermen as Marin Catholic has varsity ballplayers.

Among the returnees is Steve Withers, an all-league linebacker in 1971 as a junior. "He is just temendous," said Lucas.

Another outstanding returnee is lineman Larry Madden, currently hobbled by an ankle condition resulting from an earlier broken leg. "Madden on one leg is equal to a lot of players on two," said Lucas, who added he intends to play Madden in spots in the opener at San Rafael High Friday at 8 p.m. against Concord, and hopes the lineman will be ready for the league opener Sept. 30 against Novato.

Jeff Leaird apparently has won the first-string quarterback job from Kevin Kirby, because of Leaird's ability to command the ground game. "We won't be pass-oriented at all this year," said Lucas. "We will operate out of a true Wishbone, with Withers, Sean Casey and Pete Corbett at the running back spots."

Kirby, Lucas added, "eventually will be as good mechanically as Kevin Donohoe," the talented transfer quarterback who last year enabled Terra Linda to lead the MCAL in passing yardage.

Lucas said he had been pleasantly surprised in practice by the play of four juniors and a senior. He cited linebacker-fullback Tim Keith, linebacker Dale Smith, defensive end Bruce Bollen and tight end Jay Love among the juniors and defensive back Rick Tallariti as the senior.

"Most of the others have been true to form," said Lucas. Lettermen not already mentioned include defensive back Greg Beltran, lineman Larry Chiaroni, quarterback Mike Corrick, end Wes Emerson, lineman Mike Finn, linebacker Will Hamilton, lineman Jon Loberg, back Scott Logan, running back-linebacker Doug Long, end-linebacker Steve Miles, back Paul Mooney, end-back Rich Nicholes, back Larry Offenbach, tackle Dan Skeen, guard-linebacker Bob Spain, an back Dan Walsh.

With an army like that, Charles II is ready to come out of exile.

Several Veterans Get Ax

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Leave it to the final day of cuts to reduce hulking football players to fretting working men afraid of getting the pink slip from the boss.

There were a few surprises and one not too surprising after the 26 National Football Teams pared down their rosters Monday to the required season limit of 40 players.

The more notable cuts of veterans included one of the original Dolphins, seven-year safety Bob Petrella, while the Cleveland Browns cut Ernie Kellermann, a defensive back who has been with the club since 1965.

The Chargers and the NFL have meanwhile come to a decision of sorts on Duane Thomas, the highly talented but missing running back.

San Diego Coach Harland Svare announced that the NFL had ruled that while Thomas is still a member of the team, he does not count on the 40-player limit because of "a rule that prevents guys from coming in, looking around at things and then taking off."

The Philadelphia Eagles placed kicker Happy Feller on the taxi squad and four Detroit Lions—Nick Eddy, Ken Lee, Charlie Brown and Henry Stuckey—were waived.

Buffalo was adding players instead of dropping them with the addition of New York's first draft choice of 1969, offensive tackle Dave Foley and Baltimore's defensive tackle Don Croft.

Houston trimmed Bob Young, Walter Highsmith, Dennis Hughes and Joe Bullard and Minnesota waived Gayle Knief, Kreg Kapitan, Carl Winfrey and Jerry Patton. Pat Studstill was released by New England along with Charlie Gogolak, John Huard and Greg Slough.

San Diego chopped Ed Philpott, Chuck Detwiler, Ralph Miller and Jim Fassel, quarterback.

Los Angeles cut John Walton, Jim Massey and Eddie Phillips, the former Texas quarterback trying to make the pros as a safetyman, while Cincinnati trimmed Wille Lee Jones, Tim Beamer, Al Randolph and Nick Roman.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Good Guesswork Is The Result Of Necessity At Bridge Table

Necessity is the mother of good guesswork at the bridge table. When you can make your contract only if a missing card is at your right, play the hand as though you could see that card in your right-hand opponent's hand. There is no profit in guessing that the card is where it will do you no good.

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Double	Pass	3 ♣

Opening lead -- ♠ 7

EAST COVERS

West opens the seven of spades, obviously his top card in East's bid suit. You play the ten of spades from dummy, East covers with the queen, and you play the six from your hand.

If East continues with a low spade, you will let it ride to dummy's jack. (The idea of dropping the six is to coax East to play you for A-6 of spades.)

East actually sees through your little plot and switches to the deuce of hearts. Now you must guess whether to play the king or jack. Which?

The odds are that East has the ace since he has almost all of the missing high cards for his opening bid. However, it is possible that West has the ace of hearts and that East has all of the other missing high cards.

CORRECT GUESS

Nevertheless, you play the king of hearts because of necessity. If West has the ace of hearts you cannot stop him from gaining the lead. He will return a spade to finish the job of setting up his partner's suit, knocking out your ace. You will then be down unless the four missing clubs break 2-2.

Your chance to make the contract is poor if West has the ace of hearts. But if East has the ace of hearts, you are a shoo-in. So you put up the king of hearts as your best chance to keep West out of the lead.

KING WINS

The king wins the trick, of course, and you play a low club from your own hand and another low club from the dummy. The opponents can take two hearts, but you will then regain the lead and lead another club to run the rest of the suit.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 7 3
♥ - Q 9 6 3
♦ - 7 6 3 2
♣ - Q J 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You would respond if partner opened with any other suit since then your spade doubleton would be an asset. When partner bids spades, however, the doubleton in that suit is a liability; and the hand is too weak for a response.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Dear Mr. Quiz:

I was surprised to read that Lyndon B. Johnson celebrated his 64th birthday (Aug. 27) in secret. Reporters could not find out where he was or what he was doing. What do you think accounted for this? Signed: W.H.C.

Dear C:

Some people like to celebrate their birthdays quietly with their families. Last year the people of France went crazy over Pablo Picasso's 90th birthday (Oct. 25) with gala celebrations everywhere. But Picasso kept in seclusion at his home in Mougins and refused to come out to acknowledge the tributes. When Sir Laurence Olivier became 65 years old (May 22) he was making the movie, "Sleuth," at the Pinewood Studios, outside London. After a small party for him on the set, Sir Laurence took the leftovers home in a doggie bag. So you see, the quiet birthday often is the happiest for a really famous person. Former President Johnson, after years of political battles, may have had his happiest birthday this year, surrounded by close friends and family in the quiet seclusion of his Texas ranch.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

Sherwood Anderson (1876-1941), American fiction writer and poet.

Mel Torme (1925-), Hollywood actor and singer.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Sherwood Anderson, a Negro, authored the best seller, "Poor Whitey."

2. Mel Torme dislikes being called "The Velvet Fog" and specifies that fact in his contracts.

3. Roald Dahl wrote the hit movie, "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory."

ANSWERS

1. False; 2. True; 3. True.

Railroad Excursions Growing Like Crazy

NEW YORK (AP) — The old-fashioned railroad excursion has not only been revived but it is growing like crazy.

"We sell out almost every seat on every excursion," say a spokesman for Amtrak, the government's operating arm for passenger rail traffic. "The only thing keeping us from selling more is a lack of cars."

Amtrak offers a wide variety of tours, from a one-day, New York-to-Washington jaunt for half the usual fare to a 15-day Chicago-Los Angeles trip. The western one has a return via San Francisco and Reno and costs about 20 per cent less than the regular rail fare.

The longer tours are generally offered by Amtrak in cooperation with a regular tour firm. The tour firms arrange for meals, hotels and sightseeing buses, while Amtrak furnishes the trains. The tours are sold for an all-inclusive price which makes it difficult to say just how much is for rail passage and how much for the other features.

However, one recent traveler dicovered that he could spend $618 for two people for a trip from New York to Los Angeles and back on the regular trains. But a longer trip, fares only, on an excursion ticket was only $584 for two. This called for a 9-day trip via Chicago, Denver, San Francisco and Los Angeles but did not include hotels and meals along the way.

Another Amtrak innovation is a rail tour to Florida, including a rental car for seven days. The compact car is included with the purchase of three train tickets, while four tickets will get a full-size car for the same one-week period. The car can be picked up at any of five Florida cities and returned at any of the others.

Unlike the old railroad excursions, many of the longer ones can be started on any day.

However, some of the family plans for Florida must be used only during the week, to take advantage of the lower price for a wife and children. Also, the rates on some routes are higher than on others: for instance, sleeping cars called "slumber coaches" are available on coach fares on some railroads.

Market Slightly higher In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) —Prices moved slightly higher during the first two hours today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Advances barely led declines, 576 to 508, among the 1,520 issues crossing the tape. Turnover in the first two hours amounted to more than 4,540,000 shares.

Many analysts said both institutions and the public are staying on the sidelines. There is little interest in the market and little background news to spark interest.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue, up 1-8 at 44 3-4 on 89,000 shares.

Prices also were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Granite Management Services was the most active issue, off 1-8 at 6 1-8 on 24,500 shares.

Activity on the Big Board was centered in the glamors, electronics and computers, a pattern that has existed most of the year. Schlumberger gained 2 1-4, Ara Services 1. Polaroid lost 1 1-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

National Distillers Is Good For Capital Gains

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have shares of National Distillers (NYSE) which I bought at $8. I also own Southern Bell 6 per cent bonds and you recently mentioned the 9.05s. Would you sell Nat'l Distillers to increase income and buy the 9.05s? — S.M.

A. Unless income is your only objective, no. While you would substantially increase your current return by switching, you would limit capital gains opportunities. And at this point, National Distillers is an attractive vehicle for such. Also, on your original investment in Nat'l Distillers you are getting a healthy 11.3 per cent return.

The company has become not only a major distiller but a manufacturer involved in chemicals, metals and textiles. The firm's fastest growing and most glamorous operation is the Almaden Vineyards. California's leading wine producer, Almaden is benefitting from a sociological trend in the U.S. toward drinking more wine. According to some forecasts, U.S. consumption will reach 400 million gallons annually by 1980, up over 50 per cent from present levels. Because of its ongoing cyclical recovery and its participation in the accelerating wine business, investor interest has picked up in National Distillers. In view of this, shares should be retained.

Q. I have invested heavily in Morton-Norwich (NYSE), paying $39 a share. I have a sizable loss; should I sell or retain? — H.T.

A. Morton-Norwich stock has recovered some of its lost ground in recent sessions, largely in response to improved operating results. For the fiscal year ended June 30, the company reported an 11 per cent earnings gain to a record $1.95 share from the depressed $1.75 of the previous year. Sales advanced 6 per cent to $367.7 million. All product divisions contributed to this improvement with the exception of the ice control salt segment (about 6 per cent of net).

Despite pricing problems in drugs — such as Morton's L-dopa and Furadantin — further growth is expected in the future, with profits projected to expand at a 7 per cent annual rate. As this growth pattern is extended, stock should move higher and may be retained for additional appreciation.

Record School Spending Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. schools will spend a record $90.5 billion this school year to provide classrooms and instruction for 60.4 million students enrolled in kindergarten through graduate school, the U.S. Office of Education estimated today.

The agency's annual back-to school survey said spending by public and private schools would increase 6.3 per cent from last year's $85.1 billion for such educational costs as land, buildings and equipment; teacher and personnel salaries; busing; payment of utility bills, and health, food and other services.

Despite the rising costs of education, school enrollment will show its smallest increase in 28 years because of a declining U.S. birth rate, said Vance Grant of the government's National Center for Educational Statistics.

Most of the overall increase of 400,000 pupils this year will take place in colleges and universities, the report said. Total enrollment in elementary and high schools is expected to decline by 200,000 from last year's level. A gain of 300,000 high school pupils will be offset by a decline of 500,000 children in kindergarten through the eighth grade, the survey predicted.

Grant said the decline in elementary enrollments is due to an annual drop in births since the "baby boom" peaked in 1961 with 4.3 million live births. The number of births picked up slightly after 1968 but dipped lastyear. The decline is expected to continue to a 3.4 million level this year, he said.

"This has certainly had an impact on the teaching situation," Grant said in an interview. "With fewer children coming into school at the same time more graduates are leaving college with teaching degrees, the so-called teacher shortage is really a thing of the past." He said, however, that certain local teacher shortages may exist.

The report said that colleges will enroll about 9 million, up 6 per cent from last fall. At the elementary and high school level, public schools will enroll 46.2 million pupils and private schools 5.2 million. Not included in the survey were students attending private trade and business schools and undergraduates enrolled in programs that do not lead to degrees.

Public schools will employ 20,000 more teachers than they did last year, a total of 2.1 million while the private school instructional staff of 220,000 will remain unchanged, the report said.

Classical Guitar Evening Set

An evening of classical guitar will be presented by Paul Bertolli of San Rafael Friday at 8 p.m. in Alumni Hall of San Domenico School, 1500 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow.

Bertolli, winner of last year's Marin Music Chest scholarship, will perform compositions of Frescobaldi, J. S. Bach, Sylvius Weiss, Fernando Sor, Antonio Vivaldi, Jorge Crespo, Isaac Albeniz and John Duarte.

The Vivaldi number is a Concerto for Guitar and String Quartet featuring Parry Boggs, Terry Baume, violins; Judy Hobbs, viola, and Wendy Tomlinson, cello. Concert is open to the public without charge.

Policemen Want The Chief Fired

EMERYVILLE, Calif. (UPI) —The police association of this industrial community wants ts chief fired, and members voted Tuesday to give up a pay increase toward that end.

Sgt. David Reno, president of the Police Officers Association, said 15 of 20 members voted to "relinquish" a proposed pay increase if the City Council would fire Police Chief James F. Donovan.

The sergeant said the loss of salary was "worth it to get rid of a chief whose term in office thus far has proved unsuccessful."

Donovan called the grievance statement "politically motivated" and said the POA smacked of "a police state run by the policemen."

Berkeley Council Favors Reparations

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Berkeley City Council was on record today as not only in opposition to South Africa's apartheid racial policies, but in favor of U.S. companies paying reparations to that nation's minority citizens hurt by those policies.

The council voted 7-1 Tuesday night to condemn the apartheid and then voted 5-1 with two abstentions for the reparations. It also voted to investigate whether any Berkeley firms are dealing with South Africa.

Hamilton Field Use Is Program Subject

Controversial plans for joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Sounding Board."

Speakers will be Benjamin R. Ostlind, former Marin County aviation commissioner; Joseph A. Forest, chairman of Novato Airport Study Committee; George C. Quesada, Novato City councilman, and Herbert M. Hanson, a former chairman of Marin Aviation Commission.

Questions are invited for tomorrow's broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Unrest Halts Plant Production

VIGO, Spain (UPI) — Labor unrest sparked by the firing of five workers paralyzed industrial plants today in this bustling port town on Spain's northwestern seaboard, industry sources said.

Estimates of the total number of strikers varied from 5,000 to 10,000 with no official figures available.

The strikes started Saturday after the management of the Citroen auto plant rejected a demand that the work week of its labor force of 4,000 be cut from 48 to 44 hours and the workers be given Saturday afternoons off. The company then dismissed five workers who were considered leaders of the protest.

Moratorium On Lettuce Picket

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI)— Striking farm workers have declared a moratorium on picketing one of the nation's largest lettuce growers in the "salad bowl" of the nation.

Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union said Tuesday a new contract agreement was expected with Inter Harvest, Inc., before the end of the week.

Pickets were withdrawn on the 12th day of the walkout by 1,500 workers because the company agreed not to hire strike breakers until a settlement was reached, according to Mrs. Delores Huerta, the union spokesman.

Airman Injured In Cycle Crash

Sgt. David R. Shinn, 22, of Travis Air Force Base, suffered leg injuries when his motorcycle struck a post in Novato yesterday.

Police said Shinn's southbound mororcycle struck a post near a garage on the property of K. R. Gentile at 1 Cherry Court at 4:55 p.m.

He was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital. Information about the nature of injury wasn't available.

Hub Board To Discuss Loss Of Financial Aid

The San Anselmo School District board will discuss a threatened loss of state financial aid because of a drop in enrollment when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the library of the Red Hill School on Shaw Drive.

According to Supt. Frank R. Elliott, only 1,839 children showed up for the first three days of school, 92 fewer than the projected enrollment of 1,931. Elliott said this could affect the district's budget since state aid is geared to pupil enrollment.

The board also will discuss the busing schedule for children in kindergarten, first, and educationally handicapped classes, and will report on negotiations with the Golden Gate Transit System concerning the possible turn-around of district route 37 at the Sleepy Hollow School. Also to be taken up are proposals to bus second and third grade pupils starting Sept. 25.

The board will take up the 17-cent hike in the district's tax rate to answer questions from people who had expected a lower tax rate than the $3.62 adopted for 1972-73.

The board also will consider adding a student representative at tomorrow's meeting.

Larkspur Discussion Of Redevelopment

Larkspur School District Board will discuss the effects of the Town of Corte Madera's redevelopment plans on the school district at its meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the administration office, 20 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

Reports on enrollment in all district schools will be presented, and trustees will also discuss redistricting with the Mill Valley School District.

More Adults Seen In Education Classes

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) —Enrollment in adult education classes will probably surpass elementary and secondary school enrollment in California by 1975, according to a special report on adult education.

The report by the Association of California School Administrators said 1.6 million adults attended such classes last year at high schools and community colleges. If courses given by recreation departments and college extension divisions are counted, the total nears 4.3 million, the number of youngsters enrolled in kindergarten through 12th grade in the state.

Hitchhiker's Tip Leads To Pair's Heroin Arrest

Two men, arrested after a hitchhiker told sheriff's deputies the pair had injected heroin six times during a drive from Oregon, were bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on charges of possessing the drug.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Superior Court ordered Leroy Glenn Jeffery,19, of Vancouver, Canada, and Harry Woodford Swingler, 19, of nearby Surry, to appear Monday.

They were arrested Aug. 23 on Highway 101 by deputies who said they found six bundles of white powder and the injecting equipment in a refrigerator of a house trailer the two were towing behind their car.

The pair also is charged with misdemeanor possession of hypodermic needles and a syringe.

Nixon Adviser: Convictions Lag

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Nixon's top drug enforcement adviser complained today that convictions for narcotics crimes are lagging far behind arrests. Even when there is a high rate of convictions, few offenders ever go to jail, he said.

"We can never stop drug abuse under these circumstances," special Assistant Attorrney General Miles J. Ambrose said in a prepared speech at the Town Hall Club of Los Angeles.

Ambrose, who is in charge of the Justice Department's Office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement and is special consultant to the President on drug abuse enforcement, said studies found either low conviction rates or low imprisonment of drug offenders.

Israel Denies Jet Lost In Golan Heights Dogfight

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Damascus Radio reported dogfights between Syrian and Israeli planes over the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights today at a time when newspapers in the Arab world were predicting new Israeli attacks against Lebanon and Syria.

Israel denied the Damascus Radio claim but the broadcast reported that Syrian observation posts saw an Israeli plane fall near the Golan Heights town of Banyas.

The Damascus broadcast monitored in Beirut said "one of the intruding Israeli planes was shot down and was seen falling, exploding in midair."

Both Lebanon and Syria have reported many Israeli reconnaissance flights during the past few days and residents of southern Lebanon reported seeing four Israeli planes flying toward the Golan Heights this morning.

Israeli planes struck heavily into Lebanon and Syria last Friday in reprisal against the murder of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympic Games and Syrian and Israeli planes battled over the Golan Heights Saturday in a battle in which Israel reported three Syrian planes shot down.

Israel indicated through its press today it also would carry its fight against Arab guerrillas into Europe and other countries if attacks against its citizens and interests there continue.

The Israeli military command denied in Tel Aviv that any aerial dogfight took place over the cease-fire line with Syria or that an Israeli plane was lost.

"We deny it," the Israeli spokesman said, of the report from Damascus. "Nothing of the sort took place — no dogfight, no encounter, no plane shot down."

The dogfight was the third reported by Syria in five days. In the Saturday dogfights Syrian spokesmen said three Israeli Mirages were hit and admitted that three Syrian Sukhov fighter-bombers were downed.

Announcing today's reported action, Damascus radio said a formation of Israeli warplanes "violated Syrian airspace near the Mount Hermon region of the border.

"Our planes and anti-aircraft gunners intercepted the intruding enemy aircraft and shot down one of them."

In Jerusalem, "the general feeling is that in order to counter this wave of spectacular terrorism — which is expected to continue — Israel will have to take the initiative abroad," The Jerusalem Post's military correspondent said in a front-page dispatch.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Davar, often reflective of government opinion, said an "extensive Israeli anti-guerrilla campaign will be inevitable, both in the Middle East and other areas."

Egyptian newspapers today said Israel is preparing to launch new attacks against Lebanon and Syria. Lebanese Prime Minister Saeb Salam pledged his nation would fight an expected attack from Israel although he admitted Lebanon lacks the power "to fully repel Israeli aggression."

Residents of the South Lebanon town of Marajayoun said today four Israeli jets broke the sound barrier over the town, then headed out toward the occupied Syrian Golan Heights. Similar overflights Tuesday spread fears of renewed Israeli attacks on South Lebanon borders.

Virtually all of Israel's other major papers' military correspondents carried stories similar to the Post and Davar

GUERRILLA BASES — Christian Science Monitor map locates areas in Syria and Lebanon where Israeli military spokesmen claim Arab guerrilla bases are located. Some of the areas were targets of air attacks by Israel aircraft in retaliation for slaying of Israeli Olympic team members. Lebanese officials claim some air attacks went beyond the usual Israeli targets in Fatahland to near Damascus in Syria and as far north as Tripoli in Lebanon.

Dollar Estate Proposal Rejected By Planners

Right Of Appeal Within Five Days

By NELS JOHNSON

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night rejected a proposal to develop the historic Robert Dollar estate on Mission Avenue amid thunderous applause from an overflow crowd at city hall. (Another planning commission story, page 5.)

The 5-2 vote followed a two-hour public hearing. Commissioners James Dougan and Thomas R. O'Toole dissented.

The commission majority believed development of the site would violate provisions of the city's building moratorium which prohibits construction which might not be compatible with new general plan standards to be established.

San Rafael attorney Thomas E. Schaal — who has proposed an 80-unit apartment and townhouse development for the 11.1-acre parcel — last night requested a use permit under the moratorium and a zoning change in order to proceed with his plans.

After denying the permit, commissioners voted 4-3 to deny the rezoning request, with Dougan, O'Toole and Jorgen V. Lunding dissenting.

Schaal has five days in which to appeal the decisions to the city council.

Schaal said last night that the property was destined for residential use, claiming the site was inadequate for park purposes and citing high maintenance costs.

"If the community wants it, they should buy it. But where will the money come from?" he asked. The attorney has an option to buy the property from estate trustees and has placed its value at about $300,000.

Architect Gilbert Murphy said the project represented a first-class apartment-townhouse development. "It will have a grand impact on the community," he said.

Murphy said the 48-unit apartment set back 140 feet from Mission Avenue and backed by eight clusters of townhouses totaling 32 units as proposed would be better than what present zoning allows, as it would save existing trees and leave five acres in open space. The architect said a 52-unit block apartment building directly fronting Mission and backed by a traditional tract of 19 townhouses covering the entire parcel is possible under the property's multiple and single-family zoning.

Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing several adjacent property owners on Bonnie Brae Drive, said Murphy was using "horror tactics" in suggesting a traditional subdivision could be erected on the site.

"It would be a downright unadulterated rape of the hillside," Bianchi declared, saying a traditional tract would never be approved. "It's simply a scare tactic intefed to terrify neighbors," he said.

Bianchi noted the moratorium discourages building on hillsides and said the measure prohibited development of the property.

A long string of audience members expressed dismay at plans to raze the 100-year-old mansion and develop the site.

Mary Dekker, chairman of the San Rafael Historic Preservation Committee, presented the commission with a 1,375-signature petition opposing the Schaal proposal. One committee member recited a brief biography of Robert Dollar while another showed slides detailing the mansion's architecture, stained glass and intricate wood carvings.

Bryce W. Anderson, chairman of the San Rafael Library Board, told the commission the board opposed the development due to the traffic hazard that would be experienced by users of the library across Mission Avenue. He called traffic congestion that would be generated by the development a "peril to the lives of patrons of the library."

A 19-year-old girl urged denial of the project so that the mansion could be saved for the enjoyment of young people unfamiliar with 19th-Century architecture.

Former Novato mayor Joseph D. Gargiulo, a native of San Rafael, said Novato had lost an historic mansion to a developer in 1959. "Condominiums are a dime a dozen but there's only one Dollar mansion," he said.

The commission majority agreed with Commissioer Albert J. Boro that the development plan violated the city's moratorium. "I don't see any way the commission can approve this plan until the moratorium is lifted," he said.

INSIDE QUANG TRI — Smoke rises today from inside the citadel at Quang Tri following allied airstrikes yesterday in support of government troops involved in heavy fighting for the walled fortress. Communists, however, stalled their drive today to retake the city.

U.S. Jets Rip Railyard, Down 3 MIGs; Reds Hold In Quang Tri

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. jet fighters firing laser-guided bombs wiped out half a railroad complex in North Vietnam Tuesday, downed three Soviet-built MIG21s in dogfights over Hanoi and destroyed a railroad bridge south of the China border, the U.S. command said today.

In South Vietnam government marines who fought their way into the gray dirt and stone walled Citadel inside Quang Tri City were halted today by Communist troops in big bunkers after they had seized a third of the 50 acre compound in savage fighting. The slowing down meant they had missed their Wednesday deadline for capturing the ancient fortress.

UPI reporters in Quang Tri said the marines were hit today by 3,617 rounds of artillery and mortar fire looping over the 20-foot high Citadel walls but that the weather lifted and U.S. fighter-bombers were able to hit the Communist bunkers inside the Citadel with pinpoint fire.

The U.S. command said Air Force Phantons, A6 Intruders and A7 Corsairs bombed the railroad yards at Kep, 45 miles northwest of Hanoi, and reported destroying half of the complex. The pilots said smoke rose to 4,000 feet over the target as they headed back out to sea.

Other Air Force Phantoms destroyed a 105-foot railroad bridge near Yen Bai, a major air, rail and storage center 75 miles south of China. Still other Phantom pilots struck the Luc Nam petroleum pumping station 35 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilot returning to assess the damage reported that

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Conservationists, developers and property owners joined forces yesterday to persuade the Marin County Board of Supervisors to accept a watered-down interpretation of the controversial Marks vs. Whitney decision. (Other Supervisors stories, page 20.)

The board, after more than two hours of discussion, directed its legal staff to prepare criteria under which certain tidelands in Bolinas Lagoon and Tomales Bay can be developed if the public's right of access and use is preserved.

The Marks vs. Whitney decision, which rose out of a legal battle between Tomales Bay neighbors, was handed down last year by the state Supreme Court and said state tidelands sold to private interests under an 1868 law are subject "to the public trust."

The effect of the high court's ruling was to assert the public right of use over hundreds of thousands of acres of privately owned tidelands throughout the state.

Tidelands are the area between high and low tide.

The Tomales case grew out of a dispute between Larry H. Marks Jr., a tidelot owner, and Peter D. Whitney, owner of a waterfront parcel inboard of the Marks tidelot. The case began in 1963 when Whitney took legal action to block Marks's plan to develop his tidelot.

Whitney argued he had a right to an historic public easement over the tidelot on the ground that the state constitution said such lots were held in trust for the people of the state, and that these rights could not be lost just because the lots were sold by the legislature.

Whitney, in taking the case to the Supreme Court, drew support from conservation groups such as the Sierra Club, while Marks was backed by the Westbay Community Associates, which claims exclusive right to extensive tidelands in San Francisco Bay.

The court's decision recognized that one of the most important public uses of tidelands is their preservation in a "natural state so that they may serve as ecological units for scientific study, as open space, and as environments which provide food and habitat for birds and marine life, and which favorably affect the scenery and climate of the area."

Campaign Talk Of Nixon, Aides

THURMONT, Md. (UPI)— President Nixon called in top aides today for more strategy discussions on his re-election campaign.

Former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally Jr., former Attorney General John N. Mitchell and Nixon's campaign director, Clark MacGregor, joined the President for a dinner meeting at Camp David.

Connally is head of the Democrats-for-Nixon organization and Mitchell is former head of the Nixon re-election committee who headed the President's campaign in 1968.

Kissinger Ends Talks; London And Paris Next

MOSCOW (UPI)—American presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger concluded three days of talks with Soviet leaders today and prepared to fly to London and Paris. He conceled a sidetrip to Leningrad to have more time for the talks.

An American spokesman said a joint Kremlin-White House communique reviewing the talks probably will be issued late tonight or early Thursday.

Kissinger is to leave Moscow by air Thursday morning for London, where he will brief British leaders on the outcome of his session in Moscow. On Friday he will make a similar report to French leaders before returning to Washington.

There were indications he could hold more secret talks in Paris with Le Duc Tho, senior North Vietnamese diplomat in Paris.

En route to Moscow, Kissinger stopped in West Germany to confer with Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Kissinger worked right through what originally had been intended to be a day off with a sidetrip to trour the sights of Leningrad.

Kissinger skiped a performance of the Bolshoi Ballet Tuesday night so as not to break off the talks, diplomatic sources said. They added that today's Leningrad trip also went by the board when he told aides he would remain in conference until his departure for London early Thursday.

The talks, the sources said, should reveal how far Soviet leaders are willing to go towards establishing European security.

Kissinger is to report on the results of his Moscow mission to British and French leaders Thursday and Friday before returning to Washington to brief President Nixon, officials in London and Paris said.

Soviet officials broke two

Stans, Mitchell Face HQ Bugging Subpoena

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said today he would try to subpoena Maurice Stans and John N. Mitchell to testify on the break-in of Democratic headquarters in the wake of a critical report by the staff of his House Banking Committee on fund-raising for President Nixon.

The report said Stans, finance chairman of Nixon's re-election committee, acknowledged Sept. 5 that he approved secret transfer of at least $100,000 through Mexican banks to the Nixon campaign.

The report said Stans had denied Aug. 30 any knowledge of the potentially illegal campaign fund transfer, then changed his story after William Liedtke, chief southwest fund-raiser for Nixon, told investigators Stans had approved the Mexican transfer on April 3.

A total of $89,000 of the $100,000 which came through Mexico eventually reached the bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of five suspects in the alleged bugging incident June 17, the report said.

The report said the staff was unable to determine who donated the money, but it could have come from illegal contributions if any of the money was from foreign nationals.

The 58-page report and a cover letter from Patman were made available to committee members Tuesday. A committee member provided portions of the report to UPI.

Patman said in an interview

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Korean Problems

SEOUL (UPI) — South and North Korean Red Cross officials failed to reach an agreement today on procedures for reuniting members of 10 million families split by the war and decided to shelve the problems for later settlement.

South Korean sources said a basic difference of approach presents difficulties for the future of the Red Cross talks.

Major differences between the two sides became apparent at the second round of talks that opened at Chosun Hotel in downtown Seoul. The meeting adjourned when they failed to reach agreement.

South Korean Red Cross sources said the major problem was North Korean insistence on injecting politics into the talks by demanding that representatives of social, labor and political organizations participate in the talks.

Trade Agreement

MADRID (UPI) — Spain and the Soviet Union are close to reaching agreement on the first trade treaty between the two countries since Generalissimo Francisco Franco came to power 33 years ago, economic sources said today.

Negotiations for the treaty were initiated last year. They may be completed within a few days, the sources said.

The final phase of the negotiations is being held in Paris which was chosen as a neutral site since the two countries have no diplomatic relations.

The sources said the treaty was aimed at expanding Spain's and the Soviet Union's two-way trade which was a modest $30 million in 1971 but has soared to more than $50 million in the first half of 1972 in anticipation of the agreement.

Vietnam Trial

FT. ORD (UPI) — Two officers killed by a fragmentation grenade in Vietnam had just celebrated a unit farewell party, the opening witness testified Tuesday at the courtmartial of Pvt. Billy D. Smith.

Former 1st Lt. Peter B. Higgins, 25, Harrison, N.J., told the military panel that he was sleeping in the officer's barracks in the same room with the two men who died. Higgins was wounded in the incident.

Capt. Craig J. Casey, the Army prosecutor in the "fragging" case, said the pin from the grenade that exploded in the officers' quarters was found in the pocket of Smith, the 24-year-old defendant from Los Angeles.

Knee Broken

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ann-Margret, whose face was badly battered in a 30-foot fall from a stage platform, also suffered a serious leg injury — a broken kneecap that could cripple her dancing career, it was revealed.

It had been thought earlier that the most serious injuries to the 31-year-old entertainer were a broken left arm, a broken jaw, and five broken bones in her face.

As doctors at UCLA Medical Center prepared to operate Tuesday on her face, it was found she had a serious leg injury, said her manager, Alan Carr.

"They bandaged her leg after the fall and assumed there was no dangerous injury. But X-rays disclosed she had a fractured kneecap," Carr said.

Protestant Strike

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The Ulster Vanguard Movement said today Protestants would stage a general strike, take to the streets in force and may attack Roman Catholic areas in Northern Ireland if internment ends.

The warning from the militant Protestant movement followed a meeting Tuesday between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Catholic politicians in Northern Ireland. The Catholics appealed to him to order a swift end to the internment of suspected members of the Irish Republican Army IRA.

The Vanguard Movement, which claims 60,000 members, said in a statement Protestant workers would bring the province to a "complete standstill" if Heath ends internment in order to persuade Catholic leaders to attend all-party political talks Sept. 25.

Price Fixing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four major baking companies were indicted Tuesday by a federal grand jury on charges of fixing the price of the more than $75 million worth of bread they sell each year in the New York metropolitan area.

The defendants are the American Bakeries Co. of Chicago; General Host Corp. and Ward Foods Inc. of New York, and ITT Continental Baking Co. of Rye, N.Y., American Bakeries and ITT Continental are both incorporated in Delaware.

Assistant Attorney General Thomas Kauper said in Washington that the four companies and certain unnamed coconspirators are charged with violating antitrust laws by fixing the prices of Tastee, Bond, Wonder and Tip-Top bread. If convicted, each company faces a maximum penalty of a $50,000 fine.

Noise Control

NEW YORK (UPI) — The city council last night passed overwhelmingly a measure described as the most comprehensive attempt in the nation to control the level of noise.

The Noise Control Code places strict noise limits on air conditioners, air compressors, jackhammers, automobile horns and sirens. It also requires that noise levels be set within one year for subways, railroads and aircraft.

The measure, expected to be signed shortly by Mayor John V. Lindsay, passed the council on a vote of 31 of 5 with one abstention. The vote followed a noisy, 2½ hour session in the council.

Opponents of the code, in particular members of the construction industry and public utilities, have said the measure is too stringent to enforce.

Murder Arrests

CHRISTIANSTED, St. Croix, V.I. (UPI) — Police acting on an anonymous tip raided a house in the town of Frederiksted yesterday and arrested three men wanted in the submachine gun attack that killed eight Americans last week at a luxurious golf club.

Police, FBI agents and federal marshals continued the search for the remaining two men sought in the slayings. The latest arrests brought to five the number of persons charged with first degree murder.

Police arrested Warren Vallentin, 23; Ismail Labeet, 25, and Rafael Joseph, 21, all of St. Croix, without resistance.

Some Upsets In State Primaries

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Reps. Wayne N. Aspinall and John L. McMillan, House committee chairmen in their 70s, and New Hampshire Gov. Walter Peterson were narrowly defeated Tuesday in the most important developments of primaries in 10 states.

Recounts were likely.

Aspinall lost a Colorado Democratic primary to University of Denver law professor Alan Merson, 38, by 1,500 votes. McMillan fell in a South Carolina Democratic runoff by less than 1,000 votes to State Rep. John Jenrette, 36. Conservative Meldrim Thomson won the Republican primary from Peterson by 2,100 votes.

There were also primaries in Arizona, Florida, Minnesota, Rhode Island, Utah, Vermont and Wisconsin. Primaries in Massachusetts next Tuesday and in Hawaii Oct. 7 will complete the state contests for the general election Nov. 7.

The defeat of Aspinall, the 76-year-old chairman of the House Interior Committee, was hailed by the National Campers and Hikers Association Inc. as "a clear-cut victory for environmentalists and outdoor recreation-oriented families."

McMillan, 74, was charged by Jenrette as wasting his seniority by service on the House District Committee, which oversees the local government of the nation's capital. Washington's non-voting delegate to Congress, Walter Fauntroy, said the defeat of McMillan, who has long opposed self-government for the city, was "a great victory for the people of South Carolina and the people of Washington."

Peterson had defeated Thomson in 1968 and 1970 gubernatorial primaries. Thomson will face Democrat Roger J. Crowley, also a conservative, in the November election.

In other key primaries:

Arizona—In races for the House, Reps. Morris Udall, D, and Sam Steiger, R, were unopposed. Rep. John Rhodes, R, led by a 10 to 1 margin.

Florida—Reps. Robert L.F. Sikes and Don Fuqua won Democratic primaries that clinched re-election to the House since *they face no opposition in No*vember. Rep. Claude Pepper also won a Democratic primary, but will be contested by Republican Evelio Estrella.

Minnesota—Sen. Walter F. Mondale easily won the Democratic nomination for a second term. All eight congressmen won nominations.

New Hampshire — Former Gov. Wesley Powell won the Republican nomination to face Sen. Thomas J. McIntire, who was unchallenged for the Democratic nomination.

Utah—Reps. Sherman Lloyd, R, and K. Gunn McKay, D, won nominations.

Vermont—Luther F. Hackett, an old-line Republican, defeated Attorney General James M. Jeffors, a moderate, for the GOP gubernatorial nomination to succeed retiring Gov. Deane C. Davis. Democrat Thomas Salmon was unopposed.

Wisconsin—Republican Reps. Alvin O'Konski and Glen Davis survived serious challenges to win nomination for new terms. Eight other incumbents also won their primary races.

The Police Can Keep Their Band

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The city council voted 9-3 Tuesday to let the police department keep its band, despite arguments by one councilman that the officer-musicians should be "on the street fighting crime."

But another councilman, Gilbert Lindsay, rose to the defense of the band, arguing "there is no better way to reduce crime than through music.

"Show me the man who loves music, and I will show you a man who's friendly, contented and happy. But a man who doesn't like music is hateful, contemptuous and negative."

Auto Chief Says Price Hike Needed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. President John J. Riccardo argues that price increases for 1973 model cars are necessary because new safety devices required by the government have pushed up costs.

Riccardo was one of the witnesses Tuesday as the federal Price Commission opened hearings into auto pricing policies. Additional sessions were scheduled today and Thursday.

Riccardo argued requests for raises did not "amount to a price increase" because new safety features give the cars an added value.

"A recovery of these costs will not add one cent to the cost of living index," he said.

The automakers have based most of their case for higher prices on the added cost of installing stronger bumpers, flameproof upholstery, tougher doors, and cleaner exhaust systems.

In earlier testimony, Transportation Undersecretary James M. Beggs conceded if these safety features were "added on" to 1973 cars it would cost manufacturers an average $50 to $70 per vehicle.

'Voiceprint' Machine Used By Crimefighters, Younger Says

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says California crimefighters are using a "voiceprint" machine designed to identify criminals by their voices.

"This machine will permit positive identification of kidnappers, extortionists and obscene phone callers," Younger said Tuesday.

The $10,500 machine compares the voice of a suspect with a tape-recording of the criminal's voice, usually obtained from a telephone threat.

Younger said the unit can even identify disguised or muffled voices, such as that of a person who places a handkerchief over a telephone mouthpiece.

The only problem, he said, will be court challenges. "It's now up to each judge" whether evidence from the machine should be accepted, he said.

Hopefully, Younger said, the voice identification procedure will become as universally accepted as using fingerprints to identify a criminal. But he said it may take 20 years to achieve this kind of acceptance.

Younger said the legal problem is to convince judges that no two persons' voices are the same, as inventors of the unit contend. He said the same problem occurred during the early use of fingerprints when some persons disputed the belief that no two sets of fingerprints are alike.

A New Citizen's Road To Marin

Trying to keep her safe during World War II, Josephine Mazzotti's parents sent her from Rome to the Adriatic coast of northern Italy.

But it proved to be a case of "out of the frying pan, into the fire." Rome escaped bombing, but northern Italy was heavily bombed.

She was sent to the town of Ivenna, seat of the Holy Roman Empire when it moved from Constantinople, about 100 kilometers from Venice.

That was the beginning of the life of recently naturalized Josephine Mazzotti Morse, born in Rome in 1942.

After the war, she returned to Rome where she went to parochial and public schools, studying to be a secretary-translator.

With that background, she became an exchange student in 1959 in the Santa Barbara area.

After her year in this country, she returned to Rome and took a job as secretary-translator for architect Walter Gropius in whose office she met Clifford H. Morse, who was helping Gropius design the University of Baghdad. They married in 1965.

A honeymoon and work took them to Athens for 16 months.

Then the couple returned to the U.S. and settled at Cambridge and Lexington, Mass., near Boston.

They moved to California in 1961 and in December of last year moved to 201 Golden Gate Avenue, Belvedere.

JOSEPHINE M. MORSE
Recently naturalized

They have a 30-month-old son, Adran Francesco.

Mrs. Morse, determined not to let the role of mother and homemaker interfere with ambition, is attending Dominican College and hopes to go on to University of California at Berkeley to become a marine archeologist.

"I wanted to participate in the country in which I live," Mrs. Morse said of her decision to become an American citizen. She already has registered to vote.

today that in light of the staff findings he would ask the committee to subpoena Stans and Mitchell, former attorney general who was director of Nixon's campaign committee at the time of the June 17 break-in. He also said he would propose public hearings in the case.

Rep. Garry Brown, R-Mich., a member of the Banking Committee, criticized Patman today for not supplying Stans a copy of the report and said that in the interest of fairness he had sent Stans his copy.

Brown said he had asked Attorney General Richard G. Kleindienst for an opinion on the propriety of Patman's committee subpoenaing Stans. He said "it's just absolutely stupid" to call either Stans or Mitchell to testify in public.

Brown also said that prerial publicity of such hearings would make it impossible to convict those who carried out the break-in. "You're not going to convict any of these idiots," he said.

Five men were arrested in the Democratic offices, and were said to have had bugging equipment with them. They have been sued by the Democratic party which this week added Stans and three other persons formerly connected with the Nixon re-election committee as defendants.

Patman had intended to open closed hearings about the incident Thursday with Stans as a witness, but said the former commerce secretary declined to appear. Presumably, for this reason Patman decided to try to make him appear under subpoena.

Patman said it was possible the committee would vote to subpoena other witnesses besides Stans and Mitchell, "but we won't mention further witnesses at this time."

Patman said the hearings would concentrate on the transfer of Nixon campaign funds through Mexico and the granting of a charter to a bank whose incorporators included Dwayne Andreas of Minneapolis. Andreas contributed $25,000 to the Nixon campaign, and his $25,000 was also said to have been traced to the Miami bank account of Barker.

The Banking Committee staff report said $700,000 was taken to the Nixon re-election committee by Roy Winchester, vice president of public relations for the Pennzoil United Corp. April 5, two days before the new campaign disclosure law took effect.

Most of the money was raised in Texas, the report said, but $100,000 came through Mexican banks including the funds which eventually went to Barker.

"It appears that the Committee to Re-Elect the President and its allied groups are willing to go to any lengths to conceal the identity and origins of these checks," Patman said in a cover letter attached to the report.

"We do not know whether these funds ($100,000) were raised in the United States or Mexico and we do not know whether they are the type of funds which could be legally contributed to or received by a political committee.

"Indications are that $100,000 came out of Mexico in one chunk and it is reasonable to question whether or not additional sums traveled these same routes," Patman said.

The report said the comptroller of the currency granted the Andreas bank charter in 88 days, which it said was unusually fast.

The staff said the speed appeared to be unnecessary since the bank could not be ready for business until 1974 or 1975 and the shopping center in which it is to be located has not yet been built.

In another development, U.S. District Judge Charles Richey Tuesday ordered the Democrats to stop taking depositions in their suit against the five bugging suspects until he decided whether the party's lawyers' failure to meet a filing deadline was sufficient reason to dismiss their case.

Richey indicated he was prepared to dismiss the $1 million suit on a technicality — that the Democrats failed to answer within the prescribed five days a motion by Henry B. Rothblatt, attorney for the five defendants.

If Richey threw the case out, it could be immediately refiled, but the delay would be certain to delay trial of the case until well after the Nov. 7 elections.

The attorney for the Democratic National Committee, Harold Unger, missed by one day filing the motion.

WAR

heavy black smoke obscured the target, the command said.

A spokesman said other targets at Kep included two 5,000-gallon petroleum storage tanks that were damaged and a pipeline that was cut in three places.

Phantom Jets escorting fighter-bombers striking near Hanoi shot down three MIGs in two separate dogfights, the command said. A spokesman said at least 12 MIGs and Phantoms took part in the two battles. Spokesmen at first had called it a single dogfight but said later there were two separate actions.

The command in a delayed report said two more Phantoms were shot down over North Vietnam Monday. The command earlier reported one F4 shot down in a dogfight Monday but today announced the downing of the other two by Communist antiaircraft fire. The two crewmen from the MIG-downed Phanton were missing but there was no report on the fate of the crewmen from the other two aircraft.

A command spokesman said other fighter-bombers in Tuesday's raids into the North struck the Thanh Hoa railroad and highway bridge 83 miles south of Hanoi for the second consecutive day. Laser bombs knocked out three spans of the link between Hanoi and Haiphong Monday but there was no report of damage in Tuesday's strike.

UPI reporter Ted Kurrus, reporting from Quang Tri, said the marines with allied air support stopped a Communist effort to reinforce the Citadel across sandbars in the Thach Han River north of the city.

Military sources told Kurrus the marines and aircraft sank four sampans, recovered 47 bodies and captured more than 100 weapons. They estimated total Communist dead at 100.

Marines inside the Citadel were well dug in against North Vietnamese rocket and machine-gun fire from the fortress walls, Kurrus reported.

Saigon sources said the entire marine division of about 12,000 men killed 403 North Vietnamese in fighting throughout the city Tuesday at a cost of 16 government soldiers dead and 119 wounded. But a military source in Da Nang said Marine casualties since the Citadel was breached have been averaging 100 a day.

Court Rules On Ballot Markings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — For a vote to count on a California ballot, the cross-mark must be at least partly within the designated square, the state Court of Appeal has ruled.

The ruling came Monday on a case brought by George Livingston, a Richmond city councilman who sought re-election in May 11, 1971, balloting.

Three councilmen were to be selected from a number of candidates, but some ballots were disallowed because the cross-marks were outside the square. Livingston and another candidate, Richard N. Nelson, wound up with the same number of votes and neither was elected. Livingston would have won if the disallowed ballots had been counted.

Sausalito Arrest Of North Dakota Man

A 24-year-old man from North Dakota was arrested last night on Bridgeway, in downtown Susalito, on suspicion of being drunk in public and possessing a bag of marijuana, police reported.

The man, Ben Chimak Bercier, was arrested at about 9:30 p.m. and booked into Marin County Jail. He was held in lieu of $500 bail to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Innocent Pleas By Sausalitan

A 24-year-old Sausalito man pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a charge of possessing a motorcycle engine stolen more than three years ago and of possessing marijuana.

A preliminary hearing for David Lamond Biery of 77 Cazneau Avenue was scheduled for Tuesday.

Biery, who also calls himself Gerald Michael Eberhart and Gerald Michael Path, was arrested Sept. 5 by Sausalito police after an informant told them he had the stolen engine in his basement.

Checking the engine number, police discovered the engine was stolen in April 1969.

dispatches, indicating they had been briefed by a high-level official who was not identified in their articles.

The Post said Israel is expected to meet the guerrillas "on their own terms. . .using tactics which would be both unconventional and damaging."

The paper noted "Israel's ability to adapt to unconventional situations" by citing the 1960 kidnap capture of former Nazi SS Col. Adolf Eichmann in South America.

The Post added: "There is no guarantee that the situation will not deteriorate, escalating into full-scale conventional warfare between Israel and its neighbors."

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said "it is clear now that Israel, while preparing to resume its aggression along the northern front Syria and Lebanon, has the unlimited support of the United States."

Al Ahram and another Cairo newspaper, Al Akhbar, said the U.S. veto in the United Nations means only one thing: "to give the justification of the Israeli aggression against Syria and Lebanon and provide a pretext for new acts of aggression Israel is preparing.

LANDS

Population pressures and demands for recreational property made preservation of the public trust "of great public importance," the court said.

Both Marks and Whitney were in the standing-room-only audience yesterday. Neither spoke.

However, Supervisor Louis H. Baar did, branding the decision political rather than legal.

"The court's action wasn't a legal decision, it was poltiical," brooded Baar, a real estate agent. "The original act (permitting state sale) makes mention of reclamation. If they (property owners) have reclaimed it, don't they have a right to use it?"

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney responded that "Whether it's political or legal, once the Supreme Court says it, it's law."

Robert A. Roumiguiere, who helped create the Tidelands Property Owners Association to fight the ruling, said the board was responsible to protect property owners who have paid high taxes on their land for years. The ruling covers 500 parcels in Marin.

San Rafael Attorney Albert Bianchi, representing the association, said it was up to local governments to decide what "public trust" means to individual parcels.

He suggested state legislation to provide financial relief to property owners adversely affected. Also, criteria under which tidelands could be developed if the public's access and use were preserved.

"Don't surrender to the awful temptation of outright confiscation of land," he warned.

Among others urging a narrow interpretation of the decision were Seadrift developer Roger Kent, wildlife painter Stanley W. Galli, Jerry Friedman of the Environmental Action Committee, San Rafael Attorney Warren Perry and Supervisorial candidate Gary Giacomini.

County Counsel Maloney said exact survey lines from the 1860's were nonexistent, thus making it difficult to establish exactly what lands fall under the decision. He suggested new studies by the department of public works to establish tide lines in 1868.

Further, he said, some lands the state says are included are "uplands" which have never been subject to tidal flow.

"It is obvious that this land should not therefore be treated as if the owners' rights are restricted," he said.

He said owners of tidelands which have already been improved with homes should be reimbursed by the state for the improvements if the state seeks to have them removed.

Supervisors agreed, however, legislation should be sought to make such improvements legal instead.

The board's unanimous decision to seek means of accommodating both public and private rights came after a parade of property owners protested the court's action.

Galli, who owns tideland property near Inverness, termed it "confiscation by interpretation without compensation."

Others complained of paying taxes for years only to find that the high court's decision had made their land "virtually worthless" since it couldn't be developed or sold.

The matter will come back to the board in January after the legal staff has developed the requested criteria under which the lands can be developed.

Suit Filed In Gay Speech Case

The American Civil Liberties Union today filed suit in Marin Superior Court over the refusal of the Novato School District to allow a homosexual to speak to a San Marin High School class in June, and a judge ordered the district to show cause why its actions shouldn't be overturned.

Judge Henry J. Broderick set the hearing for Sept. 28 on the order on behalf of three teachers, students from San Marin and their parents, the homosexual group, Society for Individual Rights, and Robert Robillard, a member of the group who was turned away when he tried to address students June 7.

The suit names the school district, , its board of trustees, Supt. James G. Bunker and San Marin Principal Henry J. Moroski.

The suit asks that a judge declare the activities of the teachers and the gay group protected by the U.S. constitutional guarantees of free speech and association.

It further asks an order allowing appearances by Robillard and other members of his society when invited, and an order removing letters of reprimand from the files of the two teachers who invited Robillard, and then ignored an order by Bunker and Moroski forbidding the speech.

The incident began June 1 when social studies teachers Kristina O'Donnell and Lawrence Siegel arranged for Robillard to address their classes on minority rights and personal philosophy six days later.

According to the suit, the teachers required written permission from parents for the talk on discrimination against homosexuals and arranged alternate study for students whose parents objected.

Despite the procedure, Moroski and Bunker forbade the appearance, the teachers refused to back down, Robillard arrived at the school as scheduled and was turned away by Moroski.

On June 20, the district board reprimanded the teachers for insubordination.

The suit contends the reprimands were given although the district violated rights of free speech and association, the state education code, the district's own rules and "discriminated against petitioner Robillard solely on the grounds on his sex."

According to the suit, all those who joined in it desire that controversial views "be heard in a classroom setting under the supervision and with the guidance of teachers."

Guilty Plea To Use Of Heroin

John David Anderson, 47, of San Anselmo, pleaded guilty yesterday to a misdemeanor count of being under the influence of heroin, and a felony count of burglary was dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Judge Robert A. Smallman scheduled sentencing for Oct. 6 after accepting the plea.

Anderson, originally charged only with burglary, was arrested Aug. 29 by San Rafael police after another man found him asleep in a taxicab in a parking lot on Bellam Boulevard in San Rafael.

Police said the cab's ignition wires had been tampered with.

Coast Guard Aids In Saving Boat

Coast Guard units helped save a Corte Madera man's fishing boat from sinking yesterday.

Frank Pomilia of 613 Meadowsweet Drive radioed at 11:54 a.m. that his 33-foot vessel, "Josephine," was filling with water and that he was heading for Fort Point from outside the Golden Gate. A Coast Guard cutter helped pump out the craft, then towed it to the Sausalito Marin Yard, Coast Guard spokesman reported.

Golf Bags Stolen As Golfer Watches

A golf bag and clubs valued at $400 were taken about 7:35 p.m. yesterday from the second tee at San Rafael's Las Gallinas Golf Club at 4480 Redwood Highway, James Mullowney, 15, of 625 Idleberry Road, San Rafael, told police.

Mullowney said he laid his clubs down for a few minutes and a male Caucasian 19 to 20 years old with brown hair took the clubs and fled in a black car.

VISIT

days of silence late Tuesday with a brief dispatch saying Kissinger was the luncheon guest of Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Neither Russian nor U.S. officials would say whether Kissinger also had talked with Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, and Premier Alexei N. Kosygin. In announcing Kissinger's trip a week ago, the White House said he would be seeing both men.

One of Kinninger's assignments was to get Russian agreement to negotiations on arms and troops reductions in central Europe, diplomatic sources said.

The United States wants the negotiations to start before, or at least run simultaneously with, the European security conference Nixon and Brezhnev agreed upon during the Moscow meeting last May.

The United States and its North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) allies have withheld agreement to a Nov. 22 meeting in Helsinki to prepare the security conference pending Russian acceptance of the arms issue.

Up to the time of Kissinger's arrival Sunday night, Soviet officials had been evasive, and Soviet writers commenting on European security noticeably omitted mention of arms reduction.

Diplomatic sources said the European security conference will devote most of its time to hammering out principles governing relations between states. But the Western powers want something more substantial, the sources added.

The sources said Vietnam played a considerable role in Kissinger's talks in Moscow, raising the possibility Kissinger would see North Vietnam's top negotiator, Le Duc Tho, while in Paris.

Marin Barbecue To Be Potluck

The Chicano barbecue at College of Marin on Sunday at 11 a.m. is a potluck affair, emphasizes Bill Acosta, college bilingual community liaison officer who is coordinating the event.

Everyone attending the day's events, must bring his own food, he said, although admission, Spanish-speaking movies and live band music is free.

The gathering, sponsored by La Famila, a San Rafael Chicano organization, is designed to get Marin's Chicano community together.

Harry's The Name

PARIS (UPI) — The first Harry's Bar, made famous by Ernest Hemingway and his set, was established in Paris, but there are well known copies in Venice, Milan, Rome, and Florence. Actually, Venice's Harry's Bar is the best known and was named for Harry Pickering, an alcoholic from Boston who put up the money with which Guiseppe Cipriani opened the bar-restaurant in 1931.

OBITUARIES

MARY LAWRENCE

Funeral for Mary Lawrence of San Anselmo was held Saturday at the Chapel of the Hills.

Mrs. Lawrence, who was 85, died Sept. 6 in a local hospital after a long illness.

A native of Austria, Mrs. Lawrence came to the United States in the early 1920's. She moved to Marin County from San Francisco 12 years ago, and made her home at 250 Magnolia Avenue.

Mrs. Lawrence was active with the San Anselmo congregation of Jehovah's Witness church.

Manzanita Tiff Plan Is Offered

The Mill Valley Human Rights miniboard last night suggested the county human rights commission step into the controversy between the Sausalito School District and the Marin City Learning Center.

The school district and the private school in Marin City have squared off against one another over use of the abandoned Manzanita School.

Board chairman William Broderick said the miniboard decided it would be presumptuous for it to make any specific recommendations for a solution to the heated situation at the school.

A group of Marin City residents took over the vacant school in July and have held classes in the building since Monday. The learning center was founded last year by a group of Marin City parents who were unhappy with their children's education in the Sausalito school system.

Their occupation of the school building was declared illegal tresspassing Monday night by the Sausalito School District board, which instructed Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg to take all necessary action to have the teachers and students removed from the building.

Aide Moves Up In Farm Bureau

James L. Spaletta of Inverness, first vice president of the Marin County Farm Bureau, has assumed the job of president until next February.

Alfred L. Poncia of Tomales, who was reelected president last February has been unable to serve because of the press of other business, and Spaletta took the post at a board meeting yesterday.

Bureau directors agreed to decorate a shop window at Point Reyes Station to observe Farm Bureau Week, Oct. 1-7.

Tools Missing

Tools valued at $1,195 were taken between 4:45 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. yesterday from a storage shed near the Bahia School, Stanford E. Bethrens, employee of McKeon Construction Co. of 1050 Northgate Drive, San Rafael, yesterday told San Rafael police.

Redevelop Plan Draft Adopted

The San Rafael Planning Commission last night unanimously adopted a preliminary plan outlining the aims and establishing the boundaries of the San Rafael redevelopment project area. (Another planning commission story, page 1.)

The plan — drawn up by redevelopment agency staff and consultants — is a rough draft of a precise plan to be arrived at by early October, according to William J. Bielser, the agency's executive director.

The area designated by the preliminary plan for redevelopment has essentially the same boundaries established last May by the city council, which acts as the San Rafael Redevelopment Agency.

The area encompasses downtown San Rafael, the commercial core along Francisco Boulevard, and East San Rafael, stretching roughly from Fourth and H streets in the west to Point San Pedro Road in the north and Point San Quentin in the south.

The aim of redevelopment is to spark economic growth within the redevelopment area, according to the plan. Under state law, a rdevelopment agency can freeze the current assessed valuation level within redevelopment boundaries and use future increases for self-financing.

Along with general objectives such as beautification, improving traffic flow and providing for new businesses while improving existing business, the plan recommends upgrading Fourth Street, providing downtown parking and making street improvements.

The preliminary plan also urges development of a detailed marketing survey; creation of recreational facilities; upgrading fire station headquarters; expansion of Boyd and Bahia Vista parks and city hall additions.

Redevelopment would involve acquisition, demolition and rehabilitation of property.

The final plan will be aired at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Oct. 24 in city hall, according to Bielser.

One resident last night criticized freezing assessed valuation to finance redevelopment and said the method was nothing more than "robbing Peter to save Paul."

Bielser said redevelopment would eventually increase total assessed valuation by improving property values, resulting in more revenue for everyone. "The tax loss just isn't there in the long run," he said.

(The county is currently investigating way of blocking San Rafael's redevelopment plans, charging the proposal will leave school districts and other taxing entities with less revenue than they would otherwise enjoy.)

Another resident, worried about moderate income housing in the redevelopment area, was told that the agency would make provisions for it.

Bielser — praised by the commission for an "outstanding job" — said all property owners within the redevelopment area would be notified before October's public hearing.

Phony Brinks Guards Get $300,000

MENTOR, Ohio (UPI)—Two men who gave faultless performances as Brinks' guards walked off with more than $300,000 Tuesday from a branch here of the Lake County National Bank.

The ruse became evident only when the real guards arrived an hour after the imposters had departed in what police said was an armored car.

The imposters arrived at the Great Lakes Mail branch bank in official-looking gray uniforms and caps, handguns slung from their belts.

They passed through a check-in procedure at which time their credentials and signatures were checked. Both appeared authentic, bank president Albert R. Pike said.

"The procedure was pretty much foolproof, we thought," Pike said.

Ten minutes later the two men pushed a cart loaded with six money bags containing more than $300,000 in currency from the bank to the parking lot and departed.

Branch Manager David Gibb was in the bank along with 20 employes and about 15 customers at the time, but nothing the men did raised their suspicions.

"They conducted themselves like Brinks' guards would," Pike said.

Because they entered the bank by a rear windowless door, regularly used by Brinks, no one inside saw their getaway vehicle.

Separate Fact From Fiction, Would-Be Corona Jurors Told

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—Prospective jurors were told to separate "fact from fiction" if the state attempts to link mass-murder suspect Juan V. Corona to an alleged "death list" containing some of the names of 25 victims.

Defense attorney Richard Hawk told a would-be juror Tuesday that state handwriting experts that will testify during the trial "are just going to give an opinion."

"You can either accept that or reject it. Listen carefully when these handwriting men come here so you can tell how much is fact and how much is fiction."

Hawk asked that the jury panel member "take into account that they (the handwriting experts) are being paid by the state."

The handwriting controversy centers around a green ledger allegedly confiscated by sheriff's deputies when they arrested the 38-year-old Corona at his Yuba City, Calif. home in a predawn raid May 26, 1971.

Corona, accused of killing 25 persons and burying their bodies along the banks of the Feather River, recently relented to a demand for fresh handwriting samples the state wanted to compare with writing in the ledger.

A source close to the investigation told UPI that the prosecution is "highly satisfied" with the results of comparisons conducted by private handwriting experts.

"They match up beautifully," the source said.

Sausalito Waterfront Issue Forces Redevelopment Delay

In lengthy rehashing of a familiar topic, the Sausalito City Council last night agreed that the creation of a redevelopment agency in Marinship should be postponed until a precise plan for the entire waterfront in Sausalito is prepared.

The council started discussing the feasibility of a redevelopment agency in an informal studysession, but soon got sidetracked on the city's larger planning problem.

After City Mgr. Albert St. Cyr outlined the powers of a redevelopment agency and the procedure required to establish one, Councilman Evert Heynneman said he was against planning for only one isolated section of the waterfront.

Restating a position he had advocated for months, Heynneman said the city needs a total plan which precisely and logically indicates how each portion of the waterfront should be used.

Planning for a fragment of the waterfront — such as the Marinship area — would lead to chaos, said Heynneman.

Councilman Earl F. Dunphy disagreed, saying the council could move forward on a section of the waterfront before a plan for the entire area was completed.

But, despite Dunphy's remarks, the council agreed on the importance of an overall plan of the waterfront.

As Mayor Robin Sweeny said, "the only problem now is manpower."

The council discussed the possibility of hiring an assistant planner to relieve Planning Director Eric Borgwardt of his day-to-day responsibilities, but postponed any decision until its next regular meeting Tuesday.

The council agreed that Borgwardt would have enough time to prepare such a waterfront study only if he was given help with routine planning chores.

The original idea of a redevelopment agency was lost in the discussion of the precise plan and the assistant planner.

Under California law, designation of a redevelopment area and creation of a redevelopment agency freezes the assessed valuation in the area in so far as various taxing districts, such as schools are concerned.

Increased tax revenues from higher assessed valuation goes to the redevelopment agency until bonds sold to finance redevelopment are repaid, at which time other taxing agencies participate in the higher returns.

Earthquake Causes Panic In Greece

ATHENS (UPI)—An earth tremor rocked much of Greece today, causing panic among the population.

The tremor, which occurred at 6:15 a.m. (12:15 a.m. EDT), registered six on the Richter scale, and its epicenter was 60 miles from Athens, a national observatory spokesman said.

Hub Approval Of New Care Center

The San Anselmo City Council last night backed the city's planning commission and approved operation of a child day care center at 241 Los Angeles Boulevard.

The center, run by Linda Hersh, will take care of a maximum of 10 children between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The council turned down an appeal by Earl L. Kemp of 256 Los Angeles Boulevard and several other area residents who said they objected to the noise of children and the increased traffic the center would bring to the neighborhood.

"This is getting to be a little too much," Kemp said and presented the council with a 15-name petition opposing the center.

Kemp said the street holds at least three other day care centers.

Charles R. Leitzell, public works director, informed the council that one had been established before zoning regulations were in effect, another was on county property, and said the city knew nothing about a third care center on the street.

The council put aside a suggestion by Councilman Kenneth G. Anderson that it table the matter until the city investigate how many day care centers actually were in the neighborhood.

The day care center was approved for a three-month period with Mayor Warren R. Perry and Councilman Woodrow V. Capurro voting against it.

The council set Oct. 2 as the deadline to accept applications for the post of San Anselmo City Attorney.

Seven applications have been received so far, and the council will advertise in a legal paper for the spot.

Councilmen Martin G. Blinder and Kenneth L. Anderson presented the council with a list of 14 questions each applicant will be required to answer after his application is received.

Enterprise Off For Vietnam

ALAMEDA, Calif. (UPI)—The largest ship in the Navy, the carrier Enterprise, headed for Vietnam Tuesday, sailing smoothly past a "people's blockade" of tiny boats.

About 20 small craft, including canoes, kayaks and skiffs, were left floundering in San Francisco Bay when the world's largest warship passed under the Golden Gate.

Ten antiwar demonstrators were rescued by Coast Guard vessels, some after jumping from their boats and others when their craft capsized.

The 89,000-ton carrier left the naval shipyard with 4,000 crewmen while relatives and friends waved from the docks and about 150 antiwar protesters marched outside the base gates.

Candidate Hurt As Auto Flips

SPOKANE, Wash. (UPI)—Democrat Will Knedlik, running for lieutenant governor, was "scratched and bruised" Tuesday when he tried to avoid a deer crossing a highway near Spokane and his car rolled over two or three times.

The candidate said he would continue his speaking engagements.

"I don't feel very well but I'm happy to be alive," said Knedlik.

It wasn't his first injury in the campaign. While walking through the state this summer to get his name before the public, Knedlik was struck on the head and robbed in a service station restroom.

San Anselmo To Continue Prosecution

San Anselmo will continue to take owners of illegal backyard cottages and basement apartments to court, despite a move last night by Councilman Lewis W. Stewart to halt the practice until a general plan is adopted.

Stewart was overruled 3-2 on a motion to drop litigation until the council has weighed a citizen's group finding on illegal and nonconforming units. These include units dating prior to 1926.

Councilman Martin G. Blinder voted with Stewart.

Had the motion carried, it would have halted the city's long standing case against an alleged illegal apartment occupied by Gay Kagy at 280 Redwood Avenue.

Stewart's motion, which caught the council by surprise, came after it indicated it would take no action on the citizen's committee report on nonconforming uses.

The study, begun in 1970, was presentedto the council in Aug. 1971 and was never acted upon. It has since shuttled between the planning commission and the council.

According to Stewart, the report found that these dwellings, though technically illegal, provide low-cost housing in San Anselmo. It recommends they be regulated, not banned outright.

In the meantime, the city started legal action to wipe out San Anselmo's 83 illegal dwelling units in R-I districts.

Mayor Warren R. Perry said that he recognized the need for low-cost housing in San Anselmo., but added, "It wouldn't be right to adopt a policy which would open the door to a population explosion of units in every garage, attic and loft."

Perry appointed Stewart and Councilman Kenneth L. Anderson to extract a policy statement from the lengthy citizen's report for consideration by council at the next meeting.

Wells For 'Dinner'

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Orson Wells will star in a 90-minute Hallmark Hall of Fame production of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" for NBC in the role of Sheridan Whiteside.

Sausalito College Blessed By Council

The Sausalito City Council gave its blessing last night to the new College of California at Sausalito which hopes to make its home on the second floor of the Schoonamaker Building.

The college was begun last year in Sausalito by several educators who were disenchanted with the direction and emphasis of traditional colleges and universities in the country. Its three-year bachelor's degree program and student-oriented curriculum attractrd about 18 students and 10 teachers last year.

College President John Leary told the city council he anticipates a jump in enrollment this year to between 60 and 80 students.

Lacking a permanent home, the new college held classes last year in churches, the Sausalito Art Center, a houseboat and the president's home.

This year, Leary said the school wants to move under one roof. It will apply for an occupancy permit for the Schoonmaker Building tomorrow from planning director Eric Borgwardt.

Borgwardt said the application does not have to be referred to the city council or the planning commission and he expects to approve the application as an administrative decision.

When the council asked for a rough outline of the college's future, Leary said he hoped the college could eventually move into the Martin Luther King School or build its own classrooms and auditorium on an undeveloped piece of land in Sausalito.

While he said he could not be certain, Leary predicted the enrollment at new college would swell to between 250 and 300 students.

Each of the councilmen at last night's special meeting expressed concern over the possible impact such an expansion could have on city services, but no one concluded the college would present an intolerable burden.

At the suggestion of Councilmen Evert Heynneman, the council agreed to withhold any Carte Blanche approval of the college's future growth plans until the impact of its growing enrollment can be evaluated.

Congress Passes Revenue Sharing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — To the fiscal relief of officials in 50 states and 38,700 towns, townships, cities and counties, both houses of Congress now have passed bills to share about $30 billion in federal revenue with local and state governments over the next five years.

But whether the legislation will live up to its backers' promises and decelerate local and state tax increases remains in doubt.

The billions provided from the federal treasury amount to only a small fraction of what state and local governments spend and their spending in most places still trends upward.

The Senate adopted its bill by a vote of 63 to 20 Tuesday night. House approval of a different version occurred in June.

Now a House-Senate conference committee must meet to approve a compromise version which will get quick ratification from both chambers and be sent to President Nixon, who first broached the idea to Congress in August, 1969.

The Senate bill, reflecting rural strength in that body, is more generous to 33 rural states—at the expense of 17 urban states and the District of Columbia—than the House bill, where city strength is felt.

The likelihood is that the Senate's view will largely prevail in the compromise that finally emerges. Urban state senators complained in vain that the bill was "discriminatory" against their states, which, they said, needed help most.

Both bills provide $29.6 billion over five years. The first year grant is $5.3 billion. Two-thirds would be made available to county and local governments with the rest to be spent by state legislatures.

The Senate bill, however, also provided $1 billion a year for state-run "social services" programs to get off or keep off the welfare rolls people who are past, present or potential welfare recipients. The "social services" money can be spent for a variety of programs, from job counseling to family planning.

The $1 billion actually represents a cutback on a program that had been running at $2 billion a year and—as more states learned to master it—was expected to grow to $4 billion quickly.

Urban states which had been first to take advantage of the "social services" money were again the victims of the $1 billion ceiling. It may be dropped by the conference committee.

Governors, mayors and county commissioners, hard pressed for funds and reluctant to increase taxes, had lobbied hard for revenue sharing. Some pictured it as their only hope of staving off fiscal disaster at the local level.

The bill—keystone of Nixon's "new American revolution" proposal to turn power back to local government—carries no restrictions on how the money can be spent. Critics contended this would lead to irresponsible spending.

Devices Will End Fish Kills

WALLA WALLA, Wash. (UPI) — All dams on the Columbia and Snake River systems of the Northwest will have devices installed to prevent fish kills due to nitrogen supersaturation by 1978, the Army Corps of Engineers said Tuesday.

Traveling screens and a "flip lip" device are designed to help alleviate the problem which has killed thousands of migratory fish during the past several years.

Nitrogen supersaturation is caused by water falling over the spillway of dams into deep pools below.

38,000 Fewer Children In California Schools

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Schools Supt. Wilson Riles says 38,000 fewer children have enrolled for the current fall term in California classrooms and predicts another 1,000 reduction in teachers.

Riles also told a news conference yesterday that 16 schools have begun year-around programs.

He estimated a .8 per cent drop off in school enrollment this fall, for a net decline of 38,000 students, and said the continuing gradual decline should persist until 1978 "when we expect enrollment to level off and gradually increase again."

Kindergarten through the fifth grade will decrease by 54,000 youngsters while the upper seven grades will increase by 16,000 the superintendent of public instruction said. Total enrollment should be 4,386 million.

Population experts at the state Department of Finance generally attribute the decline in school enrollment at the lower grades to the end of the "baby boom" starting in 1963 and to be a parallel drop in net migration to California.

Riles had more bad news for teachers, estimating that their employed numbers will drop by another 1,000 from last year to 190,000. He said an earlier survey indicated there were 5,000 jobless teachers in California.

New Pact For Jet Mechanics

BURLINGAME (UPI)—United Air Lines mechanics across the nation have ratified a new contract creating an improved retirement program, the International Association of Machinists announced Tuesday night.

George J. Robinson, president and general chairman of District Lodge 141, said the new program would provide for increased benefits and would enable mechanics to retire at age 55.

The 20-month contract provided for a $6.20 an hour pay rate retroactive to Jan. 1 with a 40-cent increase next Jan. 1.

The IAM represents about 17,000 UAL mechanics.

Socialist Candidate In TV Time Dispute

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Linda Jenness, presidential candidate of the Socialist Workers Party, is in a battle with the National Broadcasting Co. The network denied her request for equal time to answer a speech by Sen. George McGovern on grounds that at 31 she is too young to be president and therefore is not entitled to equal time.

"NBC is denying the American people their right to hear all the candidates when it denies Linda Jenness her right to equal time," she said Monday when she announced plans to picket the network's New York headquarters.

'Obscene' Answers To Mailings

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A campaign to combat radical ideas on university campuses got a rough reception at Stanford, a public relations man declared Tuesday.

Gregory I. Topper of the Campus Studies Institute told the Rotary Club that mailings were sent to students on 10 campuses and that more than half the returns from Stanford were "obscene scrawls."

"Stanford students had by far the most childish, immature and obscene response," he declared.

For the total mailing, he said 60 per cent of the replies from the campuses "agreed generally" with the institute's message.

The other schools were Columbia, Cornell, California state universities at Fullerton and San Diego, University of California campuses at San Diego and Irvine, the University of San Diego, and Connecticut's Westfield State College.

Theodore B. Loeffler, a San Diego printer, founded the institute three years ago to try to "balance the education being given our young people." Its mailings contain arguments promoting human liberty and capitalism.

Owner Loyal To Her Gardeners

LONDON (AP) — A 70-year-old widow sold her home for 80,000 pounds ($208,000) — and bought it back a couple of weeks later for 86,000 ($223,600) because "I heard the six gardeners might have to go."

Mrs. Dorothy Pierson's mock-Tudor mansion stands in 25 acres near Ipswich. There are landscaped gardens, a tree-lined drive and a swimming pool.

Mrs. Pierson said, "My gardeners worked tremendously hard to make the grounds beautiful. I wouldn't like them to lose their jobs through any action of mine."

The house, with 14 bedrooms and six bathrooms, is too big to live in alone, so Mrs. Pierson plans to build a bungalow for herself in those lovely gardens. She still hopes to sell the house.

McGovern, Nixon Jockey For N.Y.

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Early polls give PresidentNixon a wide lead over Sen. George S. McGovern in New York state, but even the most optimistic Republicans agree the gap will be narrowed considerably by election day.

Aware that the present strong lead cannot be maintained, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, chairman of the President's New York campaign, is acting like Nixon is the underdog. Rockefeller has assembled the same skilled team that won him the governorship four times and has put a price tag of $1 million to $1.5 million on the effort.

McGovern supporters are conducting a vigorous voter registration drive, which includes use of mobile registration units which are signing up thousands of persons, many of them black and young, particularly in New York City.

In addition, a million young people will be allowed to vote in New York for the first time this year. A state law requires they vote at home, or by absentee ballot.

Democrats outregister Republicans by nearly one million in the state, but that is not always evident at the polls, what with Rockefeller in the statehouse, Republicans James L. Buckley and Jacob K. Javits in the U.S. Senate, and both houses of the state legislature are under GOP control.

However, a Republican presidential candidate has not carried New York state since Dwight Eisenhower in 1956. Nixon lost to John F. Kennedy by 371,000 votes in 1960, and four years ago Hubert H. Humphrey carried New York by 384,000 over Nixon.

If the polls are correct, Nixon could reverse the result on Nov. 7. "Certainly at this point every sign indicates a successful campaign, but election day is two months away," State Republican Chairman Charles T. Lanigan said.

"The vote in New York State is closer now than in other northern industrial states, and there is always a normal closing of the gap between opposing candidates as election day approaches.

"I'm urging our workers and our candidates not to be hypnotized by the hustlers who are predicting a Nixon steamroller will carry the entire GOP ticket to victory in New York this year."

As it did nationally, the McGovern campaign got off to a slow start in New York. The smooth organization that brought the South Dakota senator a primary landslide in June somehow fell apart and is just now being put back together.

The campaign is being headed by former New York Mayor Robert F. Wagner, who still has excellent political ties in the Democratic-rich city even though he has been out of city hall seven years. His selection was also seen as a good way to try to heal wounds the young, independent McGovern forces inflicted on old line Democrats in the primary.

The Democrats are concentrating on their normal stronghold in New York city. In some parts of upstate New York, McGovern is as unpopular as was Arthur Goldberg when he was the Democratic nominee for governor against Rockefeller two years ago.

"I did a good job making myself scare when the Goldberg people came to town looking for me in 1970," one Democratic state legislator who represents a heavily Republican upstate district said, "and I plan to do the same thing when the McGovern people come around this year."

But in other parts of upstate, especially around Buffalo and Utica, local Democratic candidates are identifying with McGovern, especially on issues like unemployment.

The McGovern campaign lost ground last week when he failed to get endorsement of the state's 2 million member AFL-CIO. Rockefeller, who succeeded in winning the union's endorsement in 1970, skillfully maneuvered the AFL-CIO convention into taking no stand on the presidential race.

Hearing Slated In Check Fraud

A 29-year-old Marinwood man who allegedly tried to cash a check on a closed account at a Novato market last month has pleaded innocent to a charge of passing a fraudulent check.

A preliminary hearing for David Hennessy is scheduled for next Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Novato police arrested him Aug. 29 at the Cala Market, 1530 Center Road, when he tried to cash a check on an account on which 70 checks totaling $5,400 have been cashed in the Bay Area since the account was closed in May.

Police said Hennessy described himself as a heroin addict with a habit costing $200 a day.

District Decides On Advisory Groups

The Bolinas-Stinson School District last night decided to establish three advisory groups to offar it background information and policy recommendations on matters of finance, curriculum and organization.

According to Supt. Lester M. Horning, members of the advisory committees will soon be sought by a mailing from the district office.

Commission Warns City To Expect Earthquake

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A city commission warned again Tuesday that San Francisco can expect another earthquake and urged enforcement of a law which demands that parapets be strengthened or removed.

Enforcement of the parapet law is "the number one seismic priority because it would save the most laws for the money expended," said the Seismic Investigation and Hazard Survey Advisory Committee.

In 1969 the city passed an ordinance requiring that all parapets, gargoyles, overhangs and other buildingappendages be strengthened or removed so that they would not fall on humans in the event of a quake. Mayor Joseph L. Alioto has so far rejected requests from the Department of Public Works to enforce the law.

His office saidthat federal funds were being sought for the work since "it's a perfect opportunity to use federal emergency employment funds ... to help unemployed engineers and other technical people."

Forgery Charge Hearing On Tap

A preliminary hearing for a 48-year-old Sausalito man charged with three counts of forging prescriptions for dexadrine and doriden has been scheduled for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Clyde Wilson Collings Jr. was arrested Aug. 23 by an investigator of the state Department of Consumer Affairs on a warrant charging he had passed forged prescriptions at the Corner Drugstore in Sausalito on March 17, April 15 and July 21.

The prescriptions bore the name of a Los Angeles doctor who said he never wrote them, the agent said.

Felony Dope Charges Against Two Novatans

Two Novato residents arrested after they allegedly threw a five-gallon bag of water containing goldfish at Novato Police were bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on felony drug charges.

Judge Robert A. Smallman of municipal court ordered Donald Paul Seaman, 37, and Judith Elaine Neil, 28, to appear on Sept. 28.

Seaman is charged with a felony, possessing marijuana for sale, and two misdemeanors, assault on a policeman and having a marijuana smoking device. Miss Neil is charged only with the felony.

They were arrested May 28 by two officers who said Seaman hurled the water at them on the grounds of the Western Country Fair.

During a search, police said, possible marijuana and a list of clients was found. More possible marijuana was found at Seaman's residence, police said.

Three other brothers arrested in the ensuing investigation have denied drug charges and Smallman is scheduled to decide tomorrow whether there is enough evidence to try them and whether their home was legally searched.

The three are, Patrick Gingher, 24, charged with having pot, Michael David Gingher, 21, charged with possessing marijuana for sale, and Kevin John Gingher, 20, charged with possessing narcotics equipment, a misdemeanor.

Canal Approved

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Bakersfield voters yesterday approved by a near 3-1 majority a $17.5 million bond issue to finance a 17-mile canal which will bring California Aqueduct water to the city.

Police Patrol German Airports

BONN (UPI)—Border police armed with machineguns patrolled the nation's airports today, and government sources said security agents had launched an investigation into the backgrounds of an estimated 40,000 Arabs living in West Germany.

An Arab League spokesman said "hundreds of Arabs" already had been expelled from Germany. Federal and state interior ministries said special undercover agents were actively hunting for Arab citizens who had suddenly disappeared from the places they had listed as their legal residences.

The Bundesrat (upper house of parliament) called a special emergency session to debate a government proposal for tightening entrance requirements for citizens of all Arab countries.

Chancellor Willy Brandt met with his cabinet to discuss special security measures against terrorist acts, and Interior Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher called together all 11 state interior ministers for a conference on the same subject.

In Munich, where Arab guerrillas kidnapped and killed 11 members of the Israeli olympic team, a Bavarian state spokesman said security agents today stepped up their hunt for would-be "Arab terrorists."

"The police have undertaken special methods to get at the truth," the spokesman said.

The spokesman said the Federal Office for the Protection of the Constitution, a security organization equivalent to the U. S. Federal Bureau of Investigation, had sent in special agents to assist in the Bavarian crackdown.

"The Arabs have caught wind of our operations and are beginning to hide from us," the spokesman said.

He said a number of Arab residents had already been expelled from the country for various reasons, but he said he did not yet know how many.

Hessen border police said they were investigating an average of 60 to 80 Arabs a day at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main airport. An Egyptair spokesman in Frankfurt said all Arab passengers had to wait at least eight to 10 hours for processing through customs.

Robbery Charge Hearing Slated

Two men charged with holding up the bartender at George's recreation parlor in San Rafael have denied the count and a preliminary hearing is set for next Tuesday.

Edward Alexander Moten, 20, of Hamilton Air Force Base and Jerry Wayne Hurd, 21, of Santa Venetia were arrested Sept. 3 in San Francisco less than half an hour after three men, one armed with a pistol, held up bartender John Goveia and emptied two cash registers and a floor safe.

The two were arrested by San Francisco Police after toll takers at the Golden Gate Bridge, alerted by a police bulletin, reported their car had passed through the toll plaza.

The name of a 17-year-old youth arrested with Moten and Hurd was withheld from the press on orders of Marin Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

$1 Lease Of People's Park Passes

BERKELEY (AP) — Lease of the University of California's People's Park, symbol of campus unrest since the late 1960s, has been approved by the City of Berkeley for a token rent of $1 per year.

Approved 6-1 with two abstentions by the Berkeley City Council last night, the lease now goes to UC regents for further consideration.

It calls for designation of the park as a "user-developed" community park and contains a provision declaring a moratorium on use of the park as a campground.

Dropped from the lease, drafted by Walter Toney, head of the city's parks and recreation department, was a previous provision calling for purchase of the park after seven years for $1.3 million.

The park was the focus of riots in May 1969 in which one person was killed and scores injured and arrested.

Last May 8 a cyclone fence around the park was torn down by protestors demonstrating against President Nixon's decision to mine North Vietnamese harbors.

Sincethen, the park has become a popular spot for tent-pitching young people who have planted vegetables and fruit trees where asphalt was uprooted during this year's disturbances.

Top Court Overturns Ruling On Damages

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Saying "the infant's cry of hurt is as poignant as the most detailed exposition," the state Supreme Court has reversed a 1938 court ruling that babies cannot recover damages for pain and suffering.

The decision yesterday cleared the way for possible payment to Kim Capelouto, one of 14 infants who developed severe diarrhea, vomiting and cramps after coming in contact with a bacterial infection at Kaiser Foundation's Sunset Hospital in Hollywood in 1964.

The unanimous ruling reversed a 1938 state appellate court holding that infants cannot recover damages for pain and suffering.

"The infant's inability to explain the cause of pain or to describe the extent of it does not affect the sting," said Associate Justice Mathew O. Tobriner in the court opinion. "The inarticulate anguish of the infant serves as much a ground for recovery as the adult's most sophisticated description. Indeed, the infant's cry of hurt is as poignant as the most detailed exposition," he said.

A Los Angeles trial court had awarded the Capelouto girl only $1,510 — the amount of her medical expenses — based on the appellate ruling.

The opinion said one child contacted the salmonella bacteria from his mother and it spread to the infants at two maternity wards at the hospital.

"The entire Kaiser maternity unit was temporarily closed during one period of that August as a result of the epidemic," Tobriner wrote.

Former Judge Granted Decree

An intermediate decree toward dissolving the marriage of former municipal court judge Hadden W. Roth and his wife, Shelly Marie, was issued yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

Judge Joseph G. Wilson granted the interlocutory on grounds of irreconcilable differences. Property settlement and support for Mrs. Roth and 10-year-old Elizabeth Roth were worked out privately.

According to the petition for dissolution filed by Roth last October, the couple married July 12, 1959, in Nevada and separated April 12, 1971.

Roth, a former deputy district attorney, was a municipal court judge from 1966 to 1970. He now practices law with the firm of Goldstein, Roth, Kopp and Skinner of San Rafael.

Authorization For Air Service

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — STOL Air Inc. of San Rafael has received interim authorization to provide air passenger service between Santa Rosa and San Francisco.

The permit, good for 90 days, was granted by the state Public Utilities Commission Tuesday to avoid interruption of service to Santa Rosa. Golden West Airlines notified the PUC July 25 that it would discontinue its service to the community.

STOL Air will continue the service with a twin-engine propeller plane on similar schedules and fares.

STOL Air also has applied for a route between San Francisco and Monterey non-stop and San Francisco and Monterey with San Jose as an intermediate stop. This will be subject to a public hearing.

L. C. JOHNSON
Ross Hospital

New Head Of Hospital Is Named

The new administrator of Ross General Hospital is L. C. Johnson, for eight years administrator of the Sun Towers Hospital in El Paso, Texas, it was announced today.

Both hospitals are owned and operated by Hospital Corporation of America, which delayed announcement of the June 26 appointment, a spokesman said, "to give him time to get settled."

Johnson — who for many years served as an ordained Lutheran minister — directed the growth of the Grace Lutheran Hospital from a small 50-bed sanatorium to a modern 200-bed general Sun Towers Hospital.

A graduate of Wartburg College and Seminary, he holds a diploma from the American College of Hospital Administrators. He is a member of the American Hospital Association, Texas Hospital Association, and Federation of American Hospitals.

He and his wife, Mattie, parents of four grown children, have established residence in Greenbrae.

Sentences Given For Smuggling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Three men and a woman have been sentenced to jail in what narcotics agents described as a multi-million-dollar heroin-by-mail smuggling operation.

Superior Court Judge Robert W. Cole Tuesday ordered indeterminate prison terms for Susan Browning, 25, Kenneth Pense, 22, and James Walker, 25, all of Sacramento. He earlier ordered a five-year-to-life sentence for Raymond Hoagland, 23, Carmichael. All pleaded guilty to conspiracy to smuggle heroin.

Deputy District Attorney Christopher Lee said the four were involved in an operation that used eight-cent and air mail postage to mail half-ounce quantities of heroin from Thailand to Sacramento and possibly other areas.

Lee said the investigation by federal, state and local authorities indicated the daily mailings had been going on for more than a year. He said the heroin was pure or nearly pure and valued at $15,000 to $20,000 per letter in street sales.

Over a year's period, he said, this could add up to $5.5 million to $7.3 million in heroin street sales.

Judge Cole told Mrs. Browning, a former registered nurse, that "you ought to know better. You know what this stuff does to people."

Her husband, William, 23, described as a key figure in the operation, supposedly fled the country. He failed to make a court appearance last month while out on bail.

Suspension Ordered In Oakland Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Judge Oliver Carter in U. S. District Court ordered a union Tuesday to suspend its strike against the West Coast computer center in Oakland of Foremost-McKesson, Inc.

The temporary restraining order was issued after company attorneys argued the Office and Professional Employes Union had signed a no-strike contract and had failed to use grievance procedures.

Judge Carter set Sept. 26 as the date for a hearing into whether his order will be made permanent.

A issue is the firing of a black woman, Mrs. Rose Abrams, who the union contends is a victim of sex and racial discrimination.

Mrs. Abrams, a union shop steward, said she was fired after she protested she had been passed over and an inexperienced white man named to a computer operator trainee program. She is a long-term employe of the firm.

The walkout started last Friday.

Airliner Forced Down In Ohio

DAYTON, Ohio (UPI) — An American Airlines 707 with 84 passengers aboard made a forced landing at Wright Patterson Air Force base here early today after part of its landing gear system malfunctioned. Three persons were treated for minor injuries.

The plane was en route from Los Angeles to Chicago and Detroit when Captian Dale Cummings reported the nose landing gear could not be lowered.

Cummings was told he could not make an emergency landing at Detroit because of poor visibility and low ceilings and the flight was diverted to Cincinnati Airport which is located in Florence, Ky.

The plane was diverted to Wright Patterson when Cincinnati Airport officials told Cummings they did not have enough time to foam the runway.

Bitterness Remains From Olympic Games

The Munich Olympic Games have left considerable bitterness.

Bitterest of all, no doubt, are the Israelis, for 11 of their athletes and coaches were murdered. Two of them were slain in their Olympic Village quarters by Arab terrorists. Nine others died in a gun battle between those terrorists and German police. Dispute still rages over the police handling of the affair, and whether the lives of some of the nine might have been saved if it were handled differently.

COMPARED to what the Israelis suffered, the causes for bitterness in the United States are paltry. But they nevertheless may restrict American participation in future Olympics — especially since in the U.S. the costs of sending the team must be raised by public subscription.

The International Olympic Committee's cancellation of the gold medal won in swimming by our own Rick Demont, because it was found that he had been taking a medicine containing ephedrine, may be justifiable. But it scarcely can sit well with a youth who went all-out to win, and who was unaware that the medicine he took was forbidden.

Rick, who set a world record in the 1,500-meter swim (we wonder whether the record will remain on the books) has been put in the same kind of position as was the great Jim Thorpe, all of whose Olympic medals were taken away when it was found that he had played semi-pro baseball for pay. For whatever comfort it is to Rick, we would remind him that Jim Thorpe is still a hero and still chronicled as "the world's greatest athlete" — medals or no medals.

The remarkable, indefensible officiating mixup that gave the basketball championship to Soviet Russia after the game apparently ended with the United States a one-point victor also leaves a bitter taste.

BUT THERE was one other incident of the politics-riddled Olympics in which the United States itself appeared in an unsavory light.

Vince Matthews and Wayne Collett, who won first and second in the 400-meter run, stood chatting on the winners' stand while the "Star Spangled Banner" was played in honor of the United States. Then, as they walked away, they reportedly gave the clenched fist salute.

The U.S. Olympic Committee, which had expelled two runners for giving clenched fist salutes on the stand at the 1968 Games in Mexico City, did not even reprimand Matthews and Collett. It remained for the International Olympic Committee to remind them — and their country —that decorum, respect and patriotism are not dead. The international committee expelled both athletes from the Olympics — for life.

It is indeed a slap in the face for the United States that this action had to be taken by the International Olympic Committee. A nation that countenances disrespect for its own national anthem cannot complain too convincingly about "political" decisions that went against it.

Saving The Gulls

It may come as a surprise to some readers to learn that laws to protect gulls were enacted about 70 years ago. At that time, gulls were almost wiped out on both coasts of the United States. Their eggs were collected from offshore islands and sold commercially as something of a delicacy. San Francisco was one good market for them. And at the same time, feathers were very big in fashion and plume hunting took the lives of thousands of birds, gulls among them.

Conservation isn't really new, but the public is more aware of it today. And, small wonder, since it becomes more apparent that the ultimate endangered species is man himself.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

Does Traffic Get More Attention Than Crime?

By EARL G. WATERS

It would not be fair to jump at conclusions based upon some raw statistics. But figures released by the FBI and other sources certainly give rise to some questions in order regarding the priority of efforts made by the local police.

The statistics at hand relate primarily to California's capital city, but there is reason to believe they generally reflect conditions throughout the state.

Standing out like a sore thumb is the fact that there were 46 homicides in the Sacramento area during the year, 184 forcible rapes, 1,158 robberies, 1,058 aggravated assaults, 12,427 burglaries, 13,074 grand larcenies and 4,692 vehicle thefts.

About the same time these figures were released the Sacramento Safety Council reported that traffic fatalities had dropped from 29 to 21 during the current year.

FROM THESE bare facts it would appear one is safer driving around in a car than walking down the street or in the sanctity of his own home.

The FBI report reflects marked increases nationwide in murders, rapes, robberies and other crimes of violence.

With these facts many citizens are reacting in wonderment at the attention being given to traffic. Spurred on with federal money, Sacramento police handed out nearly 30,000 tickets during the first six months of this year, a 95 per cent increase over last year's activity.

It was this direction of police effort which prompted Sen. Lawrence Walsh, D-Commere, to author his "speed trap" bill. According to Walsh, local police are using the federal money, provided by President Nixon to make the streets safe, to put money into the city cash registers.

"The President wasn't talking about traffic," Walsh said. "He was aiming at the muggings, robberies, rapes nd murders which have made our city streets unsafe."

NOR IS TRAFFIC control the only detraction of the police from all-out efforts to combat serious crime and violence. It may be fancied and, in the absence of a factual study to assess police man-hour distributions, not as diversionary as repetitive news stories make it seem. But, law enforcement appears to be overly concerned with offenses which do not endanger the lives and property of the citizens.

While the peddling of dirty books and the showing of sex movies may be morally offensive, no one can maintain such things are as serious as robbery, rape and murder. The same can be said of offenses relating to homosexuality and prostitution. Yet the police are called upon to exert great effort in the prosecution of these activities. Likewise, social gambling like bingo, which a majority of the populace has indicated they favor legalizing, further occupy the time of the police.

A full scale legislative study to determine the distribution of police effort in the various categories of enforcement would seem to be in order. It may be that a whole new schedule of priorities for law enforcement is needed.

Two Reasons Why Fluoridation Advocated

There are two reasons why we believe that fluoridation of drinking water is superior to providing fluoride to children as a daily dietary supplement.

Requiring parents to provide daily supplements to their children perpetuates the pattern of discrimination in health care against the less educated and less economically fortunate members of our society who are least likely to possess the knowledge, motivation and financial resources required to provide fluoride to their children.

The second measure of concern focuses on the advisability of accustoming children to pill-taking as a means of dealing with a health problem. With all the legitmate concern about drug abuse in our society, we believe that providing fluoride through drinking water is more desirable than requiring children to take a pill a day for the first 12 years of their life.

Accept Conclusions Of Health Professionals

In reading the letters which have been published related to water fluoridation, it troubles me to find there are people who so blithely challenge the authority and integrity of our health professionals. On what basis do they expect me to accept their refutations of the official endorsements of all our health organizations?

When our health or the health of our children is threatened by disease or accident, it is our physicians and dentists to whom we turn. Who more than they should be trusted to make proper evaluations and recommendations concerning public health measures such as fluoridation?

I, for one, have confidence in our medical, dental and other health professionals in this just as I do in other health matters. I believe they are the people who know and care and can be trusted to recommend what is best for me and my community.

As we consider fluoridation for Marin County, I hope we will not be ruled by the fear and negativism of the anti-medical minority. Rather we should be guided by faith in our established health leaders woking within the democratic system.

Defeated Candidate Supports Giacomini

Recently I have received many letters and phone calls from some of my former supporters requesting reaffirmation and amplification of my support for Gary Giacomini for supervisor of the Fourth Distirct.

For the benefit of all the people who supported me in my bid for supervisor, I would like to say that I am supporting Gary because I believe he ran an honest campaign — more important than the difference between liberal and conservative labels.

I also stated, as you know, that I expect our entire campaign committee to do everything it can to help him win. I personally am doing all I can to help him. Of course, I cannot control what all of my supporters will do, but I am confident that after listening to Gary and his clear-cut statement on the issues, his willingness to listen to all points of view, and his sincere desire to be of service to all the people in the Fourth District, that those people who supported me will now support him . . .

Only Israeli-Arab Settlement Can End Acts Of Terrorism

WASHINGTON — It is all to the good that President Nixon and others are pressing for international action to combat the kind of heinous terrorism the Palestinian guerrillas perpetrated at Munich.

Every avenue which has any chance of being useful should be explored.

But it would be wishful to pin hopes on the prospect that any boldly worded resolution by some international body will end this type of cruel and criminal lunacy.

The world is too divided ideologically to get meaningful agreement, and the political terrorists are not going to tremble before any U.N. resolution.

The international community is totally unable to unite to deal with crimes against itself.

ON THE VERY DAY that the Black September group turned the Olympics into a morgue, we had a dismal example of the feeble will of the nations to act together to protect themselves.

The International Civil Aviation Organization was meeting in Washington and it had before it a U.S.-Canadian draft treaty, which had been under study for two years, providing for international sanctions against any country which harbors hijackers or fails to release plane, crew and passengers and either punish or extradite the air terrorists.

It was scuttled in a wave of words. France did not want to offend its Arab allies. Russia didn't want to do anything unless it had a veto over doing anything. The hijacking goes on.

The Palestinian terrorism will go on in the face of such flabby, shortsighted, narrow nationalism.

It will continue until the one thing which the Palestinian terrorists most fear is engendered; that is, to turn the present Egyptian-Israeli truce into an honorable and acceptable Egyptian-Israeli peace.

I QUOTE A MOST revealing statement by an Egyptian who has made a close study of the acts and motives of the Black September organization:

"These extremist guerrillas do not only want to hit hard at Israel and win the release of their comrades in Israeli jails, they also want to halt any moves by Egypt which could lead to a poltical settlement in the Mideast.

"Whenever there is talk of Egyptian leaders thinking of reaching a settlement with Israel, you will find some Palestinians who will do anything to stop it."

Surely the best way — perhaps the only way — to halt the fanatic crimes against innocent people by the Palestianian terrorists is to give them what they don't want: a constructive and early settlement between Israel and the Arab nations.

THIS IS the moment to strike — for peace. Today Israel is militarily secure. It can negotiate from strength. Having expelled the Soviet forces, Egypt has earned a generous peace offer from the Israelis. Both nations will benefit from lifting the pall of tension from their backs.

Peace initiatives to this end are surfacing at a high level in Israel.

The next step is a willingness on Egypt's part to begin serious negotiations.

The time is right. The Soviet Union and the United States do not want strife in the Middle East to bring them into conflict. Each wants to see the tenuous truce turned into a firm peace, but they can't bring it about. Only Egypt and Israel can bring it about. It will be an incalculable boon to both.

ERNEST B. FURGURSON

A Prisoner Of Russ For 13 Years —And The Preaching Of McGovern

LOS ANGELES — On a rainy night in 1956, I interviewed a German who was honeymooning on a coal ship. I was impressed by how clean the vessel was despite its cargo, as it stood alongside a pier in Baltimore Harbor. I remember the man's tale of how he had been captured on the Eastern front in World War II, and spent his years as a Soviet prisoner working in the coal mines at Vorkuta, north of the Arctic Circle.

I was amazed that after that he could have chosen a coal ship for his honeymoon with the sweetheart he had not seen since before the war, no matter how cheap the passenger fare. For he had been a prisoner 13 years — two years from his capture till the end of the war in Europe, and 11 more years till the Russians released him.

IT MAY NOT BE fair that that German came back to mind for the first time in years as I stood listening to George McGovern in Seattle the other night, as he confidently stated his position on the American prisoners in North Vietnam. "I have enough common sense," he said, "to know that the only way we're ever going to bring those men out of their prison cells is to end the bombing and end tha war that keeps them in their cells."

That may be true. But if he based his speeches on history rather than "common sense," any candidate would have to recognize that as a hope rather than a known fact. It is McGovern's style, however, to state hopes as facts, to eliminate grays in favor of blacks and whites, to ascribe to his opponents motives even more evil than they really are. In short, to do what his Methodist father did and he himself almost did for a living: to preach.

It is apparent, from the way hyperbole ebbs and flows in his vocabulary, that he is struggling with it. He indicated that back in the final days of the primary season, when he reminisced about his boyhood. "I used to be terrified as a small child at some of those hellfire sermons by visiting evangelists," he recalled. "I think that gave me a fear of emotionalism, almost a hatred of it. And I remember being terrified at those radio speeches of Hitler's —the demagoguery. I vowed then that if I ever got to a situation where I made a speech, I was not going to try to get people to do something by frightening them and getting them all excited. I would rather reason with them."

COMMENDABLE. Yet within a week or so of decrying demagoguery and emotionalism, he was accusing Mr. Nixon of committing crimes worse than Hitler's by continuing air strikes in Indochina. Before and after that, up through last week, he was declaring that "never again will we commit the young men of this country to die for a corrupt military dictator 10,000 miles from our shores" — as if General Thieu had been in power when we made our commitment in Vietnam, and as if we stayed as a sacrifice to him rather than out of idealistic notions about freedom or cynical assessments of geopolitics.

Taking off from the Nixon campaign slogan of "Four More Years," McGovern maintained here in the West that he did not want four more years of "young GIs, some of them hopelessly hooked on heroin. . .Warmongers. . .Purveyors of racial fears. . ." Neither do you and I, of course, but it stretches fair campaign practice a trifle to blame everything including drought and gypsy moths on the administration in power.

Preachers are not bound by fair campaign practice because they are at war with the devil. Hellfire, brimstone, demagoguery and emotionalism are legitimate weapons in that war. And no doubt it seems nitpicking to critically analyze one candidate's rhetoric while the other is bedfellows with Watergate eavesdroppers and amateur magicians who play now-you-see-it-now-you-don't with bundles of campaign money. Yet it is reasonable to judge a man by his own standards.

MCGOVERN DID well in the primaries because his main message was to the widely celebrated alienated of America — including many to whom the facts are unimportant as long as your emotions are in the right place. Now he is under more or lessserious consideration for the presidency, and his compulsion to overstate still overtakes him even while he is trying to use bread-and-butter terms to the unalienated Democratic coalition of old. Emotion in place of fact scares such people when they are looking for a President rather than an evangelist.

And George McGovern does not need to go beyond the facts. Who needs to exaggerate what happened at the Watergate, or the unemployment and inflation statistics, or the unjust tax loopholes? The unembellished facts are God-sent campaign material as they stand, but it is hard for a man to leave well enough alone when he seems to confuse airplane ramps and television microphones with the pulpits and congregations of his South Dakota youth.

Public Safety Morale Low In Wake Of Salary Rejection

Morale is low among San Rafael's public safety personnel, who claim the city council did not negotiate in good faith on salary and fringe benefits.

The council last week granted safety personnel a 5 per cent pay increase effective Sept. 1, and ordered insurance benefit payments increased by $2 a month.

In ordering the settlement, the council rejected a mediation team's report which urged a 5 per cent salary hike retroactive to July 1 and a $15 monthly benefit increase.

The report— drawn up at the council's request — cost the taxpayers $2,125, and drained the police and firemen associations of an equal amount.

The council in closed session took numerous votes on various pay schemes, ranging from total acceptance of the report to outright rejection. No more than two votes were tallied favoring any one proposal, according to one councilman.

At issue during the closed meeting was "new information" that had recently been received by the city. This, according to Mayor C. Paul Bettini, showed that San Rafael safety personnel ranked eighth in pay and fringe benefits on a list of 18 "benchmark" cities of similar population.

The mediation team's report said San Rafael policemen ranked 16th in total compensation, and firemen ranked 10th. The council did not reveal how it arrived at the new ranking, or from where the new information had come.

Worse, public safety employees were not consulted on the new figures.

THE SAN RAFAEL Planning Department asked the Independent-Journal Monday whether or not the full page of drawings of the Dollar estate development proposal in Saturday's I-J was an advertisement on behalf of developer Thomas E. Schaal. It was not. The spread, which detailed what Schaal claims is allowed on the property, as well as what he has proposed, was rather an attempt to inform readers and spark attendance at last night's planning commission hearing of the plan.

A PACIFIC TELEPHONE and Telegraph Co. official's heated denials last month that San Rafael's pole-climbing Alana MacFarlane had asked for a desk job became quiet affirmations this week.

As reported in the I-J Aug. 19, an official at first confirmed and then denied that Miss MacFarlane — the first female to work as a repairman-installer for Ma Bell - was seeking more down-to-earth work with the company due to coworker ridicule.

Miss MacFarlane is now chief equipmentman for the company's San Rafael office, the official asserted Monday.

His confused position last month was due to the company's use of Miss MacFarlane in a nationwide advertising campaign, which gave Ma Bell a women's lib glow as an equal opportunity employer.

"The Phone Company Wants More Installers Like Alana MacFarlane," the national advertisement said.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Education Innovations Fail To Impress High Schoolers

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

The educational picture during the past decade has been crowded with innovations, each of which, we were assured, would make schools more effective in their job of educating the young.

Many of the new programs and new methods have been designed to make school more pleasurable and interesting to the pupils. Such purpose has been advanced for changes ranging from the "open classroom" in primary grades to the emulsifying of assorted subjects into a single "block" in high school.

A survey by American Institutes for Research, however, indicates high school students don't much like the results.

THE SURVEY was made in 1970, but the resulting report was published only recently by American Institutes for Research (P.O. Box 1113, Palo Alto).

A series of questions matching those used in "Project Talent" in 1960 was asked of 12,722 juniors in 134 high schools across the nation.

Fifty-five per cent of them said they found school uninteresting. This was six per cent more than gave the same answer in the "Project Talent" survey.

This lack of interest was shown also in the students' reports on how much home study they did. Only 41 per cent of the 1970 juniors said they studied 10 hours or more per week, compared to 46 per cent of those surveyed 10 years earlier.

THE "MORE INTERESTING" and "more relevant" approaches also were not much more successful in educating the students — at least not in reading, according to the survey results.

The same reading comprehension test used 10 years earlier was repeated. Average score of the 1970 juniors was 31.2, compared to 30.8 in 1960 — just four-tenths of one point higher.

AIR, however, said this should be adjusted upward because the dropout rate had declined approximately 10 per cent during the decade — meaning, presumably, that more of those whom the educators describe by such euphemisms as "exceptional," "maladjusted" or "culturally deprived" had remained in school to the 11th year. Allowing for this, said AIR, the 1970 average score should be "weighted" upward to 32.8 — a two-point gain.

The 1970 survey used a question not asked in 1960: Were the 11th graders satisfied with the progress they had made in reading, writing and thinking? Less than half of them — 46 per cent — said they were.

THE EMPHASIS on "relevance" in today's curriculum, however, caused a few more of the students to feel that what they learned in school would be valuable to them after graduation. Only 23 per cent said they felt it would be of little value, compared to 28 per cent in 1960.

Along with a decrease in dropouts went some reduction in absenteeism, according to the survey. Of the 1970 juniors, 10.5 per cent reported they had missed 15 or more days of school during the year, down nearly two per cent from the 12.3 per cent who said the same in 1960.

It would be interesting to know whether the students considered they had attended school on days when they were present only for a single class session. If they followed the reporting methods used by California schools in computing average daily attendance for receipt of state funds, they would figure one class counted the same as all day.

The survey did not attempt to measure subject skills, except in reading. But it gives some picture of the students' own regard for the education they receive. Over all, it appears that what they thought of it in 1970 was pretty much what their older brothers and sisters thought of it in 1960 — despite all the highly publicized (and often expensive) innovations.

Old Bomber Is Found In Swamp

SAVANNAH, Ga. (UPI)— Military officials are searching through records to trace the identity of a B24 or B25 bomber found submerged in a swamp, perhaps since World War II.

The plane was barely visible in muck and slime just north of the Savannah River in South Carolina. Army officials said it was possible the plane was buried there for more than 20 years.

A highway survey crew spotted the aircraft two weeks ago, and an Army unit recovered eight 50-caliber machine guns from its skeletal remains.

But they said it would take a major effort to dig up the submerged fuselage, which was made virtually inaccessible from the ground due to waist-high water and mud.

Teens' Radio Program To Premiere

Marin County teen-agers will premiere their own free-wheeling weekly radio broadcast at 3 p.m. tomorrow on station KTIM.

A changing cadre of youth will decide each week on the topics and who'll be interviewed on the one-hour program. Adults and teen-agers will be encouraged to call in during the live broadcasts each Thursday to ask questions or argue a viewpoint, according to station manager Robert W. Dinsmore.

"This will be exclusively theirs," Dinsmore said of the youth broadcast.

"There will be no limitations or guidelines — no holds barred except those imposed by the Federal Communications Commission. This will be an hour once a week for the youth to get into whatever they want to — if they want to get into teen-age sex habits, or politics, or whatever, that's fine."

In contrast with many stations which use "bleepers" and taped delays on incoming calls, the youth program phone lines will be direct to the air, the station official said.

James Looney, executive director of the Marin County YMCA, is helping recruit youth to launch the program. He said yesterday that five or six teen-agers will quiz adults and other teen-age panelists on such topics as student rights in the schools, how students can involve themselves with community volunteer activities, and Marin's recreational facilities.

Brian Perkins, San Rafael High School student, will be producer-coordinator of the first program tomorrow.

"Perhaps I have grandiose visions," Dinsmore said of the new broadcast, "but I hope the show will enable parents and kids to talk to each other over the telephone and on the air when they can't communicate face to face in the home."

He stressed that it probably would be some time before the show settled into any sort of format — "the first few shows probably will be largely exploratory, with the teen-agers deciding to some extent on the air what they'll want to talk about," Dinsmore explained.

The Thursday afternoon broadcasts will be tape recorded and rebroadcast at 11 a.m. each Sunday.

Car Seat Belt Warning System Fails, Research Group Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — The auto-safety research arm of the insurance industry declared yesterday the buzzer-and-light warning on new cars does not stimulate seat-belt usage.

When the government moved last year to delay the effective date of standards requiring a passive passenger-protection system, such as air bags, it required that cars built after last Jan. 1 have a buzzer and light to be activated if the car begins moving before the front seat belts are fastened.

"The buzzer-light system can only be described as a public-health failure," said the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety.

"It is unlikely that it will contribute to a reduction in over-all frequency or severity of injuries."

The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported earlier this year that the new safety belt system raised the retail price of a car $20.25.

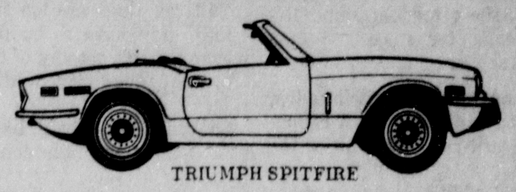
The institute made its study by posting observers at intersections and approach ramps in Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and West Virginia. From observer reports of how many motorists had seat belts fastened and how many didn't, researchers culled out 1972 cars and traced tag numbers through police and manufacturers to determine which cars had the buzzer-lights.

Eighteen per cent of the drivers in the 2,864 buzzer-light cars were using belts. Sixteen per cent were using belts in the 2,795 cars without the warning system.

Cars built after next Jan. 1 will have to be rigged so the engine won't start until the belts are fastened. The so-called "air bag" standard is to become effective on 1976 cars. The Transportation Department has proposed making it a crime after next April to not use safety belts.

The institute, which has urged greater road testing of air-bag cars, termed inadequate the research done by the government in trying to determine whether the buzzer-light system increased seat belt usage.

"Hopefully the armchair approach and inept science illustrated by the buzzer-light case will soon be replaced by competent science," said the institute's report.



TRIUMPH SPITFIRE

The least costly Triumph sports car, the Mark IV Spitfire is also the smallest and nimblest with an amazingly tight 24-foot turning circle. It shares with the GT6 coupe such advanced features as an expensive separate frame of torsion-rigid backbone design, and fully independent rear suspension. A centrally-pivoted transverse leaf spring at the rear and a heavy anti-roll bar at the front give the Mark IV cornering power of a high order. Its finely balanced roadholding is matched by powerful braking-by discs in front and drums of high swept area at the rear.

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance:

SHE'S MAD

Martha Details 'Imprisonment'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Martha Mitchell says she is neither a mental case nor an alcoholic —but she's mad at some Republicans for making people think she is.

In an interview published in today's editions of the Washington Star-News, the wife of the former attorney general described additional details of her alleged "imprisonment" earlier in the summer in California and said she wanted to write a book about the whole affair.

Two Star-News reporters, Clare Crawford and Winzola McLendon, said Mrs. Mitchell was packing to move to New York when they interviewed her in her Watergate apartment Tuesday.

"I want to be sure my side is revealed and that people know I'm not sitting here a mental case or an alcoholic," she said. "I think it is rotten after all I have done for the Republican Party for them to cast aspersions on me."

She said her "imprisonment" —allegedly being kept under watch and told not to use the telephone —"was a most bizarre thing ... worse than the Watergate caper."

The latter was a reference to the break-in and alleged bugging attempt at Democratic national headquarters, also in the Watergate hotel-apartments complex, which occurred when Mitchell was head of President Nixon's re-election committee, and for which the Democrats are blaming the Republicans.

Of the "imprisonment" at Newport Plaza, Calif., Mrs. Mitchell said her bodyguard, Steve King, threw her into a window at one point, cutting one finger and injuring others. She said her ring finger is still swollen.

"All my rings are too small —they may have to be made bigger. I can't get any of them on —not even my wedding ring."

She said she would like to write a book and "I'm going to tell it all."

She disputed a Parade Magazine report which said that King, now security director of the Nixon re-election committee, was not involved in the incident.

Mrs. Mitchell was talking to UPI's Helen Thomas on the phone from Newport Beach last spring when the altercation happened. She told Miss Thomas that she had demanded that Mitchell resign as chairman of President Nixon's reelection committee. The telephone connection was broken after Miss Thomas heard Mrs. Mitchell shout, "You just get away."

Mrs. Mitchell later said that King ripped the telephone out of the wall. She also complained she was a political prisoner.

A few days later Mitchell submitted his resignation as campaign chairman.

The Star-News quoted sources close to Mitchell as vehemently denying rumors and speculation that Mrs. Mitchell had had a nervous breakdown.

CBS Executive Defends Reruns

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The reason you see reruns on your television set at least six months a year is to give you a chance to watch the shows you missed the first time around, according to the president of CBS, Robert Wood.

Wood made that defense of reruns Tuesday in a speech to the Hollywood Radio and Television Society. He criticized recent proposals to limit the amount of time given to reruns to 25 per cent of network prime time per year.

"When the average program is presented for the first time, 131 million people—86 per cent of television's total potential audience—do not see it," Wood said.

McGovern Heartened By Big Midwestern Crowd Turnouts

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern says he thinks he turned the corner in his uphill presidential race during a series of emotion-charged joint appearances with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

McGovern and Kennedy were to campaign in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia today following a 16-hour day Tuesday which produced generally large and enthusiastic crowds for rallies in Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

"I have a feeling that we are turning the corner in these last few days," McGovern told newsmen. "I think we are on the way up."

Several hundred well-wishers and a few hecklers turned out in a post-midnight drizzle to welcome McGovern and Kennedy to a Pittsburgh airport early today. Although the crowd was dwarfed by the gatherings at the earlier rallies, it was the largest airport welcome for the Democratic presidential nominee in more than a week. His aides considered it a good omen.

In each appearance, Kennedy compared McGovern's campaign against President Nixon with the 1960 election in which his brother, John F. Kennedy, defeated Nixon for the presidency.

"The question which is before us in 1972 is very much like the question of 1960," Kennedy said. "It is the choice between the comfortable and the concerned."

Although he battled bad weather all day, McGovern appeared Tuesday before the largest number of people of any single day of his campaign. The biggest crowd was in Chicago where perhaps as many as 40,000 persons jammed the intersection of State and Madison Streets in the heart of the Loop to listen to McGovern, Kennedy and Mayor Richard J. Daley. It rained steadily.

Several estimates of the State and Madison streets crowd were larger, including one by Chicago police estimating the crowd at 100,000 persons.

Another 10,000 to 15,000 saw McGovern at Kennedy Square in Detroit and about 7,000 heard him at the Cleveland Arena.

In Detroit the South Dakota senator did not mention school busing, perhaps the most volatile issue in the city and its suburbs. Some strategists had urged McGovern to soften his position in support of Supreme Court school integration orders, even ones that require pupils to ride a bus. But he neither backed away from earlier statements nor restated them.

As McGovern's motorcade traveled from the airport to downtown Detroit, it passed homes with large signs proclaiming: "This family will not be bused."

In Chicago, McGovern carefully tried to woo Daley and his powerful Cook County machine. The senator referred to Daley as "a great mayor of a great city who has proved that a city can be made to work in modern day America."

Chicanos Hear Shriver Appeal

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI)— Democratic vice presidential candidate Sargent Shriver said today President Nixon has failed to provide the necessary jobs for Mexican-Americans.

Shriver arrived at El Paso early today for a breakfast meeting with local Democratic leaders. He said he would later meet privately with representatives of labor unions, farmers and civic groups during a quick swing through Texas.

Shriver urged Democrats not to bolt the party. In a brief airport speech, he specifically mentioned the defection of former Texas Gov. John B. Connally, who is heading a Democrats for Nixon movement.

In a city with a large Mexican-American population, Shriver said, "President Nixon is a president of promises and has not done anything for Mexican-Americans in finding jobs in this area."

Shriver said the administration of President Lyndon Johnson had done more to create jobs and educational opportunities for Chicanos than any other.

Shriver arrived about two hours later than planned and the airport crowd numbered 400-500 persons, most of them young. Following a 12-hour stay at El Paso, Shriver said he would jet to San Antonio and Houston.

Shriver said he would also meet with strikers from the Farah Manufacturing Co. plant who have been out for 18 weeks protesting bad working conditions. They have already gained the support of Sens. George McGovern and Edward Kennedy.

In a fast-paced campaign tour through the Pacific Northwest Tuesday, Shriver said in Seattle that defense spending could be cut by $10 billion a year through 1976 without hurting national security.

He said the armed services were "very top heavy with top brass," and that the biggest chunk of the defense budget goes for personnel.

He told reporters that George McGovern had never proposed a $1,000 per person welfare plan but that his Democratic rivals convinced the public he did.

The plan was only a study paper that was put in the Congressional Record for discussion purposes, he said.

Cannon Cast

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dyan Cannon is the fifth star to be cast in "The Last of Sheila" topped by Raquel Welch and Richard Benjamin.

Educators Supporting McGovern

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Leaders of the nation's two biggest teacher organizations today endorsed Sen. George S. McGovern for President.

Two officers of the 1.2 million member National Education Association (NEA) joined with representatives of the rival 275,000-member American Federation of Teachers (AFT) to support McGovern, saying President Nixon holds education in contempt.

The NEA itself has not taken a stand on the presidential race but the AFT has as a body already endorsed McGovern.

Lawrence F. O'Brien, campaign chairman for McGovern, attended the session and thanked them for their help.

David Selden, president of AFT, said the action "was forced by Richard M. Nixon himself."

"No president in the history of this republc has demonstrated more contempt for the public educational system than President Nixon," Selden said.

The groups attacked him for vetoing three major educational appropriation bills and a child care bill.

They praised McGovern for his proposals to increase federal funding to schools by one-third, supporting teachers' right to free collective bargaining and supporting liberal child care and school lunch programs.

LOVE THAT CLOVER!

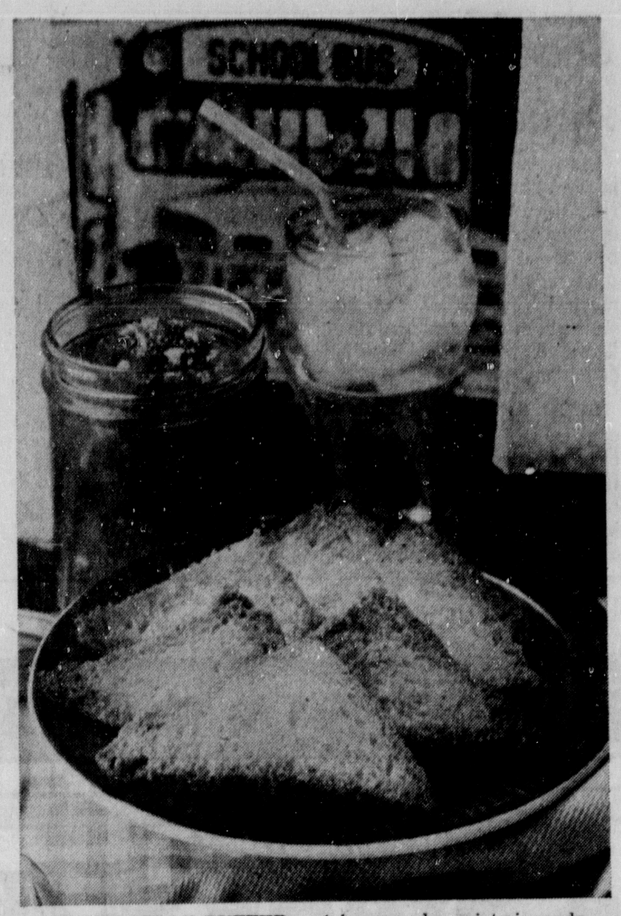
Feeding The After School Crowd

When the after-school crowd swoops down on the kitchen, it's best to be prepared. They will be eating dinner in a few hours so they don't need a lot. . . just enough to satisfy.

Why not toast with homemade nutty apple butter and a cool glass of apple juice? Apple butter is merely apple sauce cooked with sugar and spices for a couple of hours until the sugar carmelizes and the flavors blend. For a new twist, add chopped nuts. Somehow this tastes better when made at home starting with canned apple sauce.

Shown with the apple butter is a special recipe for oven toast. It is well-known in gourmet circles, but it's too good and too simple to save just for special occasions. Generously buttered bread slices (from the firm type of loaf) are baked in a hot oven until crisp and brown. They are just as good cold or served the next day as they are straight from the oven.

A hearty yet not too filling snack for any time of day.



NUTTY APPLE BUTTER — A homemade variety is made by cooking applesauce with sugar, butter and spices until thick and dark. Makes a perfect after-school snack when spread on toast and served with chilled apple juice.

NUTTY APPLE BUTTER

4 cups canned apple sauce
1½ cups firmly packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon cloves
2 tablespoons butter
½ cup chopped nuts

In a saucepan, combine apple sauce, sugar, spices and butter. Bring to a boil and simmer uncovered over low heat for two hours or until thick and dark in color. Cool. Stir in nuts. Makes three cups. Serve with oven toast.

OVEN TOAST

1 loaf firm-type white bread
¼ pound butter, melted

If desired, trim crusts from bread; cut slices in half. Pour half the melted butter into shallow baking pan or jelly roll pan. Place bread slices in pan and brush with remaining butter. Bake in 450-degree oven for 15 minutes or until golden brown.

CUPCAKE FANTASY

Split store-bought cupcakes from side to side. Fill with ice cream. Replace top and spoon on canned apple sauce heated with a little chunk-style peanut butter.

APPLE SAUCED-GINGERBREAD

Hot and fragrant gingerbread topped with hot and fragrant canned apple sauce hits the spot on a brisk fall afternoon.

APPLE SAUCE BOWL

A bowl of canned apple sauce mixed with raisins and chopped nuts makes a nutritious after-school snack, without spoiling appetities for the evening meal.

TOASTED APPLE ENGLISH

Hot apple sauce with a big pat of butter melted down through it makes a tangy spread for toasted English muffins or toast.

APPLE SAUCE-CRANBERRY TOPPING

Beat canned apple sauce into cranberry jelly and use as a topping for slices of pound cake or as a filling for sponge cupcakes.

APPLE SAUCE A LA MODE

Just top chilled canned apple sauce with ice cream and shake a little cinnamon over all.

SALMON AND EGGS — Here are two of today's best complete protein buys, teamed upflavorfully in quick and easy dishes.

Fish And Eggs: Good-Tasting Way To Balance The Budget

The importance of including protein in the family diet has been firmly established in our minds, but protein foods are among the worst offenders in the present inflated prices. The challenge seems almost insurmountable, but not impossible.

Fish and eggs are the answer to balancing the budget, and canned salmon is one of the best seafoods and one of the most nutritious, delicious and attractive. In addition to its protein content, it is rich in vitamins and minerals, especially calcium, and the fats in salmon are unsaturated.

According to a number of food authorities, unsaturated fats such as fish oils not only do not contribute to the hardening of the arteries as do many animal fats but help to prevent this condition. Canned salmon also is an excellent candidate for low calorie diets, since four ounces, solids and liquids combined, contain only 150 to 200 calories, depending on the variety.

The following recipes combine eggs and salmon in flavorful dishes which give the best food value.

CREAMED EGGS IN SALMON CRUST

1 pound can salmon
1 slice white bread, crumbed
1 egg
10¾ ounce can mushroom soup
¼ cup light cream
4 ounce can button mushrooms, drained
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
6 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
Parsley for garnish

Drain and reserve liquid from can of salmon. Flake salmon and combine with bread crumbs and egg. Mix well. Press mixture into bottom and on sides of an eight-inch pie plate.

Combine soup, cream, reserved salmon liquid, mushrooms, Worcestershire sauce and heat over simmering water.

Bake the salmon "crust" in a preheated 350-degree oven for 15 minutes. Reserve a few egg slices for garnish and add remaining eggs to the hot mushroom sauce.

Remove pie from oven, pour hot creamed eggs and mushrooms into it, and garnish with reserved egg slices and parsley. Serves four.

SUNDAY SALMON

Drain one-pound can salmon. Flake salmon. In skillet heat two tablespoons butter. Add salmon and cook, stirring, for one minute. Pour three beaten eggs over salmon and cook, stirring, until eggs are set to taste. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve on hot buttered toast or English muffins. Serves four.

SALMON BREAKFAST CAKES

In mixing bowl combine one-pound can salmon with liquid, two eggs and two tablespoons evaporated milk or cream. Beat in as much leftover mashed potatoes as the liquid will absorb and season to taste with salt and coarsely ground pepper. Shape into 12 flat cakes. Dip cakes in mixture of two eggs beaten with two tablespoons cold water. Coat cakes with bread crumbs or corn meal and saute in bacon drippings or butter until nicely browned on both sides. Serves six.

Mexican Independence Day Twin Surprise

"Pinata double dip" is full of surprises for Mexican Independence Day on Saturday. Turn on your fiesta guests with a double surprise: this palatable "pinata" doubles as a spicy dip for tostados or as a saucy topping for your favorite seasoned taco meat.

Developed by home conomists at Rosarita Mexican foods, the double dip can be prepared quickly and served warm in crock serving bowl, or warmed in a chafing dish.

PINATA DOUBLE DIP

1 can (16 oz.) refried beans
1 cup canned tomatoes, drained
½ can (4 oz.) diced green hot chilies
½ lb. grated cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
¼ teaspoon onion powder
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon garlic powder

In a skillet, mix all ingredients together well. Heat over low heat until cheese melts, stirring occasionally. Transfer to preheated serving bowl or food warmer.

THIS FESTIVE "pinata double dip" has double identity: serve as dip for tostados or as saucy topping for taco meat. The dip-sauce is rich with Mexican 'staples," such as refried beans, chili, cheese and spices.

How To Stretch The Retirement Funds

When retirement age is reached it's just as important to eat nutritionally well balanced meals as ever. And though cooking for one or two is always a challenge, it becomes more so if retirement funds must be stretched and appetites sometimes decrease.

One problem is a shortage of recipes that cater to one or two. Today's recipes were specially developed for small families and those who eat alone: Triple Meat Loaf and Toasted Corn Bread Rounds.

The ground beef mixture for the loaves is mildly seasoned, and quick or old fashioned oats lock in natural juices, making the meat moist, flavorful and especially tender. The meat is shaped into three little loaves — one to cook now and two to freeze for later; each loaf makes two servings.

TRIPLE MEAT LOAF

Makes three small meat loves

1½ lb. ground beef
⅔ cup quick or old fashioned oats, uncooked
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 egg, beaten
One 4-oz. can mushroom stems and pieces, drained (optional)
½ cup tomato juice

Heat oven to moderate (350 degrees Fahrenheit). Combine all ingredients thoroughly. Divide the mixture into three equal parts: Shape each part to form a meat loaf about one and a half inches high and about six inches long. Tightly wrap two loaves in freezer wrap and freeze for future use. Bake remaining loaf in preheated oven (350 degrees) about 40 minutes.

Note: Thaw frozen meat loaf before baking. Bake as directed above.

CORN BREAD ROUNDS

Makes 8 slices

1¼ cups enriched yellow corn meal
¾ cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ cup sugar (optional)
¾ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons shortening, soft

Heat oven to hot (400 degrees Fahrenheit). For corn bread, sift together dry ingredients into bowl. Add egg, milk and shortening.

Beat with rotary beater until smooth, about one minute. Do not overbeat. Bake in well greased empty one-pound, 13-ounce round can in preheated oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) 40 to 45 minutes. Remove from oven and let stand two to three minutes; loosen with spatula and remove from can. Cool thoroughly.

Cut into eight slices. Wrap and freeze. Remove slices as needed and toast in toaster or broiler. Serve with butter or margarine.

Let Tongue Stand

When you've cooked a smoked beef tongue to be eaten cold you can let it stand in the cooking water for several hours. Then drain the tongue and refrigerate it.

Beer Deviled Crab Can Be Appetizer For Any Meal

Crabs have been a delicacy prized by man for many centuries, since they could be found in abundance along the coastal regions.

The addition of beer complements the robust flavor of this shellfish, making this beer deviled crab an appealing appetizer for any meal.

BEER DEVILED CRAB: ¾ cup beer, 1 cup stale bread crumbs, 1 tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. salt, two 6½ oz. cans king crab (cartilage removed and flaked), ⅓ cup melted butter, 1 egg well beaten, ¾ cup cracker crumbs.

Pour beer over stale bread crumbs. Let stand for 5 minutes and mix until thoroughly blended. Add mustard, salt, crab meat, paprika, egg and 3 tablespoons of melted butter. Blend ingredients together and spoon mixture into individual ramekins.

Mix remaining melted butter with the cracker crumbs and sprinkle over crab mixture. Bake in a preheated oven at 375 degrees for approximately 30 minutes.

Mature Wine Before Drinking

If you have been ordering California Cabernet Sauvignon wine in restaurants or buying it for immediate consumption at home, you may or may not have tasted this wine fully matured, says Malcolm Hebert, writing in Vintage magazine.

Top men in several Northern California wineries agree. The supply is slim, they say, and the demand growing faster than vineyards can be planted.

The result is that purchasers are drinking the wine too soon, rather than aging it in the bottle for many years. Its vintner can advise on how long each Cabernet needs to mature.

Homemade Toys Make A Comeback

By EVELYN RADCLIFFE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

LOS ALTOS — Ask any adult what toys of his childhood he remembers best and he'll most likely say those he made himself. After the bicycles, of course.

Stored away in the toy chests of many of our pasts are the homemade trains, the little cars made of matchboxes with button wheels and toothpick axles, the rag dolls, and the multitude of things we made from spools when the thread was gone.

Many of the toys on today's market make a strong argument for a return to such self-fulfilling, wholesome activities as an antidote to deleterious boredom.

Young mothers in a Los Altos conservation group have been steering their children to the kitchen cabinet and tool drawer instead of the shopping center for toys. They have designed a wide selection of toys made completely of recycled household items. Together with their children the women have devised playthings that have provided hours of constructive fun.

LISTED BELOW are a few of their toy suggestions and the directions for making them:

—One of the most toy-prone household items is the plastic bleach bottle. Beach pails can be made by cutting off the top attaching a handle made of yarn or ribbon. The top portion with the cap off can be used as a funnel. With the cap on, it's a good sand or water scoop. The pieces can be painted by children with lead-free paint or trimmed with colored cellulose tape.

—A ball game for two can be made by cutting two plastic bleach bottles into scoops as follows: With bottle lying on its side, handle up and to the right, cut down from the middle of the bottle about halfway through, then tapper out to the bottom end to the left, so the scoop is a wide one. Discard the cut-out. Now make another one the same way. Using a yarn ball about the size of a tennis ball, players toss to each other and try to catch the ball in the scoops.

—For a play-alone version, take another bottle and cut the bottom from it near the end. Remove the cap and put a string or rubber band three or more feet long through the bottle from the bottom through the top. Secure the string or band by screwing the cap back on. Attach a small rubber or plastic ball to the other end of string. The object is to swing the ball on the string and catch it with, or let it fall into, the bottle's open bottom end. Children learn coordination and won't have to chase the ball in this game.

—A toy to amuse toddler is a caterpillar made from egg cartons. Cut between egg cups lengthwise into single row strips. Invert, cup side down. Add more sections if desired by securing with pipe cleaners. At the head attach two pipe cleaners for "feelers," add a string to the front and the toddler has a safe, recycled toy.

—Take an old shoe box, cut out inch-wide strips on sides to make a cage for stuffed lions, etc.

OLDER CHILDREN can make attractive gifts from empty oatmeal cartons. Cover the outside with glued-on fabric, or fancy paper. Form the word "knitting" in yarn across the front. Add braided yarn handles and the latest knitting project will have a carrying case.

New Home Treatment For Teeth

NEW YORK — A do-it-yourself dental treatment recommended by 91 per cent of dentists in the United States is eliminating or reducing pain in thousands of patients with a condition known as dental hypersensitivity, according to a national survey.

The home treatment, which is recommended to individuals whose teeth are overly-sensitive to hot, cold or sweet foods or drink, or other stimuli which are responsible for varying degrees of pain and discomfort is simple toothbrushing — with a special toothpaste.

The dentifrice has a formula, which includes strontium chloride and desensitizes teeth. It should be noted, Dr. Harry Skurnik of Montreal, Canada writes in The Journal of Periodontology, that this is a harmless strontium, not to be confused with the radioactive isotope occurring in "fallout". Both chemically and pharmacologically, strontium resembles calcium in behavior, he explains.

"It acts as a useful adjuvant to calcium in remineralizing the human skeleton." he said.

Strontium chloride has been found to make teeth hard and smooth.

Ninety-three per cent of Dr. Skurnik's patients were helped by the dentifrice. According to Dr. Skurnik and other researchers reporting in dental journals, pain relief is obtained in most patients by the end of two weeks.

The dental researchers who developed the therapeutic toothpaste added a pleasant flavoring to its formulation.

Ida Staggers—World's Oldest, Most Experienced Stewardess

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI)—When the mandatory retirement age of 60 took Ida Staggers out of the air as hostess, she promptly got airborne again on another mission for her employer.

Miss Staggers, billed as the oldest and most experienced stewardess in the airlines industry, retired officially June 1. She immediately set out to speak to other former stewardesses who'd worked for her employer, Trans World Airlines. The women have an organization called the "Clipped Wings" and Miss Staggers said to date she's visited 26 U.S. chapters.

"It's amazing what these women are doing," she said in an interview. "Almost every chapter has some charity, some volunteer project it's working with. But I guess it's only natural the girls would be active. To begin with, to become a hostess you have to have a spread of vision."

MISS STAGGERS said she will tell her story to college and other groups, talking up the airlines industry as a profession.

"I've loved every darned minute of it," said Miss Staggers of her hostess years, which began in July, 1936. In those 36 years, the woman from Hill City, Kan. (a farm community 120 miles north of Dodge City), has flown just about everywhere in the world.

She's never kept a log but the company has — some 29,000 hours in the air, 10 million miles of flying.

Her career almost spans the growth of the air age, from the 14-passenger DC2s on which she first crewed to the jumbo jet 747s with their 300-plus passenger capacity.

She's gone from propeller-driven, unpressurized craft to planes that soar 39,000 feet above the earth and travel at such speeds that nature's biological clock doesn't always adjust and jet lag is a familiar passenger complaint.

SHE'S GONE from the almost military uniform that used to mark the stewardess to mod clothes—"I never dreamed that I who once wore my skirts almost down the ankles would one day be working in hot pants," she said.

One day, when she finishes some special projects for the line, she plans to "sit down and visit" some of the places she's flown over, in and out of. "I want to do South Africa, Australia, New Zealand..." she said. "I can go out to JFK (Kennedy Airport in New York) anytime and go around the world free."

Free, anyway, on her lifetime pass on global TWA. And she can fly other carriers at reduced rates.

MISS STAGGERS' flying career began after she'd worked for two years as a private duty nurse in Kansas City. She had trained at St. Luke's Hospital in Kansas City.

A friend, who was a secretary to a TWA executive, told her the airline was recruiting stewardesses. Miss Staggers, as a registered nurse, would qualify; in those early flying days, only RNs were hired.

She also qualified in size—five fect three inches. "In those days of little planes, they hired small girls," she recalled. Now when cabins are the size of auditoriums, the airlines will hire women or men up to six feet two inches for the job.

Only two developments in the flying industry fret Miss Staggers.

ONE IS the fact that passenger loads now are so large it is difficult to offer the personal attention that was possible when one hostess flew with 14 in the cabin.

"But to be good in any job you can't be blase," she said. "The girls will have to work at putting themselves there, thinking in terms of the passenger as an individual."

The other is the hijacking danger. "It is dreadful," she said, "that the industry has come to surveillance. But it is necessary for the safety of all passengers...and safety is the airlines' responsibility.

"I fear this will be with us forever and hope that air travelers will see that surveillance is necessary...that it will become as routine to them as going through customs."

She was reminded, she said, of a veteran pilot who wistfully asked her one day, "Ida, remember when all we had to worry about was flying the airplane?"

Kitchen Emerges From Dark Ages

A kitchen of the dark ages conjures up visions of primitive man huddled around a smokey fire deep in a cave. However, considering recent improvements in kitchen lighting, it has only been the past five years since homemakers began to energe from the kitchen dark ages.

One of the most significant changes in kitchens during the past five years has been the dramatic 60 per cent increase in lighting levels. Homeowners remodeling their kitchens, and families building new homes, are insisting that contractors install more kitchen lighting. The added installations are predominantly soft lighting in flush mounted ceiling fixtures.

Although lighting has taken on increasing importance in remodeling, one of the principle reasons families remodel is to upgrade their kitchen with new time-and-labor-saving appliances in today's bright and cheerful colors.

HELEN HELP US!

You Won't Be Marked Forever If You Go To A Hospital

DEAR READERS:

Each day I receive letters which say in many ways: "I feel so lost — is it normal to be this depressed?" Since the Thomas Eagleton fiasco, such questions have increased, with an added worry, "Will I be marked forever if I go to a hospital for treatment?" The answer is "No!!" We're not in the dark ages. Polls indicated the American people backed Eagleton three to one, remember?

The National Association for Mental Health has an excellent bulletin on "Depression," which I'd like to share with you:

Depression is an emotional state of dejection and sadness, ranging from mild discouragement and downheartedness to feelings of utter hopelessness and despair.

Mild depression is characterized by unhappiness, pessimism and discouragement. One suffering from this often feels inadequate, loses interest in the social environment. Such depression is normal, a condition of existence.

Mild depression frequently progresses to a MODERATE stage in which the same characteristics are exhibited in such a degree that it will interfere with social functioning. Conversation is difficult. The inability to think, feelings of unreality and bewilderment and various physical disturbances are also common complaints.

When the degree of depression becomes severe, there are marked changes in behavior, manifested in a decreased interest in everything. Initiative is lost, there is a preoccupation with guilt and unworthiness. Suicidal thoughts come.

Depression is not necessarily related to mental illness. It is one of the most widespread emotions occurring in normal life — usually traceable to loneliness, social or business setbacks or a loss of perspective due to fatigue or stress. Such depressions are generally transient, either subsiding spontaneously or as a result of short-term therapy.

Depression, however, may be an illness . . . A sense of guilt, sin and remorse are more common in this form than in the externally induced depressions.

There are three main treatments for depression: 1. psychotherapy, 2. Drugs, and 3. electroshock therapy.

Psychotherapy is useful for treating mild cases of depression . . . "talking through" the problem with a neutral figure will help the patient regain some self-esteem and self-understanding.

Drugs (anti-depressants and tranquilizers) are also used for treatment of depression. Although use is widespread, their effectiveness may vary. Drugs are easily administered on an out-patient basis.

Most depressed persons requiring treatment do not require constant supervision and can remain at home. The exceptions are those patients who are extremely suicidal and those being treated by electroshock therapy. Used for moderate and severe depressions, electroshock therapy is effective (about 90 per cent). The treatment is safe and a short course (a matter of days or a month) of treatments produces dramatic improvements.

The assumption of normal activities by countless thousands of people who have been successfully treated for depression is compelling evidence that the existence of an episode of depression in a person's medical history should be considered in the same manner as a wide range of other successfully treated illnesses. — NATIONAL ASSOCIATION FOR MENTAL HEALTH

Traditional Methods Coming Under Fire

By ARTHUR E. ROWSE

WASHINGTON — The traditional method which salesmen use to compare life insurance costs is coming under increasing fire from state insurance departments.

Under the so-called traditional method, salesmen add up premium payments over a 20-year period, then deduct expected "dividends" and cash values to determine what they say is the net cost.

In some cases, when the deducations are more than the payments, it appears that the insurance has not cost the policyholder anything. This is the method which leads Paul Harvey and others to talk about "money-back" insurance plans.

But there is a growing group of critics who say such a method of determining costs is deceptive because it does not include such factors as interest, policy lapse rates and mortality experience per company. They say true insurance costs must include these factors.

THE PRIMARY critics have been Joseph Belth, a professor at Indiana University, and Herbert Denenberg, a former professor at the Wharton School of Business, who is now insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania.

Spurred by the questions raised by Belth and Denenberg several years ago, the life insurance industry set up a committee of top officials to look into the matter. They concluded that the traditional method was indeed inadequate for determining the true cost of life insurance.

But they could not agree on a simple substitute.

Meanwhile, a system of including interest costs has been devised. It is called the "interest-adjusted" method. It aims to show the amount of interest that is lost to a policyholder who puts his money into insurance rather than, say, a savings account at 4 per cent interest.

If a bank kept a depositor's money for 20 years and then boasted of giving the "money back," it would be cheating the depositor out of the interest earned over that time.

The same is true of insurance that is sold as both income protection and an investment. (So-called "term" insurance does not include an investment feature and is therefore not involved in the dispute.)

WHEN INTEREST costs are included in 20-year projections, insurance begins to appear more expensive than it does under the simplistic "net-cost" system. For this reason, life insurance companies have been reluctant to adopt the "interest-adjusted" method.

In both Pennyslvania and Wisconsin, however, the state insurance commissioners have begun to apply pressure on the industry to do so. Both states have proposed that the "interest-adjusted method" be required in comparisons of life insurance costs. Texas is also considering such a requirement.

Helping to break the ice has been a recent publication of Denenberg's office, "A Shopper's Guide to Life Insurance." In it, he compared the actual costs of leading company policies. More than 250,000 people asked for free copies.

Denenberg says he has encountered a surprising number of insurance salesmen who do not understand the role of interest in insurance costs. But most salesmen are now aware of the controversy and are ready to discuss it with policyholders or prospective customers.

The least a person can do to protect himself is to have his agent explain the interest factor and use it in any price comparisons.

Trick Or Treat

Trick or treat may have been invented by the Irish. Irish farmers in groups were accustomed to go from house to house soliciting food for village Halloween festivities in the name of the ancient god of Irish clergy, Muck Olla. Those who gave cheerfully were promised prosperity; stingy people were threatened. Trick or treat celebrations in America are a result of Irish immigration here.

Just Lucky To Have A Good Baby

A word to new mothers: Does your baby seldom ever cry, eat regularly as clockwork, sleep like a top and when awake, plays beautifully? You think you must be doing a really terrific job as a mother, right?

What is more likely, reports the Health Insurance Institute, is that you're just lucky in having a "good" baby, according to Dr. Arhold J. Sameroff. He is a University of Rochester psychologist who says that infants have individuality at birth.

Dr. Sameroff, whose research into newborns' personalities and behavior is supported by a number of grants from government health agencies, does have comforting words, however, for the mother of the "difficult" baby — the kind many of us seem to know — who cries a lot, won't eat regularly and is extremely active.

"SHE SHOULD not worry that she is not doing a good job of 'mothering'," he told the Institute. "There are some babies who are probably 'just born this way'."

The psychologist, whose laboratory is adjacent to the nursery at the University's Strong Memorial Hospital, measures babies' "temperaments" — with permission from the mothers — by observing their activity, excitability, sleeping and eating behavior. He is trying to find out why one baby's temperament akes it "difficult" and another one "perfect."

As a result of his research, Dr. Sameroff thinks that prenatal influences may have something to do with a baby's temperament. "Anxious and tense mothers," he told the Institute, "usually have a more difficult labor and delivery" and this fact, he suggests, could be an influence in the baby's hyperactivity.

SOME OF the parental tensions at delivery time — at least the financial ones — may be reduced, points out the Institute — through health insurance. Hospital and medical costs — a source of some anxiety — can be trimmed considerably. Private health coverage or a group plan where the father or mother works will pay $150 to $350 or more toward normal medical expenses.

Vows Exchanged In San Anselmo Church

The First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo was the setting for the wedding of Linda Swift and Paul Stefani of Novato on Sept. 2.

Linda, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Swift Jr. of San Anselmo, chose her sister, Mrs. Jerome Akey of Tucson, Ariz., as her matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Gino Stefani of Walnut Creek and Sharon Stout of San Rafael.

Gino Stefani was best man for his brother and ushers were Robert Guilfi of Novato and Kenneth MacKay of San Rafael. A reception was held at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross.

The bride was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended College of Marin. She is employed with Dr. Marshall Taylor in Greenbrae. She is also the sister of Edward Swift of San Anselmo and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank Swift and Mrs. Ruth Thompson of Fairfax.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Angelina Bessac of Santa Barbara and Francesco Stefani of San Francisco. He is also the brother of Michael Stefani of Los Angeles. Paul was graudated from Sir Francis Drake High School and attended Healds College in San Francisco after serving in the Army. He is employed with the Marin County Sheriff's Department in San Rafael.

Competition — This Woman Likes It

BRANTFORD, Canada (AP) — When Ruth Bartlett first started buying cattle, she says her male competition minded.

"They used to give me a rough time, but not any more.

"They would make wisecracks about some of the calves I bought. Sometimes they would run me up in the bidding and try to leave me stuck with too high a price. That doesn't happen too much now."

Mrs. Bartlett is believed to be the only woman cattle order buyer in Canada. She started 11 years ago, buying for the farm she and her husband Ray have at Hagersville.

"I had been buying some alves for ourselves, when one of the buyers for Monarch suggested I buy for them. I've been buying ever since."

Order buying involves knowing what her customers want. One firm may like lean calves, another may want a little more finish or a heavier weight.

A cattle buyer must be able to appraise the weight of a calf when it walks into the ring. When she bids 50 cents a pound for a veal calf that weighs 240 pounds, that's $120 of someone else's money she is spending. She may buy 60 or 70 calves a day, and a cent a pound can affect a packer's profit or loss.

Mrs. Bartlett has become the biggest buyer at local auction centers, and she says that brings its own problems.

Instructions For Rug Making

To make rug, cut a piece of unbleached muslin 48 inches x 72 inches, piecing it if necessary. Draw lines on muslin, dividing it into six-inch squares, using diagram shown.

Suggested colors: 1—bright green; 2—burgundy; 3—red; 4—chartreuse; 5—shocking pink; 6—orange; 7—gold; shaded areas—turquoise; unmarked sections—background of black o navy.

Cut piece of background fabric 52 inches x 76 inches, to allow for a two-inch margin all around. With chalk, draw a line marking off the margin and draw squares to correspond with those on unbleached muslin. Starting at center of design, cut out one or two sections of muslin for pattern pieces. Work from center to edges, so there will be the least bulk under the machine. Following colors on diagram, cut fabric from these patterns and baste in position on background. With matching thread and sewing machine set at wide zig-zag stitch, stitch each piece to background, covering raw edges with the stitching. If pieces overlap slightly, only the upper layer needs to be stitched in plae. Continue util design has been completed.

Place rug, wrong side up, on a flat surface. Pin piece of burlap 48 inches x 72 inches to wrong side of rug, two inches from edges, and tack to rug underneath the design. Fold edges of rug over burlap, mitering corners and cutting away extra bulk underneath. Pin firmly in place on burlap. Finish edges of rug with seven yards of iron-on rug binding, covering rw edges of background fabric and fastening them to burlap.

TIME FOR A FACE LIFT?

Cosmetic Surgery It's Out Of Hiding

NEW YORK (UPI)—When you would just as soon not look at your face in the mirror in the morning, the time may be right to consider a face lifting, to try cosmetic surgery which finally has come out of hiding.

Two doctors whose specialty is plastic surgery helped to provide information on what it can and cannot do during a recent seminar for editors in New York.

The two, referring to the session as an "educational mission," said surgery can do much to make the aging face look younger. But there is a limit to how much. As Dr. Victor Royce Syracuse put it, "Surgery can make you look five to 10 years younger. But once the clock is turned back, the aging process starts again."

The other doctor was Ralph L. Dicker and the two are founders of the New York Facial and Reconstructive Surgery Group.

Both surgeons are lecturers also at international congresses of facial plastic surgery and have lectured and shown their films of cosmetic surgery techniques globally.

At the seminar, they used slides to show the aging process of a woman starting at age 35. At that age, she had the start of crows' feet, a line forming from nose to mouth, suggestions of lines in her forehead.

At 45, the lines were deeper in the forehead, the crows' feet more pronounced, the neck wrinkles beginning to show, and the start of a double chin.

At 50, the lines were deeper, jowls had begun to form and muscles of the face beginning to "relax."

At 55, "everything seems to go down," as one of the surgeons said. "It's the law of gravity...double chin, neck wattle, crepey skin, nose drooping...baggy lines around the eyes."

At this point, the doctors explained the way they'd lift such a face. In most cases, the anaesthesia would be local—novocaine and maybe adrenalin to help prevent bleeding.

A scalpel would be used around the hairline, under the ears and into the scalp. The hairline would have been shaved so when the surgery healed, the incision would not show. In effect then, the doctors would pick up fallen muscles, remove excess skin, close the incision with tiny sutures so there would be no major scarring.

The operation itself would take three to four hours, they said. Recuperation would be 10 days to two weeks.

The doctors said that eye surgery after a face lift was almost always necessary to take the marks of the years off the whole face. "After a face lift you're inevitably drawn to the eyes," said Dr. Syracuse. "Otherwise, it'd be like getting some new furnitureand leaving some of the old."

Cost for the face lift depends on the area and the skill of the surgeon, they said. But it averages from $1,800 to $2,500.

What about the life of a face lift? "It'll last as long as you do," said Dr. Syracuse. And there's no reason the process can't be repeated.

The surgeons touched briefly on dermabrasion to remove lines, freezing the skin and using abrasives to penetrate the skin layers. About then, I decided I could get by another five years with a nightly slather of cold cream.

I didn't have the $1,800 to $2,500 anyway.

A Bold Challenge To New York Fashion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bold California apparel manufacturers are throwing a growing challenge at the venerable New York garment industry.

Emphasizing colorful, innovative styles, California firms boosted their total sales from $848 million in 1965 to $1.22 billion in 1971 and to an estimated $1.4 billion in 1972.

While remaining a distant second to New York in sales, the California industry's growth in the last three years has been at twice the rate for the nation as a whole, United California Bank reports.

New York apparel manufacturers' sales totaled $6.76 billion in 1965 and $7.92 billion in 1971. There was no official estimate available for 1972.

"I think the California apparel industry should outperform the industry as a whole in the next few years," says Jack Kyser, vice president and regional economist of United California Bank. "It could have an increase of 10 per cent or better in 1973.

"The industry here is offering the type of apparel that is going to be in demand in the future. This is sportswear and casual-type wear because the trend is toward informality."

This opinion is echoed by Harvey Morse, founder and owner of the $30 million California Mart, hub of the apparel industry in Los Angeles.

He says, "California manufacturers and designers have brought to the apparel industry a freshness of design . . . an originality in fabric and styling . . - and an array of color combinations that have become a California trademark."

The Mart, occupying twin 13-story towers completed in 1964 and 1966 in downtown Los Angeles, is a central merchandising complex in which more than 5,000 lines of wholesale men's, women's and children's wearing apparel are displayed. It operates the year around.

Tremendous Presence In Exhibit Of Prints

By ADA GARFINKEL

Phyllis Taplitz's prints currently on exhibit at the Corte Madera Library, have a tremendous amount of presence.

Sensuous in color — rich, luscious reds, purples, blues, and greens — and of the utmost simplicity of form, her work has a remarkable sweep of space and thrust, as, for example, in "Yosemite Falls," "Suspension," "Endless Flow," and "Primeval Dawn."

Although her seascapes and landscapes are abstracted, they are instantly identifiable. A singular example of this may be seen in "Pastoral Journey," a parklike setting with stark, barren trees of bright cadmium red. And in "Sailing" (a small lino-cut), lilting triangles become sails, and against a wavy purple band of color, it conveys the very feeling of being on the water.

The artist's diversified technical ability creates a skillful legerdemain in "Serenity by the Sea" which is indicated as a relief print. Using rice-paper with its characteristic ragged edge, and employing delicate gradations of color, it comes out looking more like a water color.

Mrs. Taplitz, who has had a background of fashion design and illustration has been able to overcome the stereotype fashion-figure disposition of the human form. This is readily apparent in "Waiting," a somber and thoughtful depiction of maternity. Here, two archetypal women are shown on a reddish background with a high-perspective floorline and a low-down-slant ceiling. This creates a looming and monumental quality, and the viewer is caught up in the suspense of the impending event.

Most recently the artist has added colographs to her media repertoire. Thus, in "Pulsation" the visible marking of texture is of nylon netting which blends in subtly as background. And a geometric mandala form is used to convey her interpretation of the "Cosmos" in cerulean blues with touches of pink and red.

Included in this exhibit of 23 prints by Mrs. Taplitz, are several with the characteristic woodgrain texture, some of intimate family scenes and portraits.

The exhibit will continue at the Corte Madera library, 707 Meadowsweet Drive, through September, and may be seen from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Supervisors Still Deadlocked Over Purchase Of Carousel

Marin County supervisors remained deadlocked yesterday over whether to proceed with purchase of an antique carousel from San Francisco's defunct Playland-at-the-Beach.

After about an hour's discussion, the board's 2-2 split which developed last week remained unchanged even though the carousel owner, Martin Davis, sent word he was willing to negotiate his $62,500 price.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who jined Louis H. Baar in oppostion to the merry-go-round deal, said he had been informed the carousel was only worth half the owner's asking price. He said he "would have hoped it would have been privately financed."

Purchase of the 56-year-old carousel was proposed earlier this month by supervisors Michael Wornum and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. They urged their fellow board members to go along with "the once in a lifetime opportunity" to buy it for $62,500.

Baar and Baptiste balked, however, saying not enough was known of the equipment's life expectancy, operating cost and storage requirements.

Little new was offered yesterday, through the supervisors office had earlier been swamped with telephone calls in support.

Since last week, two other carousels have been offered to the county ranging in price from $12,500 to $15,000.

"We could buy a brand new one for $20,000," said Baar, adding "we wouldn't go to an auto wrecker to buy an auto."

Beth Rowen of San Rafael, seeking appointment to the vacant board seat, told the supervisors she opposed spending public funds on the merry-go-round.

"I don't want the question of the merry-go-round to die," said Arrigoni, directing the public works department to study operation costs and where it could be placed on the fairgrounds.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

TRIP — Learned from Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that he, Supervisor Louis H. Baar and County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney will travel to Washington, D.C. next week to testify before a Senate committee in support of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

SWIMMER — Approved unanimously a resolution commending Rick DeMont, ar olympic swimmer from Terra Linda, for his gold medal win this month. The medal was subsequently withdrawn by olympic officials in a dispute over medicine used by the 16-year-old.

AUTOS — Upheld a request from the public defender's office that its investigators be allowed to continue using county-owned vehicles. The administrator's office, following board policy, had moved to place the autos back in the general pool.

PARKS — Rejected a request from Parks and Recreation Director Pierre W. Joske to pay a park planner for open space $1,318 per month. The board approved a salary of $1,195.

LUCAS VALLEY — Approved a master plan amendment for Lucas Valley Unit 10 permitting eight homes.

INTERSECTION — Agreed to ask the state division of highways to correct dangerous conditions at the Los Ranchitos Road intersection with Highway 101 near Civic Center.

APARTMENTS — Approved plans for a 28-unit apartment development on Merrydale Road in San Rafael Meadows over the protests of nearby residents. The apartment project had been approved unanimously by the planning commission.

Navy Program Deadline Set

Men and women interested in a four-year scholarship through the Navy Reserve Officers Training Corps program have until Nov. 1 to apply, said Harry Wiggs, Navy recruiter in San Rafael.

Under the program, the Navy ROTC pays tuition, educational fees, books, uniforms and $100 per month subsistance allowance. The scholarships may be used at any of 53 approved colleges in the country.

Applicants will be chosen on the basis of college testing scores. Five scholarships were awarded to Marin County students last year, Wiggs said.

Suburban Auto Hosts All-Stars Saturday

Suburban Auto Repair of San Rafael will host the Golden Gate Softball League North-South All-Star game Saturday night at 8 o'clock in Albert Park.

The nine inning affair, held for the first time in Marin County, features Suburban stars catcher Jess Munyon, third baseman Phil Gambucci, and outfielder Dennis Staub.

Authorization Given To Build New Power Unit

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has been granted authority to construct generating unit 11 at the Geysers Power Plant between Cloverdale and Middletown in northeast Sonoma County.

Scheduled for operation in August, 1974, the unit will cost about $3,383,000, including substation and transmission facilities.

It will have a capacity of 106,000 kilowatts and bring the plant's total operating capacity to 502,000 kilowatts.

The Public Utilities Commission held Tuesday that the project "does not compete with, or limit or prevent generation by" other agencies, particularly the Northern California Power Agency which represents 11 cities, each with its own municipal electric system.

Alioto—Look Trial Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Opening of the $12.5 million Alioto-Look magazine libel retrial has been delayed until Sept. 25.

U.S. District Court judge Russell E. Smith Tuesday put the trial over from its previous Sept. 16 staring date because James F. Boccardo, of San Jose, an Alioto attorney, will be engagd in another case.

The suit by San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto is over an article in the now-defunct magazine entitled "The Web that Links San Franicsco Mayor Alioto with the Mafia." The article appeared in the Sept. 9, 1969 issue of Look.

The first trial ended in a hung jury May 15, 1970 after 19 days of trial and four days of jury deliberations.

Transportation Program Lashed

The Phase II report of Marin's balanced transportation program took another whipping yesterday from county supervisors, one of whom labled it "an Alice in Wonderland approach" to solving transportation problems. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The study is basically a 1990 transportation forecast recommending that transit needs be met by 350 intracounty buses operating on 23 miles of separate "busways."

It recommends against any new freeways, major road widenings or a second deck on the Golden Gate Bridge.

Supervisor Michael Wornum said the City-County Planning Council of Marin's transportation committee was "anti-road and anti-automobile" and had precluded study of new road networks as a means of improving intracounty travel.

Yesterday was the second time in a month the study has come under fire from the board. Last month, the board lashed out at it for having been "politically influenced" by a committee of the City-County Planning Council — charged with aiding in the study.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, most scornful of the supervisors, said he found sections of the transportation study "environmentally degrading and fiscally impossible."

He listed those as sections recommending intracounty buses within five to 10 minutes walk of most residents' homes.

"I'm not going to approve it," he warned. "Some basic assumptions have to be cleaned up before getting into long-range policy decisions for Phase III."

Baptiste's fiery salvo came as he prepared to leave for a luncheon engagement. He questioned the validity of the report's assumptions that only 285,000 persons will be living in Marin by 1990 and that the number of Marin jobs will double from the present 50,000.

As explained by Robert L. Harrison, who spearheaded the study for the county planning department, the study recommends keeping road congestion about the same as today and picking up the added number of people through improved transit.

Supervisor Louis H. Baar questioned whether residents could ever be induced to leave their autos in favor of public intracounty transit.

"I just don't think you will force people into buses in a suburban area," Baar said, citing an example of a housewife trying to do her grocery shopping by bus. "The community we have has been laid out for autos."

Chairman Peter R. Arrigoni Jr., said the alternatives to providing an expensive transit system were "frightening" since they relied on vastly expanded roadways. "We do have a chance in Marin County to lessen the dependency on autos," he said, adding he generally favored the report but questioned parts.

Anne West, a member of the city-county group's transportation committee, said the committee believed portions of the study not strong enough against the auto. She said the committee supported much of it, however.

Mrs. West said the county was "heading straight for an environmental disaster" unless population, land use and transportation were controlled.

Wornum, also a director by the Golden Gate Bridge District board, said the recommendation against a second (transit) deck on the bridge "really upsets me."

Without it, he continued, transit to San Francisco would be hampered as would auto traffic.

"If we are going to use the bridge as a throttle, why did we spend $3 million of the state's money widening Richardson Bay Bridge?" he asked.

Wornum, who has been urging a transit deck on the bridge for years, said he felt the staff and the city-county planning council had pulled the rug out from under him.

He also questioned other portions f the report such as that section saying one of its aims was to create "social diversity" in local neighborhood by providing transit.

"Who are we kidding?" said Wornum.

The study will be reviewed again Oct. 3.

Youth Killed By High Voltage

WEST COLUMBIA, S.C. (UPI)—A 14-year-old member of the Brookland-Cayce High School football team was killed and five others injured Tuesday when a goal post came in contact with a high voltage wire.

Assistant Principal Jim Porter said the boys were leaning on the goal post during practice when they began to make it sway. He said the post then came in contact with the electrical line.

The boy, Charles E. Derrenbacher, was taken to the Baptist hospital in serious condition. He later died.

Board, Teachers Battle On Pay

The Petaluma Board of Education backed off on employee salary raises last night after teachers charged negotiations had not been conducted legally and traded bitter accusations with board members.

Schools Supt. Lesly H. Meyer had recommended elementary district employees receive a 2 per cent increase and high school district employees 4 per cent raises, but teachers packed the room to say it would not be enough.

Teachers bickered heatedly among themselves on what approach to take on negotiations. Paul A. Lyon, first vice president of the Association of Petaluma Area Teachers, charged in a letter that the board had violated the Winton Act because it failed to negotiate in good faith. He said the negotiation council met with Meyer, but not concerning salaries.

Charles Craig, association president, disavowed any part of the letter and said Lyon was not speaking for the organization. Lyon said he had resigned as negotiations chairman last month because of differences of opinion with Craig. "He's not willing to push hard enough," Lyon said of Craig.

Board president Arthur L. Lafranchi, an attorney, said the implications of the charge were legally dangerous and called for an opinion from the county counsel's office before proceeding further.

"I don't know what's behind it," Lafranchi said. "It would be a suit and I don't want to see the district walk into a trap."

Teachers charged individually that the proposed raises wouldn't allow them to keep up with the rising cost of living. They said morale in the district is at an all-time low.

Under the salary plan, all employees would receive the same amount of increase regardless of their place on the salary schedule since raises would be based on averages.

Elementary teachers would receive $200 more for the 1972-73 school year; high school district teachers $400 more; elementary district classified employees $120; and high school classified employees $240.

Business Mgr. George W. Castleberry said the increases would cost the high school district $168,000 and the elementary district $34,000.

Normally, the same increases are granted to elementary and high school district employees, but Meyer said the financially troubled elementary district could not allow for more than a 2 per cent increase. The board agreed the action would not be precedent-setting and that common increases will be granted again when more money is available.

Board member Daniel Plumley said more money would have been on hand if last March's tax rate increase election had passed and said teachers didn't work hard enough for its passage. He expressed surprise at the teachers' reactions and said, "We're giving you what we can."

Lyon countercharged that the board did not tell the public in March that the extra money would go largely for teachers salaries. "You didn't ask for money for salaries," he said. "You asked for money for schools and tried to slip it past the public. You're just inefficient."

Recommendations by Meyer to restore budget cuts in school operations also were shelved as teachers demanded that all funds that have recently become available from the state should be subject to salary negotiation.

Meyer's recommendations had included increasing the supply budget by $30,000, adding $30,000 to the maintenance budget and adding $25,000 to the operations budget and $25,000 for a reading program report, all to be spent in the high school district. A plan to hire an additional psychologist to serve both districts also was shoved aside.

Lafranchi said the board would await a legal decision on the negotiation question before going further.

Final Meet On Building Plan Set

The Technical Housing Advisory Committee of the Marin County Planning Commission will hold its final meeting tomorrow to complete work on a proposed incentive plan for building low and moderate-income housing mingled with more expensive homes in new subdivisions and older neighborhoods.

The committee will meet at 4 p.m. in the Marin County Planning Department conference room at the Civic Center.

The proposal would allow developers to build additional units in return for providing lower-cost units within the development. Still to be refined are the price ranges of units to qualify for the bonus, and proposals to lower expenses of street, sewer and utility improvements to enable developers to sell housing at less cost, according to Ruth Friedlander, planning aide and secretary to the committee.

The committee, which has been meeting for more than a year, also will discuss how to present its recommendationsto the planning commission, board of supervisors and other agencies involved.

$1,300 Raised By Book Sale

The Friends of the Marin County Free Library has announced that it made $1,300 from its annual book sale at the College of Marin last month.

The board, at its meeting Monday night at the new regional library in Corte Madera, also announced it has contributed a collection of San Quentin Prison memorabilia to the county library at the Civic Center and is considering purchasing opera scores, scripts, records and tapes for its member libraries.

A proposal was made to establish a library board to coordinate activities among member libraries and with the Friends of the California State Libraries. Leonard Born, president of the Friends' board, was authorized to make such a suggestion to the county board of supervisors.

The board will next meet Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in the Corte Madera regional library.

Nixon Director: Build It Right

DETROIT (UPI) — President Nixon's director of consumer affairs, Virginia H. Knauer, has challenged Detroit industrialists to "build the cars right and the tires right the first time around."

Mrs. Knauer said yesterday she took a survey in 1971 which "showed that automobile problems were a major source of consumer complaint in virtually every state.

"Clearly, there's a problem, and clearly, something has to be done about it," she told a National Convention of the American Automobile Association.

"For once and for all, let's see if we can cut down on the recalls. Let's build the cars right and the tires right the first time around."

She said a recent Harris Poll found that three-quarters of the public rated the auto industry negatively on its "ability to give a good buy for the money," including service rendered by auto dealerships.

23-Year-Old Arrested On Drug Charge

A 23-year-old man was arrested today on suspicion of being under the influence of drugs and possession of dangerous drugs.

David William Newton, 23, reported by San Rafael police to live at 32 Humbolt Street, San Anselmo, Anselmo and by sheriff's deputies to live at 32 Arroyo Road, Fairfax, was held in Marin County Jail to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

His wife, Sandra Rae Newton, 25, was released with their 3-year-old son.

A 16-year-old juvenile with them was cited to juvenile authorities as under the influence of drugs. His name was withheld by order of Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson.

According to San Rafael Police, the Newton car was stopped after midnight in the 600 block of Francisco Boulevard and Newton appeared to be under the influence of narcotics.

Police said they found two capsules, a bag containing a white powder thought to be heroin, two bags containing a brown substance and a leather bag with a white powder in it on the floor of the car, according to reports.

Nixon Speechmaker Blasts President's No-New-Tax Vow

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, one of President Nixon's key reelection speechmakers, said today the President wasn't being "altogether honest" in promising no new taxes if he wins a second term.

"I think we're living in a dream worl," Saxbe told a news conference.

Saxbe also criticized the revenue-sharing measure the Senate passed Tuesday, calling it "a fraud on the public."

"It's just typical of the politics of today when both parties are trying to fool the people," he said, and added:

"I don't think the President is being altogether honest with the people when he says there won't be any new taxes."

Saxbe said Nixon had qualified his statement by saying it applied if Congress kept government spending under $250 billion, then commented: "That's great. You can say the same thing to your wife —don't buy any groceries and we won't go into debt." Asked what tax increases he foresaw, Saxbe replied: "Across-the-board percentage increases ... at every level."

"I'm sorry that I can't be more pleased with what's going on," he added. "The country's full of con-men and a lot of them are in politics."

Saxbe, chosen by Nixon to make numerous re-election speeches throughout the nation, also criticized Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., the Democratic presidential nominee, for his stands on defense spending and farm and food prices.

He dismissed McGovern's campaign as being merely a prelude to a 1976 presidential bid by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

"I get the feeling it's Kennedy's '76 campaign," he said. "McGovern can't get a crowd."

Fairfax Break-In Hearing Slated

A preliminary hearing in Marin municipal Court has been scheduled for next Tuesday for two Central Marin men charged with breaking into a Fairfax home in order to burglarize it.

Joel Andrews Petterson of San Anselmo and Richard James Giakovmis, 19, of San Rafael, are charged with breaking into the home of Robert J. Cole of 276 Tamalpais Road and stacking items in the living room.

Police said Giakovmis and Petterson were seen in the neighborhood before the June 12 burglary and were arrested on warrants after fingerprints matched with Giakovmis's were found in the house.

A group of 10 Chinese doctors will tour medical facilities there and in New York, Boston, Kansas City and San Francisco, said Dr. E. Grey Dimond, who returned to the United States Monday from Peking.

NEW BUSINESS

Fresh Air Animal Taxi 'Beats Flipping Pizzas'

By JEFF GREER

"Running a taxi for pets sure beats flipping pizzas," declared young Kevin Greenwood of San Rafael.

Greenwood and his wife, Janet, now are veterans of two weeks of operating Marin County's first animal pickup and delivery service. For a fee, the "Fresh Air Animal Taxi" will take a family dog or cat to the veterinarian, to a kennel, grooming parlor or to or from an airport, any time day or night.

Greenwood, 25, holds a master's degree in creative arts, and teaches part time at San Francisco State. He had been depending on a pizza parlor job for steady income until he and his wife decided to test the old American business adage that the straightest road to success was to find a service that was needed — and supply it.

She is a part-time employee wih one of Marin's largest boarding kennels, a student, and part-time art therapist in a local hospital.

Both are animal lovers — she formerly raised Saint Bernard dogs in San Jose and he owned German Shepherds.

Going into business for themselves involved wading through such complexities as finding insurance to cover the dogs and cats riding in their "taxi," arranging for an answering service to handle appointments, and obtaining crates and carrying cages for pets ranging in size from kittens to Great Danes.

They started out with a shiny little compact sedan, its back seat removed to provide room for the crates. Already, they've had to begin negotiations for a small van to meet growing demand.

As an introduction to their pet transport service, the Greenwoods will offer free transportation for pets being taken to the low-cost Animal Birth Control Clinic in San Rafael, next Monday through Friday, Greenwood said.

He said the taxi service will offer a 50 per cent discount for pets using the spaying clinic at other times, and he hopes to make similar arrangements with the Marin County Veterinary Medical Association spaying program.

The taxi service is for pets rather than people, but Mrs. Greenwood reported they're rapidly finding that pet lovers are very particular persons. One patron insisted on riding along with her cat to reassure herself that kitty would enjoy the trip, Mrs. Greenwood reported.

The husband said he'd be happy if the "Fresh Air Animal Taxi" business proves successful enough to sidetrack other career plans for a few years.

Larkspur Planners Will Hear Proposal For Train Excursions

A Sept. 26 public hearing was set last night by the Larkspur Planning Commission on a plan by a youthful railroad enthusiast to run steam excursion trains between Baltimore Park and Sausalito.

Douglas B. Morgan, owner of a rail car renovation company in Greenbrae, told the commission he planned intermittent weekend service at first, depending on reaction from residents and official bodies in communities through which the train would run.

Morgan's project already has received a chilly reception in Mill Valley.

The Larkspur commissioners didn't indicate their position, following instead a suggestion by City Mgr. Kent B. Bathurst that community opinion be sought through an informal hearing.

Bathurst cited noise, parking and the futre of the abandoned Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way as areas of concern.

"I could live with all kinds of suggestions," said Morgan, who added he plans $20,000 in track improvements if the service is greeted favorably.

Larkspur officials said residents along the tracks, as well as representatives of the city's property owner groups, would be notified of the Sept. 26 hearing.

The Larkspur Planning Commission Also:

ACCESS — Recommended to the city cil for adoption of an ordinance that requires public access to the main channel of Corte Madera Creek be provided by developers ot subdivisions containing more than 200 units. The ordinance follows recent state law.

DESIGN — After long delay, gave design approval to multiple dwelling units proposed by developer Niels Schultz Jr. on South Eliseo Drive.

CONDOMINIUMS — Conditionally approved design of a condominium development proposed by John A. Moran at 515 Larkspur Plaza Drive, pending review by the city's architectural review committee of color, building exterior and related matters.

TIME — Passed to the council an ordinance setting time limits on use permit life.

Sex Charges Dropped Against Marin Man

Six sex charges against a 32-year-old San Rafael man were dismissed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court for several reasons.

Judge Robert A. Smallman freed Robert Thomas St. Jovite of three felony counts of indecent exposure, one count of lewd and lascivious behavior with a 10-year-old child, a felony charge of soliciting a person to perform lewd acts and a misdemeanor count of failing to register as a person convicted previously of indecent exposure.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Edward Turrico said the registration and felony exposure counts, which stemmed from 1970 and 1971, were dismissed because, although St. Jovite was convicted previously in 1958, his record was cleared in 1961.

Turrico said indecent exposure can only be a felony if there is a previous conviction on the record. The other two counts were dropped after witnesses failed to identify St. Jovite, Turrico said.

Two Shops In Marinwood Hit For Cash By Burglars

A total of $383 was taken from two Marinwood shops Sunday or Monday by burglars, the sheriff's office reported yesterday.

Deputies said $25 was taken from the Golden Mirror Beauty Salon, 195 Marinwood Drive, and $358 from the Bourbon Shop at 197 Marinwood Drive between 10 p.m. and 4 a.m.

Air Compressor Stolen

An eight horsepower air compressor valued at $500 was stolen from a shop of the Alan Marin Construction Co. on Damont Way in Tamalpais Valley between 5 p.m. Thursday and 7:30 a.m. Friday, the sheriff's department said yesterday.

Zone Changes Recommended In Larkspur

A short-handed Larkspur Planning Commission last night recommended a series of zoning changes to foster planned commercial and residential development of a large portion of the San Quentin Peninsula.

The vote on the request by T. I. Properties, an investment corporation, was 2-1, Charles H. Curley dissenting.

Preliminary plans for about 100 acres of land east of Highway 101 and north of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, a T. I. spokesman has said, include a hotel and convention center, a swimming and tennis development, shops, offices and apartments. Nearly 75 per cent of the site would be devoted to residential use.

Curley's objection, though broad-based, focused primarily on timing of the approval. He said the action was premature in view of the fact that a consultant's suggested general plan for the area is expected in city hands by Oct. 11.

"I feel this is backward planning," he said. Curley added it was unfortunate that two commissioners — Benton A. Sifford Jr. and Leonard S. Rubin — weren't present for a discussion "of this magnitude."

Rubin, however, joined the commission after the T.I. discussion.

With Earl J. O'Grady and chairman Otto Hoefler approving, the commission endorsed rezoning of two parcels to multiple dwelling and commercial from industrial and "study" designations, as well as prezoning to multiple dwelling ridgetop property which the city wishes to annex from San Rafael.

But the majority said the vote rested on the outcome of the general plan study being conducted by Dan Coleman and Associates, the $3,500 cost of which is being paid by T.I. Properties. The T. I. concept would be placed in jeopardy if Coleman recommends contrary uses.

Norman T. Gilroy, Sausalito architect and design consultant for T. I. in Marin, told the commission his client wished to proceed with the rezoning and take its chances on the Coleman study outcome. The reason, he said, is that T.I. wants to maintain interest among potential users of the 100 acres, some of whom are eyeing Corte Madera's planned regional shopping center for space.

Gilroy also emphasized that the rezoning was not binding, merely to guide the developers in general "land use concept." Arthur M. Stout, city planning and community development director, told the group that development plans ultimately would be considered under a "planned community" application.

O'Grady disputed Curley's charge that the commission action was premature. O'Grady said the area has been studied for years and that the suggested uses are compatible with city development policy conference recommendations earlier this year. "It's not a rush job," he said.

Death Row Is Finally Empty

San Quentin's historic Death Row was officially closed yesterday, according to Joseph R. O'Brien, prison information officer.

Six convicts who had occupied cells in the condemned men's quarters were transferred to other facilities, and in some cases other prisons.

O'Brien said the last man to be moved out was Gordon Barkley, 38, sent to Death Row in February after strangling a 10-year-old girl in Los Angeles County. He was transferred to Folsom Prison.

The long-idle, apple-green gas chamber adjoining Death Row will remain intact until state penal authorities "see how things go" with proposals to reinstate the death penalty in California, O'Brien said. If the death penalty remains outlawed, the execution chamber will be dismantled, O'Brien predicted.

Sausalito Woman Reports Attack

A 22-year-old waitress in San Francisco was raped early today by a hitchhiker she had picked up on her way home to Sausalito, sheriff's deputies reported.

The woman said she picked up the hitchhiker near Lombard Street in San Francisco at about 2:30 a.m. and was forced at gunpoint to drive up a fire road in Marin City where the hitchhiker raped her.

According to sheriff's deputies, the unidentified man then got back into her car and was dropped off in the Marin City housing project.

Florida Tourists Lose Cash, Guitar To Burglar

Two tourists from Tampa, Fla., went home short $300 cash and a $150 guitar because a burglar broke into their car near Stinson Beach Friday, sheriff's deputies said today.

Deputies said the money belonging to Valeria M. Kaskeski and the guitar of Stanley F. Moore were taken from their car on Shoreline Highway about one and a half miles from Stinson Beach at 7:30 p.m.

Flares With Wick Thrown At Fire Department Door

Two road flares with a burning wick attached were thrown against a door of the Tamalpais Valley Fire Department Friday, but firemen reached the device before it burst, sheriff's deputies said yesterday.

The flares bound together with electrician's tape bounced off the door at 11:30 p.m., deputies said.

Fairfax Can Use Site Of School For Debris

Fairfax School District trustees last night voted to let the Town of Fairfax use district property at White Hill School as a debris disposal site, according to Gwyneth McGee, board secretary.

The property, once it is filled, will be added to the school playground area. School board members inspected the site prior to their adjourned business meeting in the school last night.

The Fairfax School District Board also:

BUSING — Refused to support the antibusing initiative sponsored by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-Los Angeles. Trustees declared the issue not germane to Fairfax, but said Wakefield's proposal would prevent districts from busing pupils in emergencies such as post-earthquake periods if local schools were closed by damage.

CRASH VICTIM — Ordered condolences sent to Dr. Rolland Carter, husband of Fairfax special education teacher Julia L. Carter, who was killed in a traffic accident near Vallejo Sept. 5. Plans were discussed to recruit a replacement for Mrs. Carter, who had taught 22 years in Fairfax.

NEWSLETTER — Approved plans to begin distributing a monthly newsletter to district parents and teachers.

TAX INITIATIVE — Ordered a resolution against the so-called Watson tax limit initiative prepared for adoption at the board's Sept. 26 business meeting.

STAFF EVALUATION — Adopted a district policy for staff evaluation, as required under the Stull Act.

TRANSFER — Approved the request by a Fairfax mother who is a Dixie School District teacher that her child be allowed to attend school in the Dixie district.

ENROLLMENT — Received a report from Dist. Supt. H. Reginald Hammond that enrollment as of yesterday was 597, down 40 from the district total a year ago.

TOUR — Scheduled a special meeting for 8:30 a.m. Saturday at the district office, to make a tour of the district's school buildings, district office and storage facilities under construction.

Record Number Of Riders Took Golden Gate Buses

Golden Gate Transit buses carried a record 6,388 commuters from Sonoma and Marin Counties to San Francisco Monday morning, according to H. Donald White, transit manager for the Golden Gate Bridge District.

White said that despite the heavy patronage, only eight standees were reported on the buses, indicating the scheduling is providing adequate seat availability.

Average patronage on Grayhound buses which served the two counties' commuters until Jan. 3 this year, was between 4,000 and 5,000 riders each morning.

Wounded Man Identified; Hearing Slated Tuesday

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in identifying a man wounded near the heliport on Richardson Bay Thursday in a knife fight in which another man was killed.

The wounded man was Paul Earl Jordan, 44.

Carlos Rico, 22, a transient, is charged with manslaughter in the killing of Dean Russell Ironcloud, 25, also a transient, during the fight. Rico has pleaded innocent and will face a preliminary hearing next Tuesday.

Tomales Bay State Park Closed — Water Shortage

Tomales Bay State Park north of Inverness was closed yesterday and will remain closed for an indefinite period because of a water shortage, park rangers said.

James Phillips, a ranger at the state park office at Samuel P. Taylor State Park in Lagunitas, said springs feeding water outlets in the West Marin park had stopped running. He pointed to low rainfall last winter and the virtually rainless summer.

Pleads Guilty To Drug Charge

One of two San Rafael residents arrested after an offduty sheriff's deputy thought he saw a drug sale in progress pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to misdemeanor possession of dangerous drugs.

Judge David R. Baty then set sentencing for Roxanne Lynn Baldi, 21, for Oct. 13.

For codefendant Earl Eugene Butler, 42, Judge Baty heard part of a preliminary hearing on a charge of selling dangerous drugs, then continued it to Oct. 3 for decision.

San Rafael police arrested the two after Deputy Warren Wright reported the sale of pills in a booth at Anjo's Bar, 535 Fourth Street.

Police said they found a plastic bag and pill bottle each containing white pills in Mrs. Baldi's purse.

Phone Refund Hearing Held

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The California Public Utilities Commission is holding a hearing on whether 29 independent telephone companies must make refunds totaling about $11 million.

The State Supreme Court on Aug. 8 ruled a $143 million rate increase granted Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Co. was illegal and ordered refunds.

The present hearing involves money collected by the independents when their calls went over PT&T lines.

The court had ordered the refunds from the independents but the commission granted a rehearing at the request of General Telephone Co.

South Sonoma Arraignment Set

Edward Michael Upchurch, 20, of 212 Baker Street, Petaluma, was arrested yesterday on suspicion of possession of stolen property, dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia.

He was booked into the city jail on $1,000 bail and scheduled for arraignment today in Southern Sonoma Municipal Court.

Police said he was found with items reported stolen June 22 from the home of B. L. Christie, 533 Murray Drive, Petaluma. Officers said drugs and narcotics paraphernalia also were found in his possession.

Easter Seal Group Starts Drive

The Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Marin has launched its annual membership drive, president James W. McClintock announced today.

The society, at 1601 Second Street in San Rafael, provides a number of services for handicapped people, including speech and language therapy, recreation and social development, resident and day camping, equipment loans, and others.

Board Wants Meeting On Finances

Amid reports of possible relief, the San Rafael Board of Education said last night it intends to meet with the city council over a financial squeeze that would be posed by a community redevelopment project.

Supt. John F. Plank said the baord was told by Michael Mitchell, county auditor-controller, that a newly enacted state law enables release of tax revenue frozen in some redevelopmnet projects for school use.

Plank said the law is an outgrowth of suits brought by several Southern California school districts against community redevelopment agencies.

The San Rafael City Council has designated a large portion of the community as a potential redevelopment area, meaning that bonds may be issued to finance public improvements in the region.

While the cost of the improvements is being paid off, tax revenue accruing from private property enhancement in a redevelopment area is frozen under state law. School and special districts, as well as the city's own general fund, don't benefit immediately as a result.

Plank said Mitchell, while not expressing opposition to redevelopment, nevertheless urged the school board to keep its "eyes wide open" on the issue.

The San Rafael Board of Education Also:

ANTIDRUG — Formally endorsed a pilot antidrug project, involving a myriad of agencies under the coordination of the county drug abuse office, that will start in the school system this fall. The board said it expected progress reports along the way. Project cost of $3,000 will be borne by outside funds. Other Marin public schools also are involved.

DeMONT — Voted to send congratulations to Olympic swimmer, Rick DeMont, a Terra Linda High School student, on whom misfortune fell in the Munich games. Board member Francis X. Kelly said he believed the 16-year-old student actually earned three gold medals, including "one for his exemplary conduct and attitude."

GLENWOOD — In response to citizen concern, asked for a cost study of placing a graveled walk across a portion of the proposed Glenwood Middle School site that tends to flood in winter.

GOALS — Accepted from the citizens advisory committee a statement of recommended student learning and behavior goals.

PERSONNEL — Approved appointment of 15 teaching and nonteaching personnel and accepted the resignations and leave requests of seven others. It also endorsed hiring of 53 adult education instructors at $8.45 per hour each.

GIFTS — Accepted gifts of a stadium cash box from Maurice Johnson and of a volume of encyclopedias from Compton's Encyclopedia.

MEETING — Said it next would meet Sept. 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Santa Venetia Middle School, preceded by a tour of new facilities at the school.

County Crackdown On Bolinas Mesa 'Motor Homes'

Residents Grumble Over 'Appalachia In Marin'

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The license plates on the old yellow school bus read "Utah 62." Out of one window curved a rusty stovepipe. Inside, dirty dishes were stacked randomly about. Mattresses lined the floor. The smell of stale urine hung in the air.

"This is what it's all about," said a disgruntled Bolinas Mesa resident, motioning to the bus. "Would you want that next door to you?"

"Appalachia, Marin County style," another resident said sarcastically.

The men, joined by several of their neighbors, stood chatting as an official from the county planning department slipped a printed warning into the bus.

The notice warned the absent residents that they had until today to meet health and safety standards and obtain a county permit, or to move on.

That chore done, the men, the county official and a deputy sheriff climbed back into their cars and the caravan bumped its way down another dusty mesa road in search of more of the homes.

The old yellow bus was one of more than a dozen such dwellings singled out in one day by the county in a new, get-tough policy with West Marin's swelling population of youthful transients — unaffectionately known as "the blight" by the area's more-established residents.

The crackdown was ordered last week by county supervisors after about two years of complaining by Bolinas home and property owners.

Under existing county regulations, it is illegal to reside in a "motor home" which is not adequately equipped to handle garbage and sewage. Also, a use permit must be obtained under the zoning ordinance.

For most of the mesa's transient "street sleepers," the high cost of an adequate sewage system will probably dictate their move from Marin.

"If they have a different life style, that's fine," said Rey Collins, the county's zoning enforcement officer, as she handed out the warnings. "But they must be cognizant of other people's life styles."

She was accompanied by Deputy James Riddell of the county sheriff's department.

Mrs. Collins's sentiments were echoed by a small contingent of residents who accompanied her on her rounds.

"This is a great day," said one elderly resident as another warning was delivered, this time into the back of a large van. The van's occupant wasn't inside.

"You can say that again," responded Alonzo S. Nelson, who purchased his retirement home in Bolinas six years ago. "It's been a long time coming."

While most of the dwellings appeared lived-in, only a few were occupied when Mrs. Collins knocked. ("The word got around fast," as one resident put it.)

One occupied dwelling was that of Jay Pursellary. His home was a vintage milk van.

Pursellary broke down crying when informed of the ordinances prohibiting living in vehicles without a permit or sanitary facilities.

"I just come here to crash at night," he said, adding he was on welfare but had been traveling around the state lately.

"Why should I have to buy a permit? Its the county's money anyway," he said.

Another stop was at the home of Dale F. Roddy. A baby's cries came from inside the blue camper back, which had been removed from a pickup truck.

Toilet paper, human waste and flies covered what served as kind of a "front yard" to the Roddy home.

"Yes ... interesting ... that's cool ... is that right?" were Roddy's comments as the ordinace was explained. "We're only living here temporarily."

"You have until Wednesday to get a permit (and sanitary facilities)," responded Mrs. Collins.

Most of the dwellings to receive warnings appeared to be clear-cut violations, but one young family was caught on the fringe.

Nina Bellak, 24, resides with her family in a teepee, though the family's cooking and sanitary facilities are located in a small trailer nearby.

She was warned that if the family sleeps in the teepee, it also must have sanitary facilities and must meet the building code.

"We've gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to be legal," she told the Independent-Journal, adding the family was planning to build a home on the lot for which they had already acquired a building permit.

A use permit for the small trailer had been acquired and toilet facilities had been connected to a septic tank which cost "a couple of thousand dollars," she said.

Requiring another $35 permit is unfair, she added.

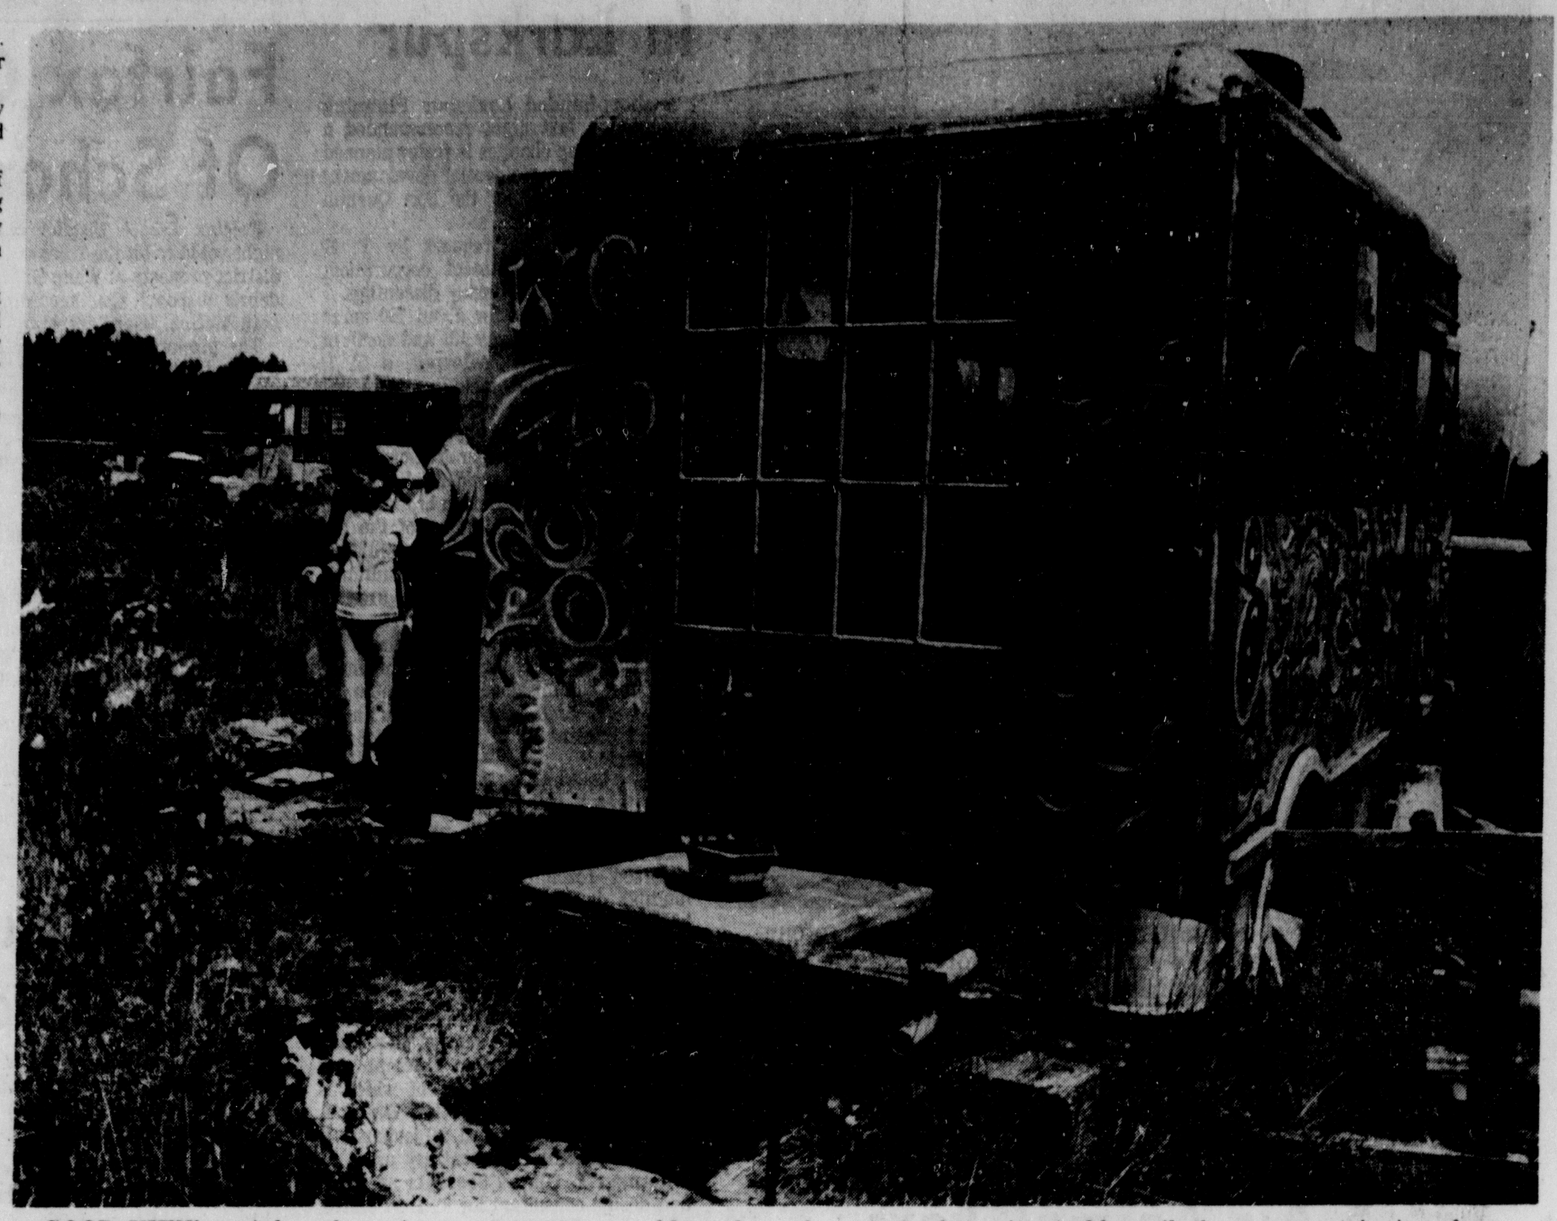
"This really angers me. There's no hope for communication and working together if they (complaining residents) run to law enforcement officials."

She said, however, that she agreed with their efforts to clean up unhealthy sanitary conditions caused by some residents.

Under the county's warning, those notified last Thursday have until today to comply with county ordinances or move on.

If they don't, they will be cited for a misdemeanor offense and run the risk of having their vehicles towed away and impounded.

"THE HOG FARM" — A 72-hour warning is issued by Mrs. Collins and sheriff's deputy James Riddell to the resident of "The Hog Farm," the name printed on this bus. If the vehicle isn't moved by today, the owner will be cited for health and zoning violations.



GOOD VIEW — A lone bonzai tree rests atop an old card table outside the "picture window" of this hand-painted van. Garbage was strewn about the vehicle but, fortunately, none where it would spoil the occupants' view from inside.

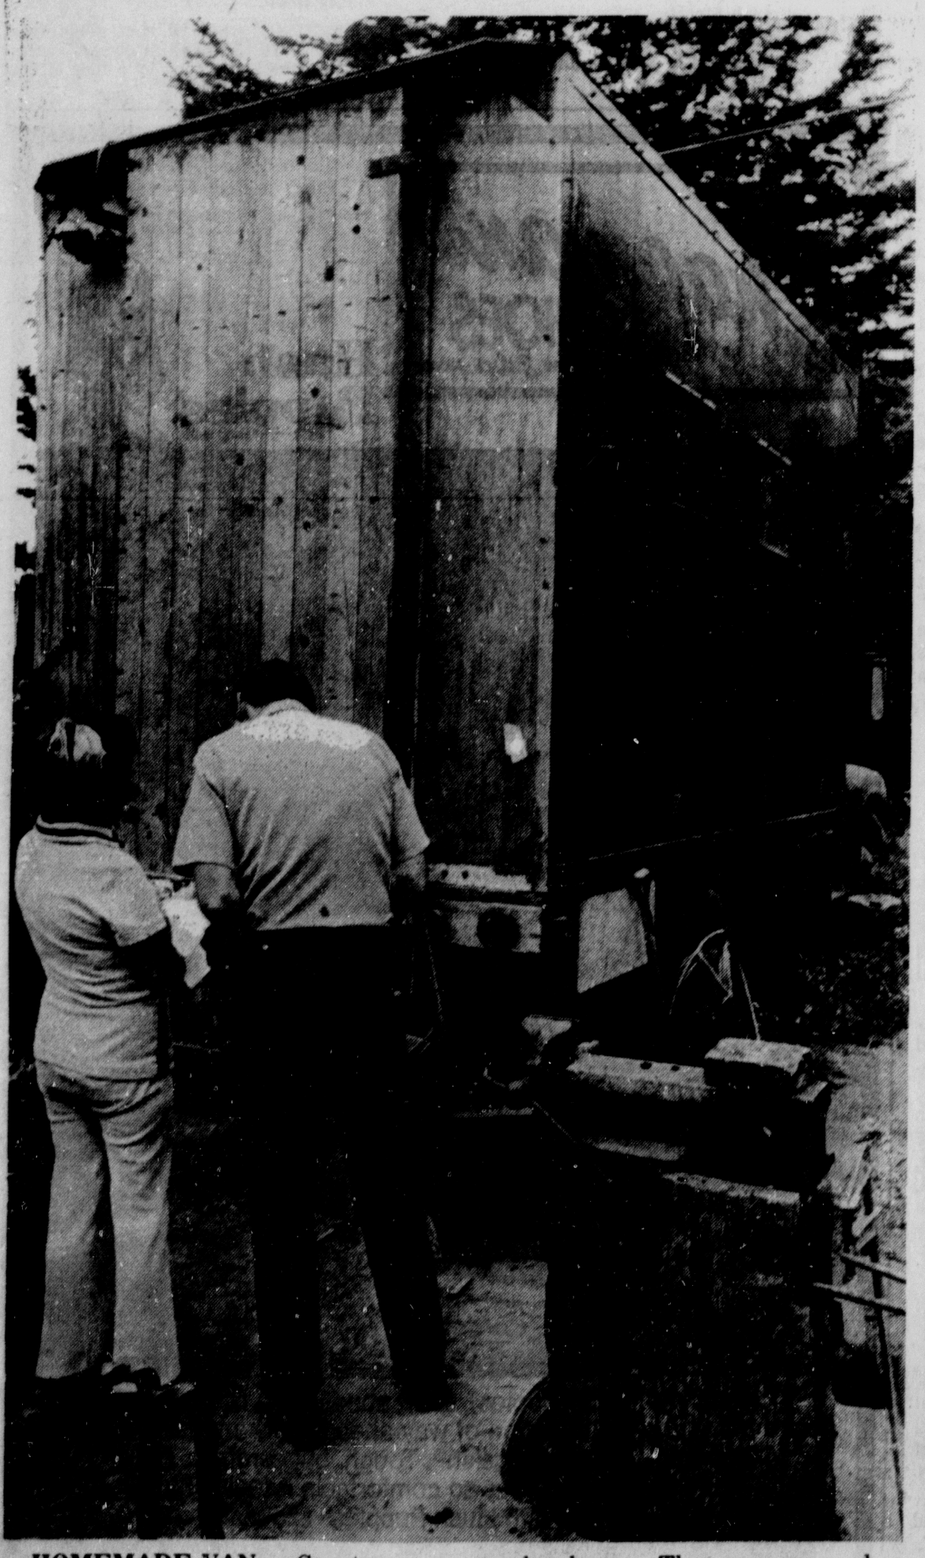
INSPECTION TOUR — Mrs. Collins and Riddell inspect the grounds around this commercially designed teepee prior to issuing a warning to the owners that it didn't meet the county building code.



HOMEMADE VAN — County employees prepare a warning to the unknown occupants of this homemade van which has water and electricity running to it from a nearby home. The area around the van was littered with an assortment of hand tools and auto parts.

CONTRASTS — County Zoning Enforcement Officer Rey Collins inspects an aging van which contrasts with the modern design of the home nearby in the background. Owners of the van, who were not inside when the county team came by, were warned to obtain a permit to live in it and install proper sewage or to move on.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE TO CUSTOMERS OF SAFEWAY STORES, INC.

On August 13, 1972, Meryl J. Maler, Sylvia Mathon and Marilyn Rosenweig filed a legal action in the Superior Court of the State of California in and for the county of Los Angeles against 36 supermarkets, including Safeway Stores, Inc. ("Safeway"), charging defendants violated section 1770 of the California Civil Code in connection with the labeling of ground beef products sold in their California stores and further charging that defendants had otherwise misrepresented the nature of ground beef products.

The action purports to be a class action brought under section 1781 of the California Civil Code and Section 382 of the Code of Civil Procedure on behalf of plaintiffs and all other California residents who have purchased ground beef products in California from any defendant.

Safeway, while denying that it has violated section 1770 of the California Civil Code or any other law, has made an offer in settlement of all claims in the action described above.

The proposed settlement contemplates the entry of a consent judgment providing that:

1. Safeway will expend the sum of $400,000 over the period January 1, 1972 — December 31, 1974 to continue to improve its ground beef program by the implementation of new and better manufacturing and testing procedures and by conducting a consumer education program;

2. Safeway will continue to use its best efforts to prevent any mislabeling in connection with the sale of its ground beef products;

3. Safeway will undertake, for a period of three years, a consumer information program designed to inform the public on how Safeway prepares the ground beef products sold in its California Stores, including, but not limited to, fat content objectives for its ground beef products;

4. Safeway will pay attorneys fees to the attorneys for plaintiffs.

Since, for purposes of this settlement, the proposed judgment treats the above-noted action as a class action brought on behalf of the above-described class, the court on August 30, 1972, ordered that this notice be published so that all persons addressed hereby have an opportunity to object to the proposed settlement, or be separately represented.

The specific allegations of the complaint which will be disposed of by entry of consent judgement are set forth in the complaint (Case No. C-9691) which is on file with, and may be inspected at, the office of the clerk of the Superior Court of the State of California for the court of Los Angeles, 111 North Hill Street, Los Angeles, California, 90012.

NOW, THEREFORE, TAKE NOTICE:

1. If you are a member of the class described above who purchased ground beef from Safeway, you will be included in such class and any judgment, whether favorable or not, including any judgment approving any settlement of this action, will be binding upon you.

2. If you prefer to be represented by your own counsel, rather than by counsel by Plaintiffs, you may enter an appearance through your counsel, but not later than October 13, 1972.

3. If you wish to object to the proposed settlement, you must file written objections with the undersigned by October 13, 1972, and appear on October 20, 1972, at 9:00 A.M. in the courtroom of the Honorable Joseph A. Wapner, Judge of the Superior Court of the State of California for the county of Los Angeles, 111 North Hill Street, Los Angeles, California, to show cause why the proposed settlement should not be approved by the court and a judgment entered accordingly.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Endoscopes Used To Examine A Canal Or An Internal Organ

Endoscopes are instruments for examining the interior of a canal or a hollow internal organ. Most people have been examined with one of these and view the devices with mixed emotions. Ears are inspected with the otoscope; lungs with a bronchoscope; the rectum with the proctoscope; and the urinary bladder with a cystoscope. Until recently, most of the devices were solid, rigid tubes with a light at one end and an eyepice on the other.

Flexibility of some of the newer scopes enhances their value because the physician can see "around corners" without causing the individual undue discomfort. They are narrower and contain special lenses. Our new flexible fiberoptic endoscopes have extended the doctor's visibility to the extent that he can inspect most of the gastrointestinal tract. When inserted through the rectum, the end can be guided 74 inches into the intestines. To do so, it must go around several 90-degree turns.

WHEN THE INSTRUMENT is passed through the mouth, it allows the physician to inspect the inside of the esophagus, stomach, and small intestine for 50 inches. During passage of the instrument, the eyepiece is twisted and turned so the physician can view every nook and cranny. Even the opening to the liver and pancreas can be seen.

Along with the ability to detect tumors, ulcers, and bleeding blood vessels, the device also has attachments to cauterize or excise benign gastric or colonic polyps. In some instances, it eliminates the need for major surgery.

IT IS ALSO used to obtain biopsies and cauterize bleeding under direct vision. Photographs of the inside of the stomach can also be taken.

Fiberoptic instruments can be passed via the urinary bladder into the tube leading to the kidney. They can also be threaded through blood vessels to peek into the heart. A final refinement is a window washer at the end to clear the lens and enable the medico to get a better look.

PIGMENTED HIVES

R. C. writes: What is urticaria pigmentosa?

REPLY

In this rare condition, small pigmented tumors develop on the skin. The lesions swell and itch like hives (urticaria) whenever rubbed or irritated. The disorder usually develops in the first year of life, although late forms in adults have been reported in the medical literature.

BLOOD POISONING

P. R. writes: What is subacute bacterial endocarditis?

REPLY

This disease involves previously damaged heart valves. Bacteria invade the edges of the valves, producing small inflammatory growths. The microorganisms also get into the blood (septicemia) and, before penicillin, the outlook was almost always fatal.

DROOPING EYELID

Mrs. D. writes: My grandson came into the world with one drooping eyelid. What happened before he was born to cause this defect?

REPLY

This abnormality may be hereditary or caused by injury to the nerve that stimulates the muscle that holds up the lid. It can be corrected surgically.

Sierra Club Tries To Block Nuclear Plant

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Sierra Club says it has asked the Atomic Energy Commission to prevent Pacific Gas and Electric Co. from building a proposed Mendocino nuclear power plant on grounds construction would wiolate antitrust laws.

Attorney David Pesonen said Tuesday the club had filed a petition to intervene in the "antitrust aspects" of PG&E's application for an AEC construction permit for the plant, which would be located on the coast near Point Arena, about 130 miles north of San Francisco.

Pesonen said the Justice Department told the AEC approval of the plant would allow PG&E to maintain "an anticompetitive position" against publicly-owned electrical distribution systems.

The club's petition said PG&E rejected alternative sites that would be safer and cause less potential radioactive and thermal pollution.

Barger Indicted On Tax Charge

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Hell's Angels leader Ralph "Sonny" Barger, now in custody in Oakland on charges of murder, kidnap, assault and arson, has been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of income tax evasion and firearms violations.

Tuesday's indictment said Barger had understated his income for 1967-69 by $44,223. Internal Revenue agents said it was a "net worth" case, meaning the government proposes to show that Barger would not have as many assets as he does if he had paid all taxes due.

The indictment resulted from investigation under the federal government's new narcotic trafficker program in which IRS agents inspect the tax returns of persons suspected of illegal narcotic activity.

Fire Damages Printing Plant

NEW YORK (UPI) — A three alarm fire Tuesday damaged the West Side printing plant which produces feature sections of The New York Times' Sunday edition, but next Sunday's paper is expected to be on the newsstands as usual.

A Times spokesman said any delays stemming from the fire will be made up during the week.

A Fire Department spokesman said the fire started in the duct system and spread through the four-story, 200-by-600-foot brick building. The Times spkesman said most of the damage was confined to the roof.

New TV System In Hotels Catches On

By ALAN BUNCE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — A little box that sits atop hotel TV sets and enables a traveler to tune in current feature films is television's hottest new development. It is putting X-rated films in some rooms, but the trend appears to be away from this sort of fare.

The rush is on among some 19 companies to tap the huge commercial potential of the nascent industry, which combines the technology of cable, closed circuit, and pay TV in its appeal to a highly mobile society.

Today only a handful of hotels and motels are actually operating the devices— most of them in New York — but the present leader in the field, Trans World Communications (a division of Columbia Pictures), expects to be in 29,000 hotel rooms by the end of 1972 and in 160,000 rooms by this time next year.

"By the end of August we'll be in five hotels in New York, eight in Atlanta, seven in Toronto," a company spokesman asserts. "And by the end of '72, we'll be completely in service in Miami, Chicago, and Houston."

"Everybody's building up this hardware," says Paul Klein, head of Computer Cinema, Trans World's major rival, "and as soon as it's all ready it'll be so explosive it'll spread like wildfire. In a year or two virtually every hotel that could have it, will have it."

Trans World already has exclusive five-year contracts with Sheraton, Loew's, Marriott, Stouffer, Knott Hotels, Hyatt House, and other major chains.

Competition to fill the lucrative vacuum has sparked sharp cross-claims about the superiority of the mostly incompatible systems now in use — especially between Trans World and Computer Cinema. But basically they enable a person to order one or more movies without leaving his room.

"You go into your room," explains a Trans World spokesman, "and there on top of the set is the Selectabox, about five by three inches. It's tuned into a dead unused channel in that city. You can watch 'Around Town,' a 30-minute program of highlights of the city you're visiting, and you can also see previews of the two films available on the set that day.

"If you decide to take either film, you phone room service, and before you can hang up, the movie is on. It will play continuously until 7 a.m., so you can tune out to watch regular TV programs if you want to."

While many of these are far from family entertainment, they don't fall into the same pornographic category as some of the fare at New York's Commodore Hotel.

Besides what it calls "family films," the Commodore offers such unedited X-rated films as Russ Meyer's "Vixen" through a company called Players Cinema Systems. A guest chooses from the hotel's "movie menu" and his selection is delivered, player and all, to his room. An on-and-off button allows interruptions at will. But once played, it cannot be seen over.

Whereas families, students, and touring foreign groups tend to go for the "family" films, a Commodore spokesman reports that X-rated movies are popular with businessmen and others and thus lead the non-X titles there.

Despite is apparent success, both Trans World and Computer Cinema are quick to rule out such material for their own enterprises.

"I'd be run out of town," admits Mr. Klein. "Most of the hotels and motels we deal with won't take X-rated films."

Trans World's position is essentially the same, and its contracts preclude movies of that kind. Since these two companies are far ahead of the field, their aversion to pornographic films represent the industry's present major direction in this area. The Commodore calls its present system "an experiment," and even its X-rated movies are not the hardcore "skin-flicks" widely available at theaters within walking distance of the hotel.

And the experiment appears to be near an end, since Trans World states it will be replacing the Players Cinema operation with its own, X-free system in that hotel by next February.

Other companies may try to cash in on pornography, but the National Cable Television Association in Washington says its code of ethics — covering any material a member company produces or distributes — would forbid it among its own ranks.

It's that call to room service used in Trans World's method on which Computer Cinema bases much of its challenge. Its own "two-way" system requires no phoning. The occupant simply decides which of two major motion pictures he wants and then turns to it by means of a dial on the face of the brown box. He even has ten minutes of viewing to make sure he likes the movie. If not he can turn it off or else tune in the other film for another ten-minute period.

"That's how you make money, by letting people sample," maintains Mr. Klein. "Big-time movies are going to be the staple, but only if you are allowed to sample."

Trans World's one-way system was originally prototyped by equipment used in a California pay-TV experiment in 1964. Since then, it has been updated several times.

One sign of the industry's quickening pace is a complaint filed by Sterling Manhattan Cable Television against both Trans World and Computer Cinema with the Federal Communications Commission. New York City's other cable operation — TelePrompTer Corporation — is asking the agency permission to join the proceeding.

Sterling claims the two hotel-pay-TV companies should be required to obtain city franchises before going ahead. Behind the legal action is a recognition by Sterling and other cable companies that Trans World and other outfits could be taking the cream off the top of a rich market which cable people feel they themselves have a right to. Under FCC and other rules, the cable companies have had to fulfill several obligations as a prerequisite to opening up the cable-TV market itself. At the last minute, hotel-pay-TV companies — having done none of this — come in for the big financial killing. And they use cables wherever the clustering of hotels and motels, as in large cities, makes it feasible.

Among other movie-in-hotel operators is Theatervision, Inc., a company affiliated with Storer Broadcasting and headed by Dore Schary, long a prominent Hollywood and Broadway producer and playwright. It plans to place 500 units in hotels and elsewhere as part of a large pay-TV experiment in Sarasota, Fla.

Their little box has a slot on the top in which you stick a magnetically encoded plastic card that looks something like a guitar pick. It selects the proper pay channel. When the channel appears, the card is automatically chewed up into a small ball to prevent reuse. The hotel guest must buy the card — or "ticket" — before he can see the film. The Athena Company, a division of Gulf and Western, runs a system in Little Rock, Ark., similar to the one Computer Cinema tested last year in Newark, N.J.

Congress Gives No Help To Nixon And Prospects Aren't For Change

By COURTNEY R. SHELDON
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon whistles for help from Congress and all that comes back is an echo.

As Nixon closes out his term of office, the Pennsylvania Avenue link between Capitol Hill and the executive office is littered with discarded drafts of presidential legislation.

Conversation with White House officials finds no great hope that the stalemate will be broken in the next few months before the election.

Only revenue sharing, among Nixon's major controversial proposals, is given a chance of enactment.

The prospects for what once was Nixon's No. One priority, a reform of the welfare system, are rated almost zero by White House officials.

Busing legislation is given a chance in the House, but could be headed toward burial in the Senate.

The Whita House has not given up the fight. It may try attaching busing legislation to an unrelated bill the majority of Democrats favor, a White House official says.

The Nixon administration spent its first two years carefully preparing its major legislative agenda and Congress reacts "miserably" in the last two years, one White House aide bemoans.

This is a worrisome hour for White House officials and there also is concern that even a whoppingly large reelection of Nixon still would not give him a congressional majority in 1973.

There is some confidence that Nixon can extract political mileage from accusing the Democratic Congress of obstructionism. And, perhaps, construct the ideological majority in the next Congress.

One White House official commented that the ideological majority that Nixon thought he had after the 1970 election never materialized.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., for example, has not been of as much assistance to the Republicans as anticipated.

Of more consequence to White House strategists at the moment is the failure of Republicans to follow their own President. Sen. Edward Brooke of Massachusetts is the living example.

He sponsored end-the-war amendments which White House officials complain severely undercut Nixon's efforts to negotiate a peace settlement with North Vietnam.

Why does Brooke do this despite pressures from the White House and appeals for Republican unity?

One White House officials says it is because of Brooke's liberal constituency in Massachusetts. Another discounts this and says that Brooke is in such good shape with Massachusetts voters that he doesn't need to shine up his anti-war record.

This is the time for Republicans to stand up and be counted in behalf of Nixon's programs, White House officials insist. They were gratified by the Republican unity on the $4 billion McGovern slash in the defense budget. Only Sen. Robert Packwood of Oregon defected.

The summertime focus has been on disorientation among Democrats and White House officials would prefer it to stay that way.

There have been some congressional actions to which President Nixon can refer fondly in the last four years. Among them was the passage of antiballistic missile legislation, his price and wage control program and the early environmental bills.

The Senate approval of Nixon's treaty with the Soviets curbing defensive missiles, in effect, put the congressional seal of approval on Nixon's policy of seeking reconciliation with Communist Moscow.

The current scrap over the interim agreement on offensive missiles is muddying up this picture but there is White House expectation that it will be cleared up.

Nixon got along better with Congress in that period when it appeared he would have a rough road to re-election. That was when he advanced his welfare program.

As Nixon extended his lead in the polls, there seemed to be a parallel decline in interest in welfare reform. It was not a program which caught fire in Middle America, except the portions which would more restrict welfare recipients.

The far-reaching Nixon plans for governmental reorganization have skidded almost into oblivion. They have the support of many nonpartisans, who think the present division of duties among cabinet agencies is outmoded and serves special rather than public interest. But Congress is reluctant to juggle its traditional committee relations with agencies.

It has taken the support of governors and mayors, many of them Democratic, to keep alive the general revenue-sharing propoals of Nixon.

The Democrats, frequently meandering as do parties who do not control the White House, have tried to leave a trail of social welfare legislation. They have almost always increased appropriations; defense and foreign aid have always been the exceptions.

The country will probably hear from Nixon often in the next few weeks when he criticizes Congress for overspending and failing to pass his legislation.

San Franciscan In Plea Bargain

Douglas Anthony Patricks, 24, of San Francisco, has pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of grand theft in return for a judge's promise of no more than nine months in jail.

Patricks pleaded guilty before Marin Superior Court Judge Samuel W. Gardiner under a plea bargain with Judge Joseph G. Wilson. He is to receive credit for two months already served in Marin County Jail plus credit for time served in a pending narcotics case in Sonoma County.

Patricks was served with a warrant charging him with stealing a 10-speed bicycle valued at $220 from William Coleman of San Anselmo after being arrested July 13 on suspicion of trying to sell stolen auto parts to an off-duty sheriff's lieutenant.

No charge was filed in connection with the auto parts, but felony counts of grand theft and concealing stolen property were filed in the bike case. Those charges were reduced to the misdemeanor as part of the plea bargain.

Warrant Out On San Anselman

A bench warrant has been issued for the arrest of Richard Wendell Jones, 20, of San Anselmo, who failed to appear in Marin Municipal Court on an automobile theft charge.

Judge Robert A. Smallman set bail at $1,000.

Jones was arrested at 12:30 a.m. Aug. 21 at Third and C Streets by San Rafael police. The sedan he was driving was stolen from Thomas R. McGrath of San Rafael, police said.

Olympic Politics Moves Into High Gear

Combined AP & UPI

WASHINGTON — Rep. Dawson Mathis, D-Ga., Tuesday called for an investigation of biased rulings against U.S. athletes by judges from communist countries in the recent Olympic games.

Mathis in a House speech said judges and referees from communist countries deprived U.S. athletes and competitors from other free world nations of earned victories by biased decisions.

Mathis said he is preparing a joint House-Senate resolution which would create a commission to make an extensive investigation of pro-communist bias on the conduct of the Olympic contests.

The 12-member commission would consist of two members each from the House and Senate and eight public members named by the President, Mathis said. He said he intends to introduce the resolution later this week.

Mathis told the House he would "not remain silent and see America's finest young athletes used as fodder for the communist propaganda cannon."

Mathis said he wanted the proposed commission to investigate the role of the U.S. Olympic Committee, to see if it allowed avoidable mixups to occur.

"We had runners who were gold medal possibilities who did not even show up for their heats," Mathis said. "And a young swimmer who was stripped of a gold medal because of the apparent error of a physician (in reference to Terra Linda's Rick DeMont)."

Rep. Robert L.F. Sikes, D-Fla., in another House address accused the communist Olympic judges of following a "straight party line" in decisions they made on the events.

"Some of the decisions were very bad," he said. "One of the worst was the manner in which the basketball championship was handed over to a Russian team."

In Lausanne, Switzerland, Lord Killanin is the new president of the International Olympic Committee and the 20-year reign of Avery Brundage officially is over.

Killanin received the keys to Chauteau de Vity, the IOC headquarters, in a quiet 15-minute ceremony yesterday. In a short speech, he said he would back efforts to "deflate ultranationalism," which had marred past Olympic Games.

The 58-year-old Irish peer told newsmen that the big nations use the Games to show their systems are better than any other.

"I do not think it shows you have a better way of life if you win a lot of medals," Killanin said. He mentioned the United States and the Soviet Union as countries which use the Games for political purposes.

Brundage, 84, who has been the storm center of controversy because of his stands on amateurism, made a brief statement and thanked Lausanne for its hospitality to the IOC during his presidency.

Russian media Tuesday praised their athletes' performances in the Munich Olympics as a victory for the "Socialist" system.

In Moscow, Izvestia, the government newspaper, said the fact the Russians won more gold medals than the Americans proved the "Socialist" system is better.

In Washington, Sen. Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., said the Olympic Games serve no useful purpose and should be abolished.

"Their idea is being dissipated more rapidly with the passing of time," Mansfield said. "Even the refereeing is getting a nationalist tinge."

OLYMPIC CYCLIST

Emile Returns With Bruises

By LEW CODDINGTON

Bicycle racing is supposed to be a non-contact sport, but it would be hard to tell that to Emile Waldteufel, who came back from the Olympic Games looking like he'd been involved in a football scrimmage with his old high school buddy, Elmer Collett of the San Francisco 49ers.

Smiling wryly and sporting a visibly skinned arm, the 27-year-old Mill Valley cyclist recounted his troubles in Munich, where he failed to finish the 200-kilometer (124-mile) individual road race last Wednesday after twice being knocked from his cycle.

"The first spill was at a bottleneck about five miles from the start of the race," he said. "I was on the outside and when the course narrowed I was forced off the road. That wasn't too bad, and I got up and chased.

"At about 35 miles the guy in front of me hit his brakes unexpectedly and we both went down. By the time I got up, the field was gone and even the trucks that follow the races (with extra bicycles, etc.) had passed me.

"I chased again, but then I got a severe pain in my side, and I had to drop out."

Thus ended Marin County's first excursion into Olympic cycling. The disappointed Waldteufel could go to Lawrence, Kan., and seek sympathy from Jim Ryun, who suffered similar misfortune in the 1,500-meter run. Instead, he will go to Asti, Sonoma County, for the Italian Swiss Colony 100 races Sept. 25-28. And thereafter to the Tour of Mexico, Oct. 19-28.

Waldteufel lived a sheltered life at the Olympics. "I didn't get a chance to do any exploring," he said. "I got to Innsbruck (Austria) one day, and that was it. I had hoped to stay in Europe after the Olympics were over and see some friends, but I didn't have enough money.

"I didn't see any events, either, except for one cycling race. Athletes have to buy tickets to any events except their own. I watched most of the Olympics on closed-circuit television.

"I heard about the Arab commando attack, and I was upset, of course, but I didn't see it, and so the feeling wasn't that strong. I was no more exposed to it than you were. It was no different than the murders I read about in the paper here."

Waldteufel was heartened by the performance of the U.S. road racers as a whole. They came in 15th in the 100-kilometer (62-mile) team road race in 2:17:06.4, trailing the Soviet Union by six minutes, and beating such recognized powers as Cuba and France. In the individual race, John Howard was 61st and John Allis 63rd, about 2:36 back of Holland's Hennie Kuiper, who won in 4:17.37.0.

Waldteufel, a professional chef, will remain unemployed until after the Tour of Mexico. He'll then return to work to earn enough money to go to France next year, possibly in April.

"The best competition is in Europe. They ride more aggressively. Sometimes they try to fill holes that aren't even there.

"I'd also like to work in a fine resaurant, but it would be hard to get a job over there unless I became fluent in French. It's even hard to get a job here if you don't know it.

"Cooking is a never-ending field. You're continually learning. The same is true of cycling. I don't feel I've approached my potential yet. Almost everything I've learned so far has been picked up from older cyclists — I think I could learn a lot over there."

It might even be worth a few more scrapes and bruises.

Just Another Guy? Better Look Again

As anybody with half an eyesight can see, that picture below is not a photo of just any guy. It is really Annie Guy, red-headed beauty who will be representing the new Chosen Frozen Ski Club at the Bay Area Council Snow Queen Contest Saturday in San Francisco.

ANNIE GUY

The Chosen Frozen group is a new Marin County ski club for single adults only (darn). Annie, of Sausalito, is a stewardess for American Airlines and when it read 36-24-36 on her contest application I innocently thought they were calling football signals. Miss Guy, 5-foot-8 with green eyes, is also quite a skier, I'm told.

Winner of the Bay Area Council queen contest, starting at 7 p.m. at Holiday Inn, Eighth and Market streets in S.F., will reign over the Ski Show at the Cow Palace Oct. 19-22. She will also qualify for the Far West Ski Association Snow Queen Contest Oct. 7.

FRANKLIN MIEULI, head man in the Golden State Warriors front office, must have overseen the mailing of advance ticket applications. The package has his flamboyant touch in a pamphlet that says: "Warrior Basketball — the hottest deal in sports." Inside is a picture of a man's hand, holding five aces — cards with pictures on them of Jeff Mullins, Cazzie Russell, Clyde Lee, Jim Barnett and Nate Thurmond. Another hand is about to insert a sixth ace with a picture of matinee idol Rick Barry on it. The date Oct. 2 appears on the card, and that is the day that the much traveled Barry was supposed to become property of the Warriors, by court order.

Franklin is confident but Barry still says, "I won't go," and remains in New York where he would rather stay and continue a radio show and not play basketball. But things will change, says Mieuli.

Anyway, Barry or not, ticket prices have gone up 50 cents to $6, but youngsters 16 and under can get the same Oakland Coliseum seat for $3.

AFTER READING reports about how great the striped bass fishing was in San Francisco Bay, I finally got a chance to see for myself the other day on Keith Fraser's boat. Although the fish were small, up to five pounds, we got our limits fishing near the Sisters Islands. But limits are common for Fraser, who has been tabbed "Lord of the Sea," by some of the regulars out of Loch Lomond harbor. Keith was so impressed by this nickname he's getting tee shirts emblazoned with it so all the world can see.

EVER WONDER WHAT a pro football player does the day before a game? In the case of 49ers Mel Phillips and Randy Beisler, they'll be signing autographs and talking to kids from 1 to 4 p.m. Saturday in front of Roos Atkins at the Northgate Shopping Center in Terra Linda.

BOB LEE, 55, of San Rafael, has the distinction of being the oldest entrant of 66 in the second annual Clear Lake Marathon Sept. 23. This unique event starts at 7 a.m. with a seven-mile run from Lucerne to Indian Beach Resort in Glenhaven, then comes a three-mile swim to the Konocti Harbor Inn, a 3000-foot climb up Mount Konocti, back down the mountain and the three-mile swim back to Glenhaven.

Olympic Doctors Blamed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Physicians handling the U.S. Olympic team have been blamed for failing to note an illegal drug ingredient taken by American swimmer Rick DeMont of Terra Linda.

Olympic officials disqualified DeMont's victory in the 400-meter freestyle because the anti-asthmatic drug he was taking contained ephedrine, a stimulant banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dr. Frederick H. Meyers, a physician and pharmacologist at the University of California Medical Center, said Tuesday U.S. team doctors presumably were aware of DeMont's condition and should have recommended "alternative ways" to treat the asthmatic condition.

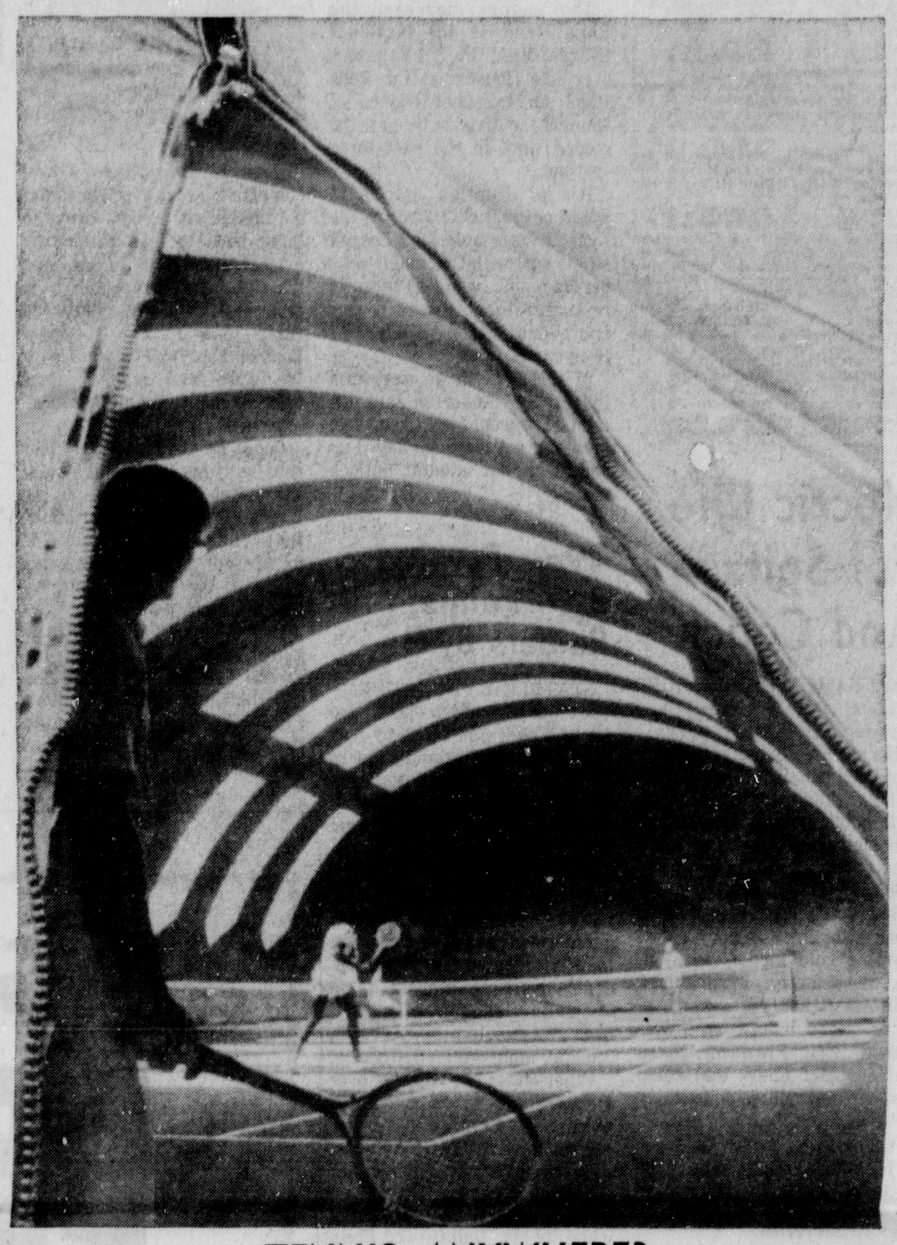
Meyers said Marax, the drug used by DeMont can be detected in urine when taken orally. But he added there are many other anti-asthmatic agents—as effective as ephedrine—which could be inhaled and not show up in a urinalysis. He said one of these inhalers should have been given to DeMont.

DeMont said his personal physician prescribed Marax and "didn't even know I was going to be given a doping test."

"The Olympic team doctors—they're the ones who goofed," said the teen-ager. "I had everything down on a medical form. They should have pickd it out."

For an athlete of DeMont's caliber," said Meyers, "ephedrine would have only a minor effect on his performance."

Meyers said ephedrine was "chemically and pharmacoligically related" to amphetamines, stimulant drugs, but it was not strictly an amphetamine. He said ephedrine's "effect on the heart and the bronchials is comparatively great. Its stimulant effect is comparatively small."



TENNIS, ANYWHERE?

For tennis players who can't wait for good weather, there is now a portable, zip-together, inflatable court cover being used in Houston. The plastic cover can be inflated in about 20 minutes with a large window fan, and encloses an area 50 feet wide, 120 feet long and 28½ feet high. Players enter through zipper doorways (shown).

Big Growth Of Soccer In Marin

If soccer starts growing as rapidly across the country as it has the past year in Marin County, Pete Rozele might be looking for a job in the near future.

At least, that's the impression one gets from talking to Bob Braghetta, founder of the Marin Youth Soccer Association, which has tripled in size and extended its tentacles outward from Ross to encompass Kentfield, Greenbrae and Mill Valley.

The youngsters will begin play this week and next, with the girls' league in Ross playing its opener tomorrow at 5 p.m. on Ross Common. There will be two games each week night, six on Saturdays and three on Sundays in the next two months in Ross.

Mill Valley kicks off its season Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at Tamalpais High School with two games between the locals and the International Soccer Club of Westlake.

Kentfield and Greenbrae begin the weekend of Sept. 22-23.

"Last year (the MYSA's first) we had 10 teams in Ross, one in Mill Valley and one in Greenbrae," said Braghetta. "This year we have 26 in Ross, including eight girls' teams, six in Kentfield, four or six in Greenbrae, four in Mill Valley."

Braghetta dropped another eye-popping statistic: about 430 players are involved in the various leagues, compared with 126 a year ago.

Some 52 adult coaches have been trained with the help of Bill Monti, soccer coach at San Rafael High. "It's a labor of love," said Braghetta. "The way district boundaries are drawn, none of the youngsters will go to San Rafael."

Raiders' Lamonica On Bench

OAKLAND (AP) — Quarterback Kenny Stabler, relegated to the bench through most of his first two National Football league seasons, moves into the starting job for the 1972 opener Sunday.

Coach John Madden announced yesterday that Stabler will start at Pittsburgh instead of veteran signal-caller Daryle Lamonica.

The Raiders also announced that three players have been cut to reach the mandatory limit of 40 players. Released were defensive back Bill West, offensive tackle Mike Taylor and veteran wide receiver Drew Buie.

Giants Triumph Behind Bryant

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The possibility that Ron Bryant would be the pitching leader for the San Francisco Giants this year was, at best, remote when the season started.

But Bryant has proved to be just that. He tossed a four-hitter over 10 innings to defeat the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 Tuesday night.

"I felt like I could have pitched a lot longer," Bryant said. "It's the cool weather that keeps you feeling strong."

Bryant picked up his 12th victory to just about assure him of the club leadership. The next best pitcher is Sam McDowell with eight. He goes for No. 9 against the Dodgers in the final game of the series tonight.

Bryant used "a super fastball" to subdue the Dodgers. "It's the best I've had since I got out of the hospital," he said. Bryant spent two weeks in the hospital with viral pneumonia just after the All-Star Game.

The Giants scored the winning run on a throwing error by shortstop Bill Russell with two out in the 10th. Bobby Bonds led off the inning with a walk off reliever Jim Brewer. Tito Fuentes moved him to second with a two-strike sacrifice bunt and Chris Speier then was walked intentionally.

Ken Henderson popped out for the seond out but Jim Ray Hart hit a tricky hopper to shortstop. Bonds raced to third on the grounder and headed for the plate as Russell threw to first. The throw was high and Bonds easily beat Wes Parker's relay to the plate.

"I was watching the ball and Jim Ray," Bonds said. "I knew I could score if he beat it out or the throw was bad."

Hart hit his fifth homer to account for the Giants' first run. The Dodgers got an unearned run in the fifth inning and Frank Robinson homered for the other.

Robinson's homer was the 521st of his career to tie him with Ted Williams for seventh place on the alltime list.

The Giants also announced Manager Charlie Fox has been rehired for the 1973 season. It will be his third with the Giants. He replaced Clyde King in May 1970.

Fox has been in the Giants' organization for 31 years, the last 25 as a manager and scout.

A's Burst Out Of A Slump

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI)—Bursting out of a prolonged batting slump, the Oakland Athletics rattled 16 hits Tuesday night to down Minnesota 7-4.

Coupled with a victory by the Chicago White Sox, the A's remained two games ahead of the Pale Hose in their struggle for the American League West pennant.

Newcomer Matty Alou paced the A's victory by driving in four runs with a two-run single in the third, a sacrifice fly in Oakland's four-run fifth and another run-scoring single in the eighth.

It was the best offensive showing by the A's in weeks and brought hopes to Manager Dick Williams that the hitters will now keep up with the pitchers who have been carrying the team for a month.

Jim Hunter, seeking his 20th victory, started for the A's but was bombedout with a four-run fourth inning capped by Harmon Killebrew's three-run homer, his 24th.

Reliever Darold Knowles took over for Hunter in the fifth and grabbed his fifth win in six decisions with five innings of one-hit pitching.

The teams conclude their four-game series tonight with Oakland looking for an even split with a victory. In a battle of righthanders, John Odom (13-5) of the A's goes against Dave Goltz (3-0).

Willard Won't Start For 49ers Sunday

REDWOOD CITY (AP) — San Francisco 49ers fullback Ken Willard, out three weeks with a knee injury, was scheduled to resume contact work today.

"It won't be a real scrimmage, but he'll get bumped around a little by the linemen," Coach Dick Nolan said yesterday.

Willard, who has missed only one starting assignment in his eight year career, is expected to be reactivated for Sunday's game but won't start. Nolan gave second-year pro Larry Schreiber the nod at fullback.

The 49ers placed four men on waivers yesterday to reach the 40-player limit and two of them were claimed. Running back Joe Orduna, 1971 second round draft choice from Nebraska was picked up by the New York Giants, and center Willie Parker, No. 3 pick in '71, was claimed by the Los Angeles Rams. Both were on last year's 49er taxi squad.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

A Topsy-Turvy Eastern Race

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Confusing continues to be the bestword to describe the topsy-turvy American League Eastern Division race.

The four contenders are playing each other head on now and they're still sticking to each other like glue.

With just three weeks to go—after New York's 3-2 victory over Boston and Detroit's 3-2 victory over Baltimore Tuesday night—the four teams are back to within one game of each other.

Boston is still in first with New York and Baltimore a half game back and Detroit a game back.

Two factors make the race even more difficult to handicap than usual. For the first time, the teams don't play an even number of games because of the players' strike so the pennant could be decided by a half game. Detroit plays 156 games while Boston and New York play 155 and Baltimore plays 154.

Also, Boston has a rained out game with Kansas City that hasn't been rescheduled yet—those two clubs have no other games left against each other—and the timing of that game if it's necessary could be vital.

Boston blew an opportunity to get some breathing room when it was beaten by New York as the Yankees snapped Luis Tiant's streak of seven consecutive complete game victories. The Yanks touched him for eight hits and picked up four walks—one intentional—in 5 1-3 innings to beat Tiant.

Boston manager Eddie Kasko thought the Yanks got the edge from plate umpire Jim Odom. "Tiant was pitching at a plate the size of a thimble," Kasko claimed, "and Tiant was visibly affected by it." Sparky Lyle, obtained from Boston in a deal for Danny Cater this spring, stymied the Red Sox on one hit over the final three innings to gain his 33rd save—one short of the American League record—as he wrapped up Fritz Peterson's 15th win.

Manager Ralph Houk was beaming at the Yanks' spot in the race. "We're right where I wanted to be at this point. We just came off a road trip to Baltimore, Boston and Detroit and I said if we were two games out when we came back, we'd be OK. And now we're only a game out."

But Manager Billy Martin of the Tigers was also confident. "Everybody tells us how good Baltimore is and how good Boston is and how good New York is but we're still right in there."

Light-hitting Eddie Brinkman hit a two-run homer and Dick McAuliffe doubled in the deciding run in the seventh inning to give Detroit the win over Baltimore. Woody Fryman, a National League castoff, worked 8 1-3 to gain his sixth victory since coming to Detroit in August. John Hiller, who retired Boog Powell and Paul Blair with the bases loaded to end the game, got the save.

In the other games, Chicago downed Kansas City 6-0, Oakland downed Minnesota 7-4, Milwaukee swept a doubleheader from Cleveland 4-3 and 4-2 as the second game was rained out after eight innings and Texas blanked California 3-0.

Hectic Life For Spitz And Coach

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Life isn't the same these days for Mark Spitz.

For years Spitz religiously practiced his swimming strokes in long, grueling workouts with little public notice. Then he was ridiculed for not living up to his predictions of greatness in the 1968 Olympic games.

But that's all changed now. Since winning a record seven Olympic gold medals in Munich, the sinewy, mustachioed Californian has received thousands of fan letters, an invitation to visit President Nixon and contract offers that could reap several million dollars.

"It's really been an experience," Spitz said Tuesday. "The big guys have something in mind. They see dollar signs in me, so I guess that's why they're interested."

"Mark has received about 10,000 letters and cards," said Spitz' coach, Sherm Chavoor. "He's been offered contracts from oil companies, milk companies, clothing manufacturers, TV series, pool suppliers—everything you can think of. He was even offered $25,000 to shave off his moustache for a shaving commercial," Chavoor said.

"I might turn that one down," Spitz remarked, saying he'd miss his well-known whiskers.

Spitz and Chavoor are trying not to miss any trick in collecting the rewards for Olympic success. For example, Spitz declined to pose for photographs with his seven gold medals so he could sell exclusive rights for the pictures to Stern Magazine in Germany.

"I'm going out of my mind," said Chavoor. "We're going to Hawaii and get out of this rat race. We have to relax for a while. You wouldn't believe the amount of letters we still haven't opened."

Sparky Anderson Never Satisfied

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Some people are never satisfied—like Sparky Anderson for instance.

Johnny Bench drove in five runs with a grand slam homer and a fielder's choice to lead the Cincinnati Reds to a 7-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Tuesday night.

Cincinnati scored four runs in the first inning on Bench's second grand slam of his career and added three runs in the ninth to ice the contest.

The victory increased the Reds' lead in the National League West to 7 1-2 games over idle Houston as the Reds stand an excellent chance of winning the division title for the second time in the past three seasons.

It's a situation managers would envy. Right? Wrong! The Reds' comfortable lead doesn't sit too well with Cincinnati skipper Anderson, who was recently rewarded for his team's fine effort this season with a new two-year contract.

"I sort of wish we were in a tight race," Anderson said. "A tight race would help keep momentum, get the team keyed up and keep our mental outlook good."

But the Pittsburgh Pirates, runaway winners of their division in the National League East, are faced with a similar problem. "Even Pittsburgh is not playing as well as they are capable of playing because they're so far ahead," Anderson added.

There just might be a couple of managers in the American League East who would gladly change places with Sparky.

In other National League games Pittsburgh blanked Chicago 7-0, New York edged Philadelphia 4-3, Montreal trounced St. Louis 7-2, and San Francisco edged Los Angeles 3-2 in 10 innings.

Dock Ellis and Dave Giusti combined for an eight-hit shutout and Richie Hebner drove in three runs to lead Pittsburgh over second place Chicago. The triumph, the Pirates' 13th in their last 15 games, increased their lead in the National League East to 13 games over the Cubs and reduced their title-clinching "magic number" to seven.

Coco Laboy drove in four runs with his first home run of the season and a double as the Expos downed the Cardinals. Both clubs were tied for the fourth spot going into the game but with the victory Montreal now has a one-game edge.

Don Money's first error in 49 games set up a pair of unearned runs in the first inning and the Mets went on to down Philadelphia. Third baseman Money had handled 162 chances through 48 games without an error.

49ers Favored By 4 Points; Raiders By 3

STATELINE, Nev. (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers are favored over San Diego by four points and the Oakland Raiders are picked to beat Pittsburgh by three, according to National Football League odds released yesterday by Harrah's Tahoe Racebook.

Kansas City was favored by four over defending American Conference champion Miami in their first meeting since the double-overtime playoff game last fall. Minnesota was picked over Washington by three in Monday night's televised game.

Other odds: Los Angeles over New Orleans by 12, Cincinnati over New England by three, Green Bay and Cleveland even, New York Jets over Buffalo by seven, Detroit over New York Giants by 10, Atlanta over Chicago by six, Dallas over Philadelphia by 15, Baltimore over St. Louis by seven, and Denver over Houston by four.

Christiansen Sees Rough Game Ahead

OAKLAND (UPI) —New Stanford Coach Jack Christiansen feels the Cardinals are in for a tough one Saturday against San Jose State.

"San Jose is a big, strong, active team," said Christiansen. "I believe they're a better team than last year (when they upset Stanford 13-12). If they have an All-Conference running back (Dale Knott) who can't start, you know they're pretty good."

Spartan Coach Dewey King told the weekly luncheon of the Northern California Football Writers that he was "excited" about Saturday's impending struggle at Stanford Stadium.

"We don't know much about Stanford," he said. "It has a new staff and a lot of new personnel."

This will be Stanford's 1972 opener while San Jose State came from ehind in the fourth quarter last week to beat Santa Clara 33-28 in its opener.

Saturday's contest matches two classy quarterbacks—Mike Boryla of Stanford against sophomore Craig Kimball of the Spartans.

Kimball completed 15-of-30 passes for 274 yards and three touchdowns and ran for another to be voted top offensive player of the week by the writers.

Defensively, the writers cited Pacific guard Jack Carter and tackle John Inglehart of Hayward State. Carter, a 240-pound junior college transfer, anchored a UOP line that limited powerful Washington to 61 yards rushing in a 13-6 Husky win.

Christiansen said Stanford "should be about 100 per cent physically" for the Spartans with running backs John Winesberry and Reggie Sanderson and defensive end Pierre Perrault coming back from minor leg injuries.

Bronco coach Pat Malley said the loss to San Jose State was "tough for us to swallow." He hopes Santa Clara can rebound against Sacramento State Saturday.

Coach Chester Caddas of UOP said the Tigers lost quarterback Carlos Brown for the year to a knee injury. He was replaced by freshman Bruce Keplinger "and if anything happens to him, we may go to the single wing."

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Extra Know-How Needed At Night

Boating at night can be very exciting . . . things are so calm and quiet after a hectic day . . . yet many small boaters resist taking boats out after dark. I think perhaps it's because night boating requires just a little bit of extra know-how, and a better understanding of the rules and regulations.

The law says that all motorboats and sailboats must carry navigation lights from sunset to sunrise. It is not a daytime requirement, but failure to have lights at night could bring a $500 fine.

Most boatmen know . . . some rather vaguely . . . that navigation lights consist of a red light on the port side (left) and a green light on the starboard side (right). But this is not enough. To understand navigation lights thoroughly everyboater should get a copy of the Coast Guard Recreational Boating Guide. It's booklet CG-340 for 60 cents from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington D.C. 20402.

The fact that lights and night navigation concern many boaters is indicated by some of the questions they ask:

Q. Isn't there a new rule about sailboat lights?

A. Yes. It became effective about two years ago with the revision in International Rules of the Road. Sailboats over 40 feet may now (it's optional) display a red over green light at the masthead as well as the red and green side lights. It's explained in the Coast Guard booklet.

Q. Can I use a searchlight on my boat?

A. Yes, as long as it is not shone on another boat so as to interfere with the vision of the operator of that boat.

Q. What lights do canoes require at night?

A. Canoes and rowboats (unpowered craft) do not require navigation lights, but a white light must be shown if there is danger of a collision. A flashlight will do . . . and no one would go out without a flashlight, or would they?

Q. Can I turn off all lights while at anchor?

A. Yes, if your boat is under 65 feet long and is in a recognized, anchorage area. But if it is anchored in a navigable waterway it must show a white light visible all around the horizon (360 degrees) bright enough to be visible for two miles if in International waters or Western rivers (Mississippi waters) but only for a mile on inland waters or the Great Lakes.

Q. The channel into my dock is hard to see at night. Any suggestions?

A. Most hardware stores sell a fluorescent reflective tape (kids put it on their bicycles). Put strips of it on stakes to mark your channel. Put some on corners of docks and other points to be marked. The tape glows in the beam of a flashlight and puts everything in place.

Q. I'm told that fishing at night without a light is illegal. Is it?

A. You can fish all night in total darkness (in some states) if you like. But the moment another boat approaches and there is danger of a collision, the law requires you to show a white light such as a flashlight.

Q. What's the basic reasoning behind the red and green navigation light system?

A. Simply, it's this: If you can see another boat's green light, it's a "go" signal, you have the right of way. But if you see only his red light . . . this means he's approaching from your right and the Rules of the Road give him right of way . . . it's a stop signalfor you. If you can see only his stern white light, it means you are overtaking him and it's a warning to keep out of his way.

Q. Do large ocean ships follow the same rules for navigation lights?

A. Basically, yes. But there's much more to it, and if you plan to operate in the company of big mercantile ships, dredges, barges, tug boats or pilot boats you had better get a good text book. They all carry different identifying lights.

Saskatchewan Rallies To Win

VANCOUVER (UPI)—George Reed scored three touchdowns Tuesday—two in the final seven minutes-to give the Saskatchewan Roughriders a 24-13 win over the British Columbia Lions.

The victory moved Regina into a second place tie with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the Canadian Football League Western Conference. The Lions, who have now lost five straight, are last with a 1-7 record.

Attendance Falls In Cal League

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California League averaged 717 fans per game in 1972, official figures showed today.

Cal League President Eddie Mulligan announced a paid attendance of 358,556 — about 24,000 less than last year when the average figure per game was 770.

Mulligan pointed out hopefully that attendance averaged only 553 in April-May but closed with 839 in August.

San Jose lost some 4,000 fans but still led with 77,581 in attendance. Reno lost 8,253 to 22,288. Stockton and Lodi trailed with 22,125 and 21,532 respectively, but both showed more fans than 1971.

PREP FOOTBALL PROSPECTS

Terra Linda Head Coach Hopes For Restoration

By LEW CODDINGTON
(First in a series on Marin County Athletic League football prospects.)

Don Lucas will be attempting in 1972 to duplicate a feat that first was accomplished in 1660.

Like Charles II of England, Lucas will be trying to bring about the Restoration — to eliminate a usurper from the throne and reinstate the rightful ruler. And like Charles, Lucas appears to have the army to do it.

Terra Linda High School, for which Lucas coaches football, won or tied for the Marin County Athletic League championship five consecutive years. Last season, however, the Trojans were knocked down to a third-place tie at 4-2, while San Rafael and Novato assumed Cromwell's role and took away the crown.

This year, Terra Linda returns 22 lettermen, 13 of whom were starters last season. The Trojans have as many lettermen as Marin Catholic has varsity ballplayers.

Among the returnees is Steve Withers, an all-league linebacker in 1971 as a junior. "He is just temendous," said Lucas.

Another outstanding returnee is lineman Larry Madden, currently hobbled by an ankle condition resulting from an earlier broken leg. "Madden on one leg is equal to a lot of players on two," said Lucas, who added he intends to play Madden in spots in the opener at San Rafael High Friday at 8 p.m. against Concord, and hopes the lineman will be ready for the league opener Sept. 30 against Novato.

Jeff Leaird apparently has won the first-string quarterback job from Kevin Kirby, because of Leaird's ability to command the ground game. "We won't be pass-oriented at all this year," said Lucas. "We will operate out of a true Wishbone, with Withers, Sean Casey and Pete Corbett at the running back spots."

Kirby, Lucas added, "eventually will be as good mechanically as Kevin Donohoe," the talented transfer quarterback who last year enabled Terra Linda to lead the MCAL in passing yardage.

Lucas said he had been pleasantly surprised in practice by the play of four juniors and a senior. He cited linebacker-fullback Tim Keith, linebacker Dale Smith, defensive end Bruce Bollen and tight end Jay Love among the juniors and defensive back Rick Tallariti as the senior.

"Most of the others have been true to form," said Lucas. Lettermen not already mentioned include defensive back Greg Beltran, lineman Larry Chiaroni, quarterback Mike Corrick, end Wes Emerson, lineman Mike Finn, linebacker Will Hamilton, lineman Jon Loberg, back Scott Logan, running back-linebacker Doug Long, end-linebacker Steve Miles, back Paul Mooney, end-back Rich Nicholes, back Larry Offenbach, tackle Dan Skeen, guard-linebacker Bob Spain, an back Dan Walsh.

With an army like that, Charles II is ready to come out of exile.

PRO FOOTBALL

Several Veterans Get Ax

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Leave it to the final day of cuts to reduce hulking football players to fretting working men afraid of getting the pink slip from the boss.

There were a few surprises and one not too surprising after the 26 National Football Teams pared down their rosters Monday to the required season limit of 40 players.

The more notable cuts of veterans included one of the original Dolphins, seven-year safety Bob Petrella, while the Cleveland Browns cut Ernie Kellermann, a defensive back who has been with the club since 1965.

The Chargers and the NFL have meanwhile come to a decision of sorts on Duane Thomas, the highly talented but missing running back.

San Diego Coach Harland Svare announced that the NFL had ruled that while Thomas is still a member of the team, he does not count on the 40-player limit because of "a rule that prevents guys from coming in, looking around at things and then taking off."

The Philadelphia Eagles placed kicker Happy Feller on the taxi squad and four Detroit Lions—Nick Eddy, Ken Lee, Charlie Brown and Henry Stuckey—were waived.

Buffalo was adding players instead of dropping them with the addition of New York's first draft choice of 1969, offensive tackle Dave Foley and Baltimore's defensive tackle Don Croft.

Houston trimmed Bob Young, Walter Highsmith, Dennis Hughes and Joe Bullard and Minnesota waived Gayle Knief, Kreg Kapitan, Carl Winfrey and Jerry Patton. Pat Studstill was released by New England along with Charlie Gogolak, John Huard and Greg Slough.

San Diego chopped Ed Philpott, Chuck Detwiler, Ralph Miller and Jim Fassel, quarterback.

Los Angeles cut John Walton, Jim Massey and Eddie Phillips, the former Texas quarterback trying to make the pros as a safetyman, while Cincinnati trimmed Wille Lee Jones, Tim Beamer, Al Randolph and Nick Roman.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Good Guesswork Is The Result Of Necessity At Bridge Table

Necessity is the mother of good guesswork at the bridge table. When you can make your contract only if a missing card is at your right, play the hand as though you could see that card in your right-hand opponent's hand. There is no profit in guessing that the card is where it will do you no good.

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	Double	Pass	3 ♣

Opening lead -- ♠ 7

EAST COVERS

West opens the seven of spades, obviously his top card in East's bid suit. You play the ten of spades from dummy, East covers with the queen, and you play the six from your hand.

If East continues with a low spade, you will let it ride to dummy's jack. (The idea of dropping the six is to coax East to play you for A-6 of spades.)

East actually sees through your little plot and switches to the deuce of hearts. Now you must guess whether to play the king or jack. Which?

The odds are that East has the ace since he has almost all of the missing high cards for his opening bid. However, it is possible that West has the ace of hearts and that East has all of the other missing high cards.

CORRECT GUESS

Nevertheless, you play the king of hearts because of necessity. If West has the ace of hearts you cannot stop him from gaining the lead. He will return a spade to finish the job of setting up his partner's suit, knocking out your ace. You will then be down unless the four missing clubs break 2-2.

Your chance to make the contract is poor if West has the ace of hearts. But if East has the ace of hearts, you are a shoo-in. So you put up the king of hearts as your best chance to keep West out of the lead.

KING WINS

The king wins the trick, of course, and you play a low club from your own hand and another low club from the dummy. The opponents can take two hearts, but you will then regain the lead and lead another club to run the rest of the suit.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 7 3
♥ - Q 9 6 3
♦ - 7 6 3 2
♣ - Q J 10.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

You would respond if partner opened with any other suit since then your spade doubleton would be an asset. When partner bids spades, however, the doubleton in that suit is a liability; and the hand is too weak for a response.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Dear Mr. Quiz:

I was surprised to read that Lyndon B. Johnson celebrated his 64th birthday (Aug. 27) in secret. Reporters could not find out where he was or what he was doing. What do you think accounted for this? Signed: W.H.C.

Dear C:

Some people like to celebrate their birthdays quietly with their families. Last year the people of France went crazy over Pablo Picasso's 90th birthday (Oct. 25) with gala celebrations everywhere. But Picasso kept in seclusion at his home in Mougins and refused to come out to acknowledge the tributes. When Sir Laurence Olivier became 65 years old (May 22) he was making the movie, "Sleuth," at the Pinewood Studios, outside London. After a small party for him on the set, Sir Laurence took the leftovers home in a doggie bag. So you see, the quiet birthday often is the happiest for a really famous person. Former President Johnson, after years of political battles, may have had his happiest birthday this year, surrounded by close friends and family in the quiet seclusion of his Texas ranch.

FAMOUS BIRTHDAYS TODAY

Sherwood Anderson (1876-1941), American fiction writer and poet.

Mel Torme (1925-), Hollywood actor and singer.

1. Sherwood Anderson, a Negro, authored the best seller, "Poor Whitey."

2. Mel Torme dislikes being called "The Velvet Fog" and specifies that fact in his contracts.

3. Roald Dahl wrote the hit movie, "Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory."

Railroad Excursions Growing Like Crazy

NEW YORK (AP) — The old-fashioned railroad excursion has not only been revived but it is growing like crazy.

"We sell out almost every seat on every excursion," say a spokesman for Amtrak, the government's operating arm for passenger rail traffic. "The only thing keeping us from selling more is a lack of cars."

Amtrak offers a wide variety of tours, from a one-day, New York-to-Washington jaunt for half the usual fare to a 15-day Chicago-Los Angeles trip. The western one has a return via San Francisco and Reno and costs about 20 per cent less than the regular rail fare.

The longer tours are generally offered by Amtrak in cooperation with a regular tour firm. The tour firms arrange for meals, hotels and sightseeing buses, while Amtrak furnishes the trains. The tours are sold for an all-inclusive price which makes it difficult to say just how much is for rail passage and how much for the other features.

However, one recent traveler dicovered that he could spend $618 for two people for a trip from New York to Los Angeles and back on the regular trains. But a longer trip, fares only, on an excursion ticket was only $584 for two. This called for a 9-day trip via Chicago, Denver, San Francisco and Los Angeles but did not include hotels and meals along the way.

Another Amtrak innovation is a rail tour to Florida, including a rental car for seven days. The compact car is included with the purchase of three train tickets, while four tickets will get a full-size car for the same one-week period. The car can be picked up at any of five Florida cities and returned at any of the others.

Unlike the old railroad excursions, many of the longer ones can be started on any day.

However, some of the family plans for Florida must be used only during the week, to take advantage of the lower price for a wife and children. Also, the rates on some routes are higher than on others: for instance, sleeping cars called "slumber coaches" are available on coach fares on some railroads.

'WOMEN'S LIB' AT SEARS AUTOMOTIVE CENTER

This is not just a publicity gimmick. The women attendants at the gasoline pumps are for real at the new Sears Automotive Center, which opened today at Northgate Mall adjacent to where Sears Roebuck and Co.'s big new department store will open for business sometime next month. Happily servicing the "Baja Bug" while driver Robert Bonino watches appreciatively are (in foreground, testing tire) Linda Schlosser, and (rear, from left) Suzanne Sinclair, Marilyn Low and Arlene Springstead. Market Slightly higher In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) —Prices moved slightly higher during the first two hours today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Advances barely led declines, 576 to 508, among the 1,520 issues crossing the tape. Turnover in the first two hours amounted to more than 4,540,000 shares.

Many analysts said both institutions and the public are staying on the sidelines. There is little interest in the market and little background news to spark interest.

American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue, up 1-8 at 44 3-4 on 89,000 shares.

Prices also were slightly higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. Granite Management Services was the most active issue, off 1-8 at 6 1-8 on 24,500 shares.

Activity on the Big Board was centered in the glamors, electronics and computers, a pattern that has existed most of the year. Schlumberger gained 2 1-4, Ara Services 1. Polaroid lost 1 1-4.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

National Distillers Is Good For Capital Gains

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have shares of National Distillers (NYSE) which I bought at $8. I also own Southern Bell 6 per cent bonds and you recently mentioned the 9.05s. Would you sell Nat'l Distillers to increase income and buy the 9.05s? — S.M.

A. Unless income is your only objective, no. While you would substantially increase your current return by switching, you would limit capital gains opportunities. And at this point, National Distillers is an attractive vehicle for such. Also, on your original investment in Nat'l Distillers you are getting a healthy 11.3 per cent return.

The company has become not only a major distiller but a manufacturer involved in chemicals, metals and textiles. The firm's fastest growing and most glamorous operation is the Almaden Vineyards. California's leading wine producer, Almaden is benefitting from a sociological trend in the U.S. toward drinking more wine. According to some forecasts, U.S. consumption will reach 400 million gallons annually by 1980, up over 50 per cent from present levels. Because of its ongoing cyclical recovery and its participation in the accelerating wine business, investor interest has picked up in National Distillers. In view of this, shares should be retained.

Q. I have invested heavily in Morton-Norwich (NYSE), paying $39 a share. I have a sizable loss; should I sell or retain? — H.T.

A. Morton-Norwich stock has recovered some of its lost ground in recent sessions, largely in response to improved operating results. For the fiscal year ended June 30, the company reported an 11 per cent earnings gain to a record $1.95 share from the depressed $1.75 of the previous year. Sales advanced 6 per cent to $367.7 million. All product divisions contributed to this improvement with the exception of the ice control salt segment (about 6 per cent of net).

Despite pricing problems in drugs — such as Morton's L-dopa and Furadantin — further growth is expected in the future, with profits projected to expand at a 7 per cent annual rate. As this growth pattern is extended, stock should move higher and may be retained for additional appreciation.

New Board Asked

BURLINGAME (BW) — The California Trucking Industry has called on the state to establish a board of technological evaluation in Sacramento to help legislators and voters make sound decisions when faced with proposed laws which involve scientific and technological matters.

Record School Spending Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. schools will spend a record $90.5 billion this school year to provide classrooms and instruction for 60.4 million students enrolled in kindergarten through graduate school, the U.S. Office of Education estimated today.

The agency's annual back-to school survey said spending by public and private schools would increase 6.3 per cent from last year's $85.1 billion for such educational costs as land, buildings and equipment; teacher and personnel salaries; busing; payment of utility bills, and health, food and other services.

Despite the rising costs of education, school enrollment will show its smallest increase in 28 years because of a declining U.S. birth rate, said Vance Grant of the government's National Center for Educational Statistics.

Most of the overall increase of 400,000 pupils this year will take place in colleges and universities, the report said. Total enrollment in elementary and high schools is expected to decline by 200,000 from last year's level. A gain of 300,000 high school pupils will be offset by a decline of 500,000 children in kindergarten through the eighth grade, the survey predicted.

Grant said the decline in elementary enrollments is due to an annual drop in births since the "baby boom" peaked in 1961 with 4.3 million live births. The number of births picked up slightly after 1968 but dipped lastyear. The decline is expected to continue to a 3.4 million level this year, he said.

"This has certainly had an impact on the teaching situation," Grant said in an interview. "With fewer children coming into school at the same time more graduates are leaving college with teaching degrees, the so-called teacher shortage is really a thing of the past." He said, however, that certain local teacher shortages may exist.

The report said that colleges will enroll about 9 million, up 6 per cent from last fall. At the elementary and high school level, public schools will enroll 46.2 million pupils and private schools 5.2 million. Not included in the survey were students attending private trade and business schools and undergraduates enrolled in programs that do not lead to degrees.

Public schools will employ 20,000 more teachers than they did last year, a total of 2.1 million while the private school instructional staff of 220,000 will remain unchanged, the report said.

Classical Guitar Evening Set

An evening of classical guitar will be presented by Paul Bertolli of San Rafael Friday at 8 p.m. in Alumni Hall of San Domenico School, 1500 Butterfield Road, Sleepy Hollow.

Bertolli, winner of last year's Marin Music Chest scholarship, will perform compositions of Frescobaldi, J. S. Bach, Sylvius Weiss, Fernando Sor, Antonio Vivaldi, Jorge Crespo, Isaac Albeniz and John Duarte.

The Vivaldi number is a Concerto for Guitar and String Quartet featuring Parry Boggs, Terry Baume, violins; Judy Hobbs, viola, and Wendy Tomlinson, cello. Concert is open to the public without charge.

Policemen Want The Chief Fired

EMERYVILLE, Calif. (UPI) —The police association of this industrial community wants ts chief fired, and members voted Tuesday to give up a pay increase toward that end.

Sgt. David Reno, president of the Police Officers Association, said 15 of 20 members voted to "relinquish" a proposed pay increase if the City Council would fire Police Chief James F. Donovan.

The sergeant said the loss of salary was "worth it to get rid of a chief whose term in office thus far has proved unsuccessful."

Donovan called the grievance statement "politically motivated" and said the POA smacked of "a police state run by the policemen."

Berkeley Council Favors Reparations

BERKELEY (UPI) — The Berkeley City Council was on record today as not only in opposition to South Africa's apartheid racial policies, but in favor of U.S. companies paying reparations to that nation's minority citizens hurt by those policies.

The council voted 7-1 Tuesday night to condemn the apartheid and then voted 5-1 with two abstentions for the reparations. It also voted to investigate whether any Berkeley firms are dealing with South Africa.

Hamilton Field Use Is Program Subject

Controversial plans for joint military-civilian use of Hamilton Air Force Base will be discussed at 9 a.m. tomorrow on KTIM's "Sounding Board."

Speakers will be Benjamin R. Ostlind, former Marin County aviation commissioner; Joseph A. Forest, chairman of Novato Airport Study Committee; George C. Quesada, Novato City councilman, and Herbert M. Hanson, a former chairman of Marin Aviation Commission.

Questions are invited for tomorrow's broadcast. The program, moderated by Kitty Oppenheimer, will be rebroadcast Sunday at 10:05 a.m.

Unrest Halts Plant Production

VIGO, Spain (UPI) — Labor unrest sparked by the firing of five workers paralyzed industrial plants today in this bustling port town on Spain's northwestern seaboard, industry sources said.

Estimates of the total number of strikers varied from 5,000 to 10,000 with no official figures available.

The strikes started Saturday after the management of the Citroen auto plant rejected a demand that the work week of its labor force of 4,000 be cut from 48 to 44 hours and the workers be given Saturday afternoons off. The company then dismissed five workers who were considered leaders of the protest.

Moratorium On Lettuce Picket

SALINAS, Calif. (UPI)— Striking farm workers have declared a moratorium on picketing one of the nation's largest lettuce growers in the "salad bowl" of the nation.

Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers Union said Tuesday a new contract agreement was expected with Inter Harvest, Inc., before the end of the week.

Pickets were withdrawn on the 12th day of the walkout by 1,500 workers because the company agreed not to hire strike breakers until a settlement was reached, according to Mrs. Delores Huerta, the union spokesman.

Airman Injured In Cycle Crash

Sgt. David R. Shinn, 22, of Travis Air Force Base, suffered leg injuries when his motorcycle struck a post in Novato yesterday.

Police said Shinn's southbound mororcycle struck a post near a garage on the property of K. R. Gentile at 1 Cherry Court at 4:55 p.m.

He was reported in satisfactory condition today at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital. Information about the nature of injury wasn't available.

Hub Board To Discuss Loss Of Financial Aid

The San Anselmo School District board will discuss a threatened loss of state financial aid because of a drop in enrollment when it meets at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the library of the Red Hill School on Shaw Drive.

According to Supt. Frank R. Elliott, only 1,839 children showed up for the first three days of school, 92 fewer than the projected enrollment of 1,931. Elliott said this could affect the district's budget since state aid is geared to pupil enrollment.

The board also will discuss the busing schedule for children in kindergarten, first, and educationally handicapped classes, and will report on negotiations with the Golden Gate Transit System concerning the possible turn-around of district route 37 at the Sleepy Hollow School. Also to be taken up are proposals to bus second and third grade pupils starting Sept. 25.

The board will take up the 17-cent hike in the district's tax rate to answer questions from people who had expected a lower tax rate than the $3.62 adopted for 1972-73.

The board also will consider adding a student representative at tomorrow's meeting.

Larkspur Discussion Of Redevelopment

Larkspur School District Board will discuss the effects of the Town of Corte Madera's redevelopment plans on the school district at its meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at the administration office, 20 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur.

Reports on enrollment in all district schools will be presented, and trustees will also discuss redistricting with the Mill Valley School District.

More Adults Seen In Education Classes

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) —Enrollment in adult education classes will probably surpass elementary and secondary school enrollment in California by 1975, according to a special report on adult education.

The report by the Association of California School Administrators said 1.6 million adults attended such classes last year at high schools and community colleges. If courses given by recreation departments and college extension divisions are counted, the total nears 4.3 million, the number of youngsters enrolled in kindergarten through 12th grade in the state.

Hitchhiker's Tip Leads To Pair's Heroin Arrest

Two men, arrested after a hitchhiker told sheriff's deputies the pair had injected heroin six times during a drive from Oregon, were bound over yesterday to Marin Superior Court on charges of possessing the drug.

Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Superior Court ordered Leroy Glenn Jeffery,19, of Vancouver, Canada, and Harry Woodford Swingler, 19, of nearby Surry, to appear Monday.

They were arrested Aug. 23 on Highway 101 by deputies who said they found six bundles of white powder and the injecting equipment in a refrigerator of a house trailer the two were towing behind their car.

The pair also is charged with misdemeanor possession of hypodermic needles and a syringe.

Nixon Adviser: Convictions Lag

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Nixon's top drug enforcement adviser complained today that convictions for narcotics crimes are lagging far behind arrests. Even when there is a high rate of convictions, few offenders ever go to jail, he said.

"We can never stop drug abuse under these circumstances," special Assistant Attorrney General Miles J. Ambrose said in a prepared speech at the Town Hall Club of Los Angeles.

Ambrose, who is in charge of the Justice Department's Office of Drug Abuse Law Enforcement and is special consultant to the President on drug abuse enforcement, said studies found either low conviction rates or low imprisonment of drug offenders.
